COOLIDGE OBTAINS CUTS IN BUDGET, NOW $3,270,000,000

INCREASE OVER THIS YEAR

Addition of $55,000,000 Due to Pension, Civil Retirement and Other New Laws.

ONLY SMALL SURPLUS SEEN

Director Lord Tells President It Will Be Little Unless Revenues Show Gains.

Special to The New York Times.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Aug. 11.—By cutting the budget estimate for the fiscal year 1928 $100,000,000, President Coolidge today reduced the expenditures of the Government to $3,270,000,000 to enforce his economy program, prevent a deficit and pave the way for a probable small tax reduction in that year.

If the appropriations are kept within these figures, which represent an increase of $55,000,000 over the appropriation for the current year, and there is continued prosperity to swell the tax receipts, it is felt that Congress may authorize another reduction before March 15, 1928.

In a three-hour conference today with General H. M. Lord, Director of the Bureau of the Budget, President Coolidge went over the estimates submitted by the Government departments for preparation of the budget recommendations to the next Congress. He found that necessary expenses had been increased by the Civil War pensions, the Retirement act and additional needs in the District of Columbia.

Current Expenses Increased.

The original estimates presented to the President by Director Lord called for appropriations of approximately $3,370,000,000. On account of the added current expenses incurred because of recent legislation the President was unable to keep the estimated cost of government for the next fiscal year below $3,270,000,000, and all of the departments of government will be called upon to absorb the reduction of $100,000,000.

The Navy and War Departments, whose expenditures are the largest, will be called upon to make the largest reductions in their estimates, although it is understood that the aviation program will not suffer in the slashing.

Mr. Coolidge holds that there is sure to be a reduction in the world's armament program in the next few years, either as an outcome of the conference to further limit armaments under the auspices of the League of Nations or by a conference he intends calling if the Geneva conference plans fail to lead to a successful outcome.

In his budget speech on June 21 last President Coolidge expressed his determination to keep the appropriations for the next fiscal year at $3,200,000,000. At that time Congress had not passed the legislation which increased the current expenditures by $75,000,000. The legislation included $36,000,000 for Civil and Spanish War veterans, $18,000,000 for the Veterans' Bureau, $16,000,000 for annuities under the Civil Retirement act and $5,000,000 for increased pay for teachers and annuities in the District of Columbia.

Cuts Total $190,000,000.

This additional obligation and the increasing cost of government due to expansion of activities brought the total estimates in the preliminary report to the Budget Director close to $3,370,000,000. The cuts, totaling $100,000,000, made by the President were not made public.

Under the law the preliminary estimates must be submitted to the Budget Director by July 15. It is understood that in their original shape they amounted to about $3,400,000,000, but after conferences with different executive heads the Director succeeded in inducing them to make reductions which brought down the figures submitted to the President, who ran his blue pencil through enough items to save $100,000,000.

General Lord declared that, even if the expenditures in the next fiscal year were kept within the figures approved by the President today, there would be a very small surplus, unless, as in the present year, the revenues increased beyond the amount originally estimated by the Treasury experts.

President Coolidge is opposed to the Government proceeding with only a negligible estimated surplus, as he feels there are always emergency demands arising to force the Government to expend beyond the amount estimated a year in advance.

He feels that if the Federal Government follows constructive economy policies it will furnish an example to the cities and States and that they will reduce their present heavy taxes.

To Reduce Federa Personnel.

There are 246,419 persons on the Government payroll today, exclusive of the Postal Service, representing a reduction from 656,672 in November, 1918. There will be further reductions in the force, but no dismissals, as vacancies caused by deaths and resignations will not be filled.

The number of vacancies in the Federal Executive Civil Service filled annually by original appointments is about 5 per cent. of the total employes, Mr. Lord said. It is proposed during

German Practice Torpedo Sinks a Danish Ship

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—A practice torpedo, shot by a German torpedo boat practicing in the Baltic Sea, struck a Danish sailing ship with sufficient force to puncture its hull.

The ship later sank, but German warships were able to rescue the crew.

When the damaged ship signaled for help two torpedo boats drew up and attempted to return the Danish boat to Lübeck Harbor by passing two steel cables underneath the injured hull, supported on both sides by war vessels.

However, one of the cables broke and the ship sank immediately.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—The Government has ordered the seizure of property reported to be controlled by the Catholic clergy. This property is said to be of great value and to consist of a large number of rural estates in the Federal district, besides large farms and extensive uncultivated lands.

The Attorney General's office holds it has proof that hundreds of properties in all parts of the republic now in the hands of private citizens are really owned by the clergy.

Orders issued by Attorney General Ortega call the attention of the legal authorities to the necessity of obeying the circular issued by him six months ago in which he ordered greater activity in recovering property in the hands of the clergy, although appearing in the names of private citizens, which, the State maintains, belongs to it.

Hundreds of cases are now ready in the Attorney General's office for action by the courts. All this property will be nationalized according to the law, and the Government will appoint administrators for it.

Congress Seen Backing Calles.

This move by the Government is expected to have a tremendous effect among Catholics, as it is believed that several estates administered by aristocratic families are really owned by the Church and that Church dignitaries receive part of the revenues.

The proposed seizures are seen here as an indication that President Calles has no intention of weakening or withdrawing from his position and that he is fully determined to carry out the clauses of the Constitution.

The action of the Government also disposes of the constant rumors which, although denied by Government and Church officials, say that the reformation of Articles 27 and 130 of the Constitution will be placed squarely up to the next Congress, which meets in September.

Conversations with prominent politicians indicate that the new Congress will be a hand-picked group amenable to Government discipline, and that, consequently, the religious program of the Government will continue along the lines laid down by President Calles without any interference from the Legislature.

In fact, these politicians say that the new Congress will positively approve all President Calles's actions and stand firmly behind him.

Property Valued at $12,500,000.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11 (AP).—Government officials estimate that property valued at more than 25,000,000 pesos ($12,500,000) may be seized by the Government if pending "denouncements" of alleged Church property are sustained.

This property consists of ranches,

CANCEL REPARATION, BORAH TELLS ALLIES; BRITISH DISSENT

Senator Issues Challenge in Chiding Clemenceau for His Plea to President.

STEP DEEMED IMPOSSIBLE

London Holds It Would Leave Allies and Us With Burdens and Germany Free.

ALTERNATIVE IS SUGGESTED

Use of German War Bonds Would Liquidate Indebtedness of Allies.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Prominence is given in the London press to a statement made by Senator Borah at Boise today, in comment upon M. Clemenceau's letter to President Coolidge, in which the Senator said that if the European nations wanted to cancel their debts they should include all debts and all reparations.

This is taken here as the first time that the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has even considered the eventuality of cancellation of Europe's debts to the United States, and, therefore, his statement assumes large importance.

However, if the Senator really has begun to think of eventualities under which the debts might be canceled he would find by studying the European situation on the spot that it is extremely doubtful if an offer by America to cancel all international war commitments, including reparations, in one full swoop would be accepted by all the nations involved.

Would Not Forgive Reparations.

While on the other side of the Atlantic it might seem entirely logical that if America annulled her claims on the Allies they should cancel their claims against Germany and thus wipe the whole slate clean, a closer glance at the situation will quickly reveal the reasons for which the allied nations, especially France, would not readily agree to this procedure.

All the nations engaged in the war now have heavy domestic war debts, with the exception of Germany. The débacle of the mark wiped out her interior war debt, and reparations now represent the total cost she shoulders for liquidation of the war. Were reparations to be canceled Germany would be the only nation engaged in the great conflict which owed nothing to liquidate it. England, France and Italy, as well as the United States, would still have their domestic war debts, while Germany would be cost-free of war debts.

Not only the dictates of fairness but commercial considerations would hinder France and England from agreeing to an arrangement by which German industry competing with theirs would have to pay no taxes whatsoever on account of the war, while their industries as well as those of America would have to bear such a burden for years to come.

Nevertheless, there is no doubt that cancellation by America would bring the Allies to great reductions in the German reparations, which now, on the calculation of the probable yield of full operation of the Dawes plan, stand at about $11,000,000,000. While England favors all-round cancellation of interallied indebtedness, London has never gone on record as favoring cancellation of reparations as part of any general scheme. Unquestionably England, heavily taxed as she is to liquidate the war, would not wish to see one of her great commercial rivals escape entirely from an analogous burden.

Possibilities of Adjustment.

In considering the possibility of eventual reconsideration of international war indebtedness, which Senator Borah in perhaps a left-handed manner has brought to the front, it is interesting to note that between the total of all that is owed by the various nations and all that is owing them there is a difference of $5,000,-

Sunday Opening of Sesquicentennial Banned By Judge if Admission Fees Are Charged

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11 (AP).—In a sweeping decision late today in Common Pleas Court Judge Edwin O. Lewis held that operation of the Sesquicentennial on Sunday, if an admission fee is charged, is illegal under the old Pennsylvania Statutes of 1794. The court held that in this State "the operation of anything not a necessity for which an admission fee is charged is worldly employment and therefore contrary to law."

Other points in Judge Lewis's decision were that operation of the exposition Gladway and other amusement features on Sunday is illegal; that playing baseball on Sunday, for an admission fee or not, is unlawful, and that E. L. Austin, Director General of the Sesquicentennial, is not responsible for either the opening of the exposition gates on Sunday or for the operation of amusement features, as he acted under the Exposition Board's order.

Judge Lewis pointed out that the higher courts "have recorded rather strong opinions that appear to render unlawful even the opening of the Sesquicentennial gates on Sunday if an admission is charged."

The opinion was viewed by Mayor Kendrick as "one of the hardest blows of many delivered at the Centennial." He added that he would confer with the City Attorney tomorrow to determine a future policy.

"If I took a narrow view of the decision," said the Mayor, "I would give Philadelphia a real closed Sunday under the blue laws of 1794. I would so rigorously enforce the law that all trolley cars would have to stop running, all drug stores would be closed and any work such as is performed by chauffeurs would cease. That would be the logical aftermath of this decision, but it would work hardships on innocent citizens and such action will not be considered."

It was intimated that an appeal from Judge Lewis's ruling might follow the Mayor's conference with the City Attorney.

The Court's decree was in reply to Austin's appeal from a fine of $5 and costs imposed by a Magistrate for alleged violation of the Sunday law. The Court said that Austin was acting solely under orders from the Centennial Board of Directors.

Mercury at 90, City Suffers in Sticky Heat; Five Overcome; Rain Deluges Westchester

The mercury soared to 90 degrees again yesterday and once more the city sweltered. High humidity percentages added to the discomfort, particularly of those who had put faith in the predictions that sun spots would make this a frigid Summer. Five persons were prostrated by the heat.

Last night when the mercury had started a slow downward course, the weather forecaster gave the cheerful news that today would be partly cloudy and "not quite so warm." He also predicted thunder showers for Friday.

During the afternoon and early evening it appeared as if the thunder showers were about to arrive and break the heat wave. Ominous clouds piled up, but they dodged the city and night came on, sticky and close. The showers went to the north and, breaking over Westchester County, afforded some relief.

The storms, one of which descended about 3:15 o'clock and the other about 5 o'clock, brought considerable trouble with them, for the rain was so heavy that streets in some Westchester cities and towns were flooded and bathers at the beaches were forced to scurry for cover. In White Plains the rain was so heavy that it became like a thick mist and it was necessary to halt practically all traffic for a time. The storm caused little damage.

The high mark for the day was reached at 5 P. M. and at 9 o'clock last night the mercury had gone down to 83 degrees. The humidity at that time had climbed up to 76, however. The lowest temperature during the day was 72 degrees at 5 A. M.

While at work in Calvary Cemetery, Queens, Jerry Leahy, 65-year-old grave digger of Laurel Hill, Queens, was overcome and was taken to St. John's Hospital, Long Island City. John Rooney of 524 Brook Avenue dropped to the sidewalk at Third Avenue and 149th Street, the Bronx, from the heat and was taken to Lincoln Hospital. Patrick Curran of 118 West 114th Street was prostrated at Eleventh Avenue and Fourteenth Street. He was taken to Bellevue.

Peter Russo of 55 Spring Street, overcome at Thirty-seventh Street and Eighth Avenue and removed to Bellevue Hospital.

DOVER, Aug. 11.—While Gertrude Ederle has certainly taken the big plum out of Channel swimming, there are still records for women to win in that strip of water, it was pointed out today by Clare Belle Barrett, the six-foot Pelham Manor (N. Y.) woman, whose wonderful struggle of twenty-two hours, eleven of them thick with fog, two weeks ago roused the world's admiration.

"I am going to swim from Dover to France, which it is agreed by experts is the severest test possible," she said. "I will be attended only by a motorboat—no sheltering tug—and will be the first woman to try and swim the Channel twice in three weeks."

Clare Belle expects to start early Saturday, Sunday or Monday morning, according as the weather conditions favor.

"I intend taking no special training," she continued. "I will take only one hour of hard swimming each morning and an hour of hard walking later. I will rest in the afternoon. I will eat the usual food served at my hotel.

"Captain Learmont, the pilot and my friend, will go with me. As before, Mr. Brickett, the Olympic champion, will give me final instructions. Tell New York that the only reason I failed last time was because of the fog, which that night even held up the Leviathan. Conditions are still variable and stormy, but I hope they will improve.

"I am confident that I will be the second New York woman to beat the Channel and make a new world record."

CALAIS, Aug. 11.—"Gee! I'd sooner swim the Channel again than go through all this," said Gertrude Ederle as she motored along a path of glory here today. In an automobile at the head of a long procession, she left Cape Gris-Nes for Calais, whence she departed for Germany to visit her grandmother before returning to New York on the Bereugaria.

Miss Ederle's party left headquarters at Gris-Nez today amid great enthusiasm. All along the country road to Calais she was vehemently cheered. Outside Calais she was met by Gaston Smith, the American Consul, and conducted to the office of a great local silk works, where a reception had been planned for her by the officers of the company. When they heard of Miss Ederle's arrival, 2,000 workmen rushed from their posts and crowded about her.

Miss Ederle almost wept at the warmth of her reception at Calais, all the more so because La Phare, a Calais newspaper, had charged that she had not swum the Channel and that it was impossible for a woman to do so.

We went into the office, but the workmen cried "We want Ederle again," and she went out and waved to them. The officers of the silk works presented Miss Ederle with a bouquet four feet high from the wife of a Paris sporting editor and their own gift of a handsome scarf.

After luncheon the party proceeded to the City Hall, where Miss Ederle was received by Mayor Vincent to the tune of popping champagne corks. The Mayor congratulated her on her marvelous performance.

"We welcome only famous people to this building," he said. "When you get back to America you will always remember Gris-Nez. Such an achievement as yours does much to cement the good feeling between France and America, for the betterment of the world."

The Mayor then presented to Miss Ederle a medal engraved with the Calais arms.

Political Leaders Believe Wet and Dry Fight May Put Pomerene in Field.

WATCH KLAN IN ALABAMA

Vote for Its Candidates There Regarded as Affecting the Chances of Gov. Smith.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—As politicians here see them, the results in the primaries of both major parties in Ohio yesterday have a fairly deep national significance. To a measurable degree, this is true also of the outcome of the Democratic primary held yesterday in Alabama to choose a candidate for the place in the Senate from which Oscar W. Underwood is retiring voluntarily. Into the fabric of the party contests which yesterday's voting determined are woven Presidential aspirations and possibilities, the Ku Klux Klan issue, with a slant which may again have a bearing on the candidacy of Governor Smith, and the wet and dry controversy.

Former Senator Atlee Pomerene appears to have been chosen as the candidate of the Democratic Party for Senator in Ohio. His chief opponent was Judge Florence E. Allen of the State Supreme Court. The Democratic dry contingents and labor elements rallied behind Miss Allen, but Mr. Pomerene has such a lead that she has conceded his victory.

Senator Frank B. Willis, renominated in the Republican primary, will be Mr. Pomerene's opponent at the polls in November. Mr. Willis is bone-dry, a conspicuous advocate of prohibition maintenance, and generally regarded as a spokesman of the Anti-Saloon League, which gave him enthusiastic support in the primary campaign, while seeking to bring about Mr. Pomerene's defeat in backing Miss Allen's candidacy.

Senator Willis fairly walked away with the Republican nomination in Ohio, wets who ran against him being left far behind. Myers Y. Cooper, who is leading in the race for the Republican nomination for Governor, had the Anti-Saloon League endorsement, like Willis, so that in the Republican contests for the two chief nominations the Ohio dry forces have been triumphant.

The nomination of Governor Donahey for a third term means a stand-off between the wets and the drys in the Democratic primary, in that Governor Donahey is a dry.

Pomerene's Liquor Attitude.

Mr. Pomerene is accused by the dry forces of being a wet, mainly, if not entirely, because while a member of the Senate, in which he served two terms, he voted against the resolution for submitting the Eighteenth Amendment to the States. In the primary contest which ended yesterday with his triumph he did not comment on the prohibition issue. He is considered to be a constitutional wet, in that he was opposed to putting prohibition into the Constitution, but an advocate for enforcement of the amendment and its supplemented Volstead act.

There appears to have been general agreement that if Mr. Pomerene had not been defeated for re-election to the Senate in 1922 he would have been a strong contender for the Presidential nomination in the Madison Square Garden Convention of 1924. It is accepted by politicians that if he should be elected to the Senate this year he will have to be reckoned with in the Democratic National Convention of 1928.

This view prevails among politicians and political observers in spite of the fact that Governor A. Victor Donahey, who is serving his second term and was renominated yesterday in Ohio's Democratic primaries, has a strong following, which is making preparations for bringing him into the party's Presidential contest two years hence.

The national political slant in yesterday's Democratic primaries in Alabama, with its possible relationship to Governor Smith's candidacy for the Presidential nomination, involves the activities of the Ku Klux Klan. Bibb Graves, who seems to be leading by a narrow margin for the nomination for Governor, was the Klan's candidate, and part of his campaign was based on the charge that the leading newspapers of Alabama opposed him because their owners, characterized by him as millionaires, desired to have their man named for Governor in order to control the State delegation in the next national convention in the interest of Governor Smith.

GEN. ANDREWS BACK, SAYS BRITISH HELP WILL CUT RUM FLOW

MISSION '125% SUCCESSFUL'

HOPEFUL ON ENFORCEMENT

"Damn Well Under Way," He Asserts—Defies Government Seeks to Put Deadly Poison in Alcohol.

General Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, returned yesterday on the French liner La France from Europe, where he said he had cast aside the slow methods of diplomacy and reached an agreement with the British whereby liquor smuggling here would be reduced to a minimum. But what this arrangement was he would not tell.

Almost the first thing he did say, however, was to announce squarely that the Government's stock of alcohol in storage was being denatured solely as a means of making the country dry. He seemed distressed, however, at reports that the Government was seeking a more deadly poison than gasoline to use in the denaturing process.

"Alcohol is being denatured today absolutely for prohibition purposes," said General Andrews. "Don't think that I have to be forced to say that. I know it is absolutely true. The law of 1906 required that alcohol to be used for industrial purposes be denatured so that it would be unfit for beverage purposes. This was done to protect the Government's revenue from grain alcohol. Since prohibition the Government's revenue from beverage alcohol is too small to be a matter of any consideration.

Seeks to Balk Bootleggers.

"But our chemists are not seeking more deadly poisons, as has been published, but merely something that the bootlegger can't take out of the alcohol, as he has learned to remove most of the poisons from the old denaturing formulae. They are seeking something which the ultimate consumer of the beverage will readily recognize from its odor and taste, so that he will know instantly that he is in possession of denatured alcohol."

General Andrews talked after his arrival at the Barge Office, having been taken off La France by a Coast Guard cutter which had carried Major Chester P. Mills, Prohibition Administrator for this district, down the bay to meet his superior.

General Andrews was optimistic. He declared his arrangements with British officials, by means of which he expects to reduce liquor smuggling to a minimum, had been "125 per cent. successful." He refused to discuss the arrangements in any detail, saying if would be "like telling the bootleggers and rum-runners what we are going to do." To a question about whether he intended to resign as head of prohibition enforcement the General replied:

"You asked me that last November, and I told you that if I had shown no progress in a year I would quit. Well, I am sticking to that."

"Do you consider that you have shown progress?" he was asked.

"I think we are damn well under way," the General answered. "And it is just such work as we have done in England that will count—and when I get laws which the last Congress was too busy to give me."

Calls British "Good Sports."

General Andrews said he had not taken up prohibition enforcement matters in France, but in England only, and he referred to the British as "good sports enough to invite us to sit around a table with them and clear these matters up in this novel way."

"Our negotiations lasted two weeks," he continued. "It was a meeting of representatives of the executive departments of both Governments. We got together to discuss the smuggling problem, to arrive at a common understanding of the facts and to agree upon a form of administrative ma-

Holland Tunnel to Be Tested By Auto Within Two Weeks

An automobile will pass under the Hudson River from New York to New Jersey some time within the next two weeks, according to Ole Singstad, chief engineer of the Holland vehicular tunnel. The tunnel will not be completed and opened to traffic until next March.

When the tunnel is completed it will represent an investment of about $40,000,000. It will consist of two tubes, one for eastbound vehicles and one for westbound. A speed of twelve miles an hour for pleasure vehicles and eight miles for trucks will be maintained.

The most difficult engineering problem involved was the design of a suitable ventilating system. The blowing in of air at on end and out at the other would have created longitudinal air currents of gale-like velocity, Mr. Singstad said. To obviate the difficulty, four air ducts for ventilation were built, one at each end of the tube and one on each side of the river.

WHITTEMORE LOSES PLEA FOR A STAY

HANGING SET FOR MIDNIGHT

Slayer Calm, Jailers Say—Extra Police to Guard Prison—Wife Barred From Gallows Room.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 11.—An attempt to obtain a stay of the execution of Richard Reese Whittemore, who has been condemned to die on the gallows here at midnight tomorrow for the murder of Robert Holtman, a guard at the Maryland Penitentiary, in February, 1925, failed today when Judge Robert F. Stanton in the City Court denied an application for a writ of habeas corpus made on Whittemore's behalf by G. F. Pendleton, a negro attorney.

The attorney argued that the Maryland Constitution, which makes a jury in this State the judge of the law as well as the facts and prevents the Court from giving any instructions on the law, is in conflict with the United States Constitution.

Judge Stanton held that the practice of having the jury judges of the law as well as of the facts in criminal cases constituted "due process of law" and that since the people of Maryland had approved this system and were content with it, he would deny the writ.

Lawyer to Keep Up Fight.

Immediately after court adjourned, Mr. Pendleton announced he would leave tonight at 8 o'clock for Boston to apply for a writ of error to one of three United States Supreme Court Justices now in Massachusetts. These are Justice Brandeis at Chatham, Justice Holmes at Beverly Farms and Justice Sanford at Nantucket.

When he left the courthouse, Pendleton was trailed by detectives but at midnight it was reported that the lawyer had eluded them and had boarded a train at Union Station, presumably for Massachusetts. Assistant State's Attorney Rowland K. Adams took an earlier train for Boston to oppose any attempt the lawyer for Whittemore may make toward staying.

The hearing today began at noon before a crowded court room. Pendleton, who is one of the leading negro lawyers of Baltimore, had been retained by Whittemore's wife. Mrs. Whittemore did not attend the hearing, but Rawlings V. Whittemore, father of the condemned man, was present.

The elderly negro lawyer, who emphasized his words with the sweep of his long arms, made a striking contrast to the State's representatives, including Mr. Adams, Attorney General Thomas H. Robinson and State's Attorney Herbert R. O'Connor.

Pendleton said he knew his procedure was unusual, but the "enormity of the case" made it necessary. He attacked the "brutal lust incarnate," which he said had brought Whittemore from New York to Baltimore on the guarantee that he would be hanged. "Is that justice?" he demanded.

He declared that the Maryland law was archaic and that it made the jury supreme. As Pendleton talked he waved a hand in time with frequent

Some of Stolen Vanderbilt Jewels Found By Gardener Under Bush on Twombly Estate

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Vanderbilt, wife of General Cornelius Vanderbilt, and her daughter, Miss Grace Vanderbilt, were overjoyed this afternoon when there were returned to The Breakers two small boxes of the missing jewels that mysteriously disappeared from the Vanderbilt residence Saturday night during a dinner party.

They were brought back to her by a young man, Louis Shantler, a gardener's helper, who is employed on the adjoining estate, Vinland, the home of Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly and Miss Ruth Twombly. He had found them under a bush on the Twombly estate, close to the Vanderbilt line, while he was at work cleaning up the grounds this afternoon.

He immediately showed his find to his foreman and together they went to The Breakers and personally turned them over to Mrs. Vanderbilt.

That there is still another box full of jewels missing, the most valuable of the pieces stolen, was learned by Shantler when he presented the two boxes, and the private detectives who have been called in by the family, with other employes, will begin a systematic search of both estates tomorrow in the hope of uncovering possibly the other missing box, the one that is most sought.

Just what is the value of the contents of the two boxes found is not known, for the finder knowing that there had been a robbery at The Breakers and surmising at once that this must have been part of it to loot did not take time to examine very closely before hurrying to return them to their owner.

It was learned, however, that the boxes contained several pieces of jewelry and a quantity of uncut stones of different kinds and sizes. Also they contained numerous small keys such as would fit jewelry boxes.

MURDERS OF POLICE STIR CITY TO ACTION; ONE SLAYER CAUGHT

INDICTED SIX HOURS LATER

Another Officer Is Shot in Harlem—Wounded, He Kills Bandit Trying to Escape.

The murder of a detective in headquarters early yesterday morning—the sixth killing of a member of the force since Jan. 1—stirred the whole city, led to steps for the swift punishment of the murderer, who was caught within a few hours of the crime, and provoked the city authorities to plan drastic measures to safeguard the lives of the city's police force.

Police Commissioner McLaughlin, who had appeared at Police Headquarters within an hour of the killing of the detective, John M. Singer, denounced the act of the slayer, and declared that he intended to appear before the Grand Jury within the next few days and urge the body to make a public recommendation that more drastic punishment be provided for criminals who shoot policemen. He referred to the fact that since he became Police Commissioner on Jan. 1 last, six members of the force had been shot and killed by gunmen, and declared that life imprisonment should be the penalty for shooting at a policeman, as in the case in many foreign countries.

Killings Arouse the Mayor.

Mayor Walker learned of the murder of the detective on his arrival at the City Hall from a ten days' vacation at Dixville Notch, N. H. He said that he had read while away of the killing of Patrolman Oscar H. A. Oehlerking of the West Forty-seventh Street Station last Saturday morning by one of two gunmen whom Oehlerking had attempted to arrest for a hold-up in West Forty-ninth Street, near Eighth Avenue, and of the slaying of Motorcycle Patrolman Frank Murphy by gunmen in a stolen automobile whom Murphy had started to take into custody as suspects in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn.

He expressed regret for the murders of the policemen and added: "Speedy trials and prohibitive bail for old offenders should help to discourage outlaws from slaying and robbing. If they know that the courts will not countenance delay and that adequate punishment will be meted out, the criminal element will not be so brazen and defiant.

"I have never known, in my experience as a practicing lawyer, that the defendant's case in a criminal action suffered through delay in trial," the Mayor said. "In fact, everything points to the opposite. Oftimes material witnesses absent themselves and for various other reasons the State's case loses much of its strength. There should be no delay in proceeding against the type of desperadoes who are gunning after policemen."

District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe of Queens said that no quarter should be shown to gunmen. "Keep all known crooks on the move," he said. "Drive them out of the city before they have a chance to use their weapons against the men who guard the welfare of the public and the public itself."

Another Policeman Shot.

The murder of Singer, the daring capture of his slayer by a patrolman who felled him in Delancey Street before he could draw the pistol he still carried, and the quick indictment of the slayer were not the sole events of a day that was one of the most sensational the police have known in many years. Another policeman—this time in Harlem—was fired upon and dropped to his knees by a bandit's bullets, but he managed, despite his wounds, to shoot the gunman to death.

One of the more recent of the year's six police victims of gunmen was buried yesterday. He was Motorcycle Patrolman Frank Murphy, who was shot last Saturday night in Brooklyn while pursuing several men who were riding in an automobile. Commissioner McLaughlin headed the honorary pallbearers at Murphy's funeral, held at the Church of the Visitation, Brooklyn.

A watch fob, fashioned in a chain out of half a dozen dimes, furnished the clue which led to the capture at 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning of a giant negro, who three hours before had shot and killed Detective Singer in the office of the Automobile Squad at Police Headquarters.

A witness to the killing, Louis Ruku of 191 Henry Street, on whose complaint the murderer, Eugene Pierce, had been arrested in Hammonton, N. J., three days before for having Ruku's stolen car in his possession, furnished the clue. A brief description, including the fact that Pierce wore the novel fob dangling from his pocket when he shot his way out of Police Headquarters after killing the detective, had been flashed over the telephone to all stations. Patrolman John White of the Clinton Street Station saw a negro answering the description walking in Delancey Street less than a mile from the scene of the murder.

Waits for His Man.

White, a tried policeman of eighteen years' experience, leaped back into the door of a store near Orchard Street and studied the negro's general appearance. The man carried a pack sack on his right arm, and as he drew ried along. White saw the fob on the coat as the suspect fanned himself with the sleeve of the garment.

Convinced that the man was the murderer, White whipped out his pistol, waited until the negro was almost in front of him and then leaped on him. The man made a move for the pocket of his coat, but White was too quick for him. Bringing the butt of his pistol down on the negro's head, White hurled the coat to one side.

The negro grappled with the patrolman and managed to get both hands on White's nightstick. White kept pounding the Negro on the head with his pistol. The patrolman is a man of large stature, but the negro was much more powerful. The patrolman was seeking an opportunity to shoot when Patrolmen Thomas Storey and William Conroy of the Clinton Street Station ran up. Storey had become suspicious of the negro a short time before when he passed in a taxicab on the Bowery. He and Conroy had gone in search of the suspect in another taxicab, from which they leaped when they saw White struggling with him.

In a few minutes the negro was subdued and taken to Police Headquarters, where he admitted the killing. Six hours later the Grand Jury returned a first-degree murder indictment against him. Two hours after that the murderer was standing in Judge Mancuso's part of General Sessions, shackled to his captor, when the jury filed in and handed up the indictment.

Court Praises Patrolman.

The jurors remained to see the arraignment of the man on the murder charge. They heard him say that he was without funds and would be unable to employ counsel. They heard the Court tell him that competent counsel would be furnished for him by the Court at the State's expense. Then, as Patrolman White was about to take the slayer over the Bridge of Sighs to the Tombs, pending another arraignment this morning for pleading on the murder charge, the jurors listened attentively to Judge Mancuso as, addressing the patrolman, he said:

"Patrolman White, I want to compliment you for your sagacity, your alertness and your heroism in this case. It shows emphatically the agility of our police officers. You surely have the commendation of this Court and of the public, and I am sure that the Grand Jurors who handed up this murder indictment against your prisoner feel the same way about it."

The Grand Jurors nodded approval, and one said: "That is a correct expression of our sentiments, Your Honor."

White took the compliments modestly, but the negro beside him seemed in no way interested in what was going on and at the first nudge from the patrolman moved out of court.

The cold-blooded murder of the detective, the first that ever occurred in Police Headquarters, aroused public officials generally. Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora, before the door of Pierce's cell in the Tombs had clanged behind the slayer, announced that the trial would be brought about speedily. He said that Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers, an expert in the trial of murders, had been assigned to the case, and that Judge Mancuso had volunteered to preside at the trial, in addition to his work in Part I of General Sessions, in which pleas to indictments are received each day and arrangements for trials or sentences made.

Promises to Push Trial.

"If the trial does not begin next week," Mr. Pecora said, "it certainly will be by next Monday week." Mr. Brothers, who already had taken up the study of the evidence against Pierce by a visit to Police Headquarters with Assistant District Attorney William P. Ryan of the Homicide Bureau, in which Pierce volunteered to re-enact the slaying, said that, to aid in quick justice, he would request the calling of a special panel of 100 talesmen for the trial.

Pierce made a complete confession to the Assistant District Attorneys in the presence of Deputy Inspector Carey.

Commissioner McLaughlin announced that he had promoted Patrolman White to first grade detective, with an annual increase of $300 in salary. He also announced that Patrolmen Storey and Conroy, who had aided White in subduing the murderer, had each received departmental recognition in the form of commendations.

A short time after the indictment had been handed up against Pierce Commissioner McLaughlin supplemented his earlier statement with the remark: "The police are making many arrests of desperate criminals, but they are getting the bad breaks in their dealings with gunmen, as the recent shootings of policemen indicate."

Kuku, the witness to the slaying of Detective Singer, identified Pierce as the murderer shortly after Patrolman White brought his prisoner into Police Headquarters and told of having driven Detective Singer the afternoon before to Hammonton, N. J., to get Pierce. A trooper of the New Jersey State Constabulary had arrested Pierce there last Sunday for recklessly driving the car, and when it was identified by the trooper as the car for which a general alarm had been sent out by the New York police, Pierce was held there without bail as a fugitive.

Brought From Hammonton.

The negro agreed to waive extradition when the detective and Kuku reached Hammonton Tuesday night. Kuku said that the prisoner appeared to be in an amiable frame of mind.

"I drove the car and Detective Singer and the negro sat in the rear seat," Kuku said. "The negro laughed and chatted all the way up after telling Detective Singer that he had not stolen the car, but that he had taken it a few days before from in front of his home in Harlem, where it had been left by another negro friend, who, Pierce said, had told him he could use it whenever he wanted to.

"When we were half way here from Hammonton Pierce told the detective he was hungry, and said that he had no money. 'Well, if you're hungry, I'll buy you a meal,' Singer said to him pleasantly, and we stopped at the next restaurant, where Detective Singer paid for some sandwiches and coffee for the prisoner.

"There was not the slightest indication that any harm would befall the detective from the negro even when we entered the office of the automobile squad at headquarters, shortly after 2 in the morning, and the detective began to question the negro."

Kuku explained that Singer sat at a flat desk at the north side of the room, which is one door south of the main entrance to the building in Centre Street. Singer had drawn up chairs for the negro and Kuku and began to fill out a card containing the pedigree of the prisoner. Kuku sat to the left of the detective, the prisoner on the right. Near Kuku was a water cooler, and a few feet beyond that and against the Centre Street side of the room was a telephone booth. Singer had removed his coat when they entered the room. Pierce readily answered three or four questions, Kuku said, when the negro, in a pleasant voice, said: 'Mr. Singer, can I get a drink of water over there?'

"Sure, help yourself," Kuku quoted the detective as replying, bending over the card on which he was writing as the prisoner slowly walked over to the cooler and drank some water.

Singer's pistol, Kuku said, was bulging out of the holster in his hip pocket. Kuku happened to glance toward the negro as he started back to his chair. He saw the negro grab the detective's pistol. Kuku leaped to his feet and ran through the swinging gate of a railing. Kuku said that Singer also jumped out of his chair as he felt the weapon being drawn from the holster. Kuku had backed behind the railing, with the negro following him, when Kuku saw the detective smilingly hold out his hands for the pistol and say: 'Don't do that, Pierce.'

Pierce muttered something which the witness was too excited to remember. Kuku said a door leading to the Truck squad room next door when he heard a shot. The witness was half way through this door when he saw Singer grapple with the negro for the pistol, and was running through the next room to the door leading to the lobby when he heard two more shots.

Detective Killed Instantly.

It developed that the first shot fired by the negro had gone wild, but the second struck the detective in the body and the third severed his jugular vein, killing him instantly. There were no policemen in the lobby or the main foyer inside the entrance as Kuku ran out shouting, "Help! Detective Singer is being killed." He saw a light streaming through one of the office doors further south on the lobby, and ran to the place. As he stepped inside he saw Pierce, with the detective's pistol in his right hand, come running out of the room where he had shot the detective.

Patrolman John Cramer, an elderly member of the force, assigned to the foyer of the building, a few minutes before had gone down to Captain Thomas Brennan's office. Brennan is one of two captains recently assigned by Commissioner McLaughlin to act for Chief Inspector Lahey at night. Cramer heard the three shots fired by the negro and ran toward the foyer. Pierce, in his confession later, said that he fired a shot at the policeman as he was about to descend the short flight of steps leading from the foyer to the main entrance on Centre Street. Lieutenant William J. Fogarty, at the desk in the Detective Bureau, also heard the shots and ran out to investigate as the negro fired at Cramer.

Patrolman James O'Brien and Edward Erbacher and Patrolman William V. McKee of the Lawrence Avenue Station, Brooklyn, ran out of other offices on the first floor a few seconds after the Lieutenant's appearance.

Pierce said that just as he was about to go through the winding door at the main entrance he saw other policemen in the foyer and fired a parting shot at them. Then he hurried north on Centre Street to Broome Street, he said, and kept on running for several blocks west until he had passed Broadway and felt confident that he had made good his escape.

Pierce held the slain detective's pistol in his hand all this time. Five of the shells were gone, but he said he knew that at least another bullet remained. He watched furtively for policemen, he said, ready to use the pistol again if one should attempt to intercept him.

By the time Pierce reached West Street the general alarm for the murderer had been broadcast to the surrounding precincts by Lieutenant Fogarty. The alarm read: "Look for a negro, six feet high and about 20 years old, wearing a fob made of dimes. He is wanted for the murder of Detective Singer in Police Headquarters."

Lieutenant Fogarty also called up the Mercer Street Station and the Oak Street Station, contiguous to Police Headquarters, and asked that the reserves be turned out to join patrolmen on post in the quest for the murderer, who, the Lieutenant believed, was within a few miles of Police Headquarters.

Policemen on all the posts from the Hudson to the East River and south of Fourteenth Street formed a dragnet for the murderer, but the telephoned alarm for him had reached the man on post just a few minutes too late for them to encounter Pierce, who by that time, he later told the prosecutors, had reached an empty truck on West Street near Broome Street, folded his coat as a pillow with the slain detective's pistol in it and had gone to sleep.

Pierce said that he was awakened shortly after daybreak by the rattling of several large motor trucks, which passed near him. He got out and started south on West Street to Grand Street, and sauntered leisurely east through that thoroughfare for a few blocks when he got a ride to the Bowery on a motor truck. He noticed on the way that he was passing Police Headquarters, which he knew very well, because only a few months ago he had been employed in Loft's candy factory in Broome Street, which faces directly the north end of that building.

Tried to Escape in Taxi.

He crouched down as he saw many policemen in the vicinity, he said, and when the motor truck reached the Bowery, three blocks further east, he decided that the situation was becoming more and more dangerous and that, despite his lack of money, he had better resort to desperate means to get away.

He jumped out of the truck and hailed a taxicab. He told the chauffeur he wanted to go to Seventh Avenue and 135th Street. He slumped down in the body of the taxicab until his head just barely showed above the door. The taxicab had gone but one block to Broome Street, however, when Pierce ordered the chauffeur to turn east on that thoroughfare.

It developed later that this move by the negro came about through his discovery that Patrolman Storey, who was telephoning from a police box there to his station, had at that moment seen the negro in the taxicab and started toward him. The driver did not hear the patrolman as Storey shouted to him to halt. He kept going for another two blocks, when he suddenly stopped the car and said: "I won't take you to Harlem. I don't like your actions. Anyway, I don't want to make such a long trip."

Pierce, his coat over his arm, got out of the taxicab without protest and hurried north on Christie Street to Delancey Street. Patrolman Storey in the meantime had been frantically racing back and forth on the Bowery in quest of a taxicab in which to pursue the negro. Patrolman Conroy came along a few seconds later, and in another minute a taxicab came hurrying north on the Bowery.

The patrolmen jumped on the running board, with their pistols out, and ordered the driver to hurry east through Broome Street. They had gone less than a block, however, when Storey recognized a taxicab coming toward them as that in which he had seen the negro. Their chauffeur blocked the path of this cab, but when the policemen jumped on the running boards, they found the negro was not in it.

"Where's that negro that was in this cab?" demand Storey of the chauffeur.

"I put him out," was the reply. "I thought there was something wrong about that fellow. He went north on that next street. I'll go with you and point him out if we come across him, because I took a good look at his face. He certainly is a bad-looking negro."

They had gone but a block when Patrolman Storey saw Patrolman White leap out of the negro near Orchard Street. As they started to speed to the assistance of White a large milk truck got in their path, but their chauffeur, who by this time had learned from the patrolmen of the murder of the detective, ran his machine up on the sidewalk and around the truck to avoid delay.

Sorry He Shot Detective.

"I shot the detective; I'm sorry," were the first words spoken by Pierce when the three patrolmen hurried him into Police Headquarters.

Pierce said he did not know what made him take the detective's pistol. "I was afraid to give it back to him when he ran at me and we began to struggle for it," he said. "I was afraid that if I gave it back he might shoot me."

Patrolman White said he felt that he would capture the slayer. "I had a hunch," he said. "I got the flash over the signal box telephone a little before 3 o'clock and I had him in custody at 5:26 A. M. That fob of coins made me certain that I had the right man as he came walking toward where I was hiding."

White is 42 years old and lives at 58 Walcott Street, Brooklyn. He was a patrolman for the city Water Supply Board before he joined the force.

It developed that on Monday Commissioner McLaughlin had issued an order permitting Detective Singer to accept from an insurance company $50 for the recovery of an automobile owned by Joseph Hess of 58 East Ninety-seventh Street which had been stolen on June 6. Singer found the automobile thirteen days after the theft. The Commissioner's order was received by Deputy Inspector Carey in the Homicide Bureau while he and the two prosecutors were questioning the negro slayer.

Detective Singer was appointed to the force on Jan. 1, 1906. He was promoted to detective several years later, and for the last four years had been attached to the automobile squad. He lived with his wife and two children at 41 West 178th Street.

Late in the afternoon arrangements for the funeral were completed at Police Headquarters. The body was removed to the Harlem Chapel at 230 Lenox Avenue, where it will lay in state until Sunday morning, when at 9:30 o'clock the cortege will start for Mount Neboh Temple at 564 West 150th Street. Chaplain Isidor Freank of the Police Department will officiate at the services.

The police escort will be led by the police band and an inspector, a captain, two lieutenants and four sergeants. These will be ninety-eight patrolmen and at least 200 detectives in line. The Police Glee Club also will attend the services.

SLAIN POLICEMAN BURIED.

Frank Murphy's Funeral Attended by McLaughlin and Officials.

The funeral of Motorcycle Patrolman Frank Murphy, who was shot down by men in a stolen automobile which he was pursuing in Brooklyn last Saturday night, was held yesterday morning at the Church of the Visitation, Richards and Verona Streets, Brooklyn, with the Rev. James McCaffery, a police chaplain, singing the requiem mass.

Leaving the church, the cortege, headed by twenty-five motorcycle policemen and the police band, passed along Dwight Street into Lorraine Street, where 300 uniformed men stood at attention on either side, and then on to Holy Cross Cemetery, where interment was made.

Police Commissioner George V. McLaughlin headed the honorary pallbearers, among whom were Deputy Commissioners John A. Leach and Edward Kelly, Inspectors John Coughlin and Thomas Murphy and Captain Anthony Howe. The pallbearers were six comrades of the slain patrolman from Motorcycle Squad 2.

Yesterday afternoon Commissioner McLaughlin announced that Edward J. Kenny, an official of the Edison Company of Brooklyn, had asked that all bills for the funeral be sent to him, and said that he proposed to pay the widow of the slain policeman a monthly pension in return for services rendered by Patrolman Murphy, who acted as a guard of honor at the time of the visit of the Cardinals.

TO SEEK LAW ON FIREARMS.

Board of Trade Head Says "Stick-Up" Men Must Be Crushed.

Commenting on the murder of Detective Singer at Police Headquarters, W. J. L. Banham, President of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, yesterday issued the following statement:

"Police Commissioner McLaughlin is quite right. It is high time that the courts and every other agency of the municipal and State Government should be used in crushing the 'stick-up' men and murderers.

"We are shocked beyond measure at this sixth member of the department being killed. The bank, payroll and store robberies at the point of a gun must stop.

"As President of the Board of Trade and Transportation, I shall at once recommend to our Committee on Crime, of which W. W. Brainard is Chairman, that legislation be prepared making it unlawful and the subject of heavy penalty for any one to carry or retain possession in any manner, shape or form of firearms, save under permit from the city or State.

"There must be an end to firearms and a swift and severe punishment of those who continue to use them in order to put down this waste of life of brave guardians of the law, and of the lives of others that are now jeopardized by the cult that calls itself professional gunmen. It has often been said that life can be snuffed out by one of these men for as little as $25 or $50.

"We very promptly send a thief to the penitentiary for long periods of time. We should use the electric chair for would-be and actual murderers."

TENEMENT OWNER SLAIN.

In a narrow hallway at 315 East Thirty-ninth Street yesterday morning, John Imbergano, 42 years old, an Italian tenement house owner, was shot and killed by an unknown assailant. His wife, Mrs. Concetta Imbergano, 35, who was returning from a butcher shop, was hit in the left hip by a shot as she entered the hall. Her condition was later reported to be not serious.

Patrolman Harry Bals, operator of the Fourth District automobile patrol, while driving through East Thirty-ninth Street between Second and Third Avenues, heard four shots, fired in rapid succession, and then a woman's screams. He hurried to the scene, where a crowd had gathered, and found the man and his wife on the floor. In the hip pocket of Imbergano a loaded .45-calibre automatic pistol was found.

Inspector Patrick J. McCormack and Captain John Griffiths with detectives from the East Thirty-first Street station made an investigation. After questioning persons living in the tenements near where the shooting occurred the Inspector learned that Imbergano had recently had a dispute with a resident in the neighborhood over the ownership of some property. Imbergano, it was said, owned the property where he was killed and also a tenement house at 311 East Seventy-third Street.

Safe in Brooklyn Robbed of $600.

Robbery of a safe in the office of John M. Halloran, a dealer in building materials, at 2,121 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, last Thursday night, news of which had not been given out by the police, became known yesterday. The robbers wrecked the safe with a crow bar and took $600.

POLICEMAN SHOT, KILLS ASSAILANT

PRAISED BY McLAUGHLIN

Brought to his knees by a shot from a hold-up man's pistol, Patrolman John F. Cooke of the West 126d Street Station steadied himself and fired two shots at his assailant yesterday morning at 124th Street and Seventh Avenue. The first shot struck the robber in the leg, the second one hit him in the abdomen and both patrolman and robber toppled to the sidewalk. The hold-up man, later learned to be Michael McDonald, died soon after being taken to Harlem Hospital.

The duel followed a hold-up in an A. & P. store at 1,482 Fifth Avenue at 8:10 o'clock. John Hutchinson, 3,927 Seaton Avenue, the Bronx, manager of the store, had just opened the front door and was arranging his display inside the store. A man entered and asked for a bottle of near beer. Hutchinson turned from the ice box to face a pistol. The hold-up man ordered, "Hands up." Instead Hutchinson threw the bottle. As he did the robber fired, the bullet striking the store manager in the chin, ranging upward and lodging in the muscles of his cheek.

The robber walked rapidly out and turned west on 119th Street. The shot attracted a large crowd, causing general confusion. However, a taxicab chauffeur, Isadore Rosenberg, 124 East 117th Street, quietly followed the man whom he had seen leave the store, watching his chance to call a policeman.

In the meantime a telephone call had been sent to the police. Lieutenant John Baxter of the West 123d Street Station sent Sergeant Peter J. McGowan to go to the scene and other men to start a hunt for the fugitive on the basis of a vague description furnished. Sergeant McGowan could not learn what direction the robber had gone so he took Hutchinson to the Hospital for Joint Diseases at Madison Avenue and 124th Street.

Rosenberg, meanwhile, had continued to trail the hold-up man to Lenox Avenue, north to 120th Street, then to Seventh Avenue and north again. Patrolman Cooke, on motor patrol in a police Ford, stopped at the corner of 123d Street and Seventh Avenue to pick up Patrolman Patrick Sheehan. Rosenberg approached them and said, "I think that's the man that stuck up the store on Fifth Avenue," pointing to McDonald, who was walking beside a negro.

The policemen jumped from the Ford at 124th Street. Sheehan grabbed the negro as Cooke went after McDonald. McDonald faced about, hitched his shoulder to expose his pistol, which was slung on a cord down his arm, and fired point blank at Cooke, who sagged to his knees. The patrolman returned the fire and McDonald dropped.

Detectives Joseph Connors and Rudolph Unger, out investigating the robbery, were a block below when they saw the patrolmen leave the car and hurried toward them. One of the detectives stepped on McDonald's hand to prevent him from firing again. Both of the wounded men were removed to the hospital, where McDonald died ten minutes later. He gave his name, but refused other information. Finger prints were taken, but last night the police had not found any previous arrests recorded against McDonald. He was about 45 years old.

Carried Pistol in Sleeve.

The pistol which McDonald used was a .38-calibre of Spanish make. He carried it slung on a piece of cord which was looped over his shoulder and down his sleeve. When not in use the pistol was suspended under the coat sleeve and handy for instant use. It was this means of carrying a pistol which four years ago enabled Luther Boddy, a negro, to kill two detectives who were taking him to the station house after they had searched him for weapons.

It was said last night that Hutchinson's wound was extremely painful, but not dangerous. No attempt was made to probe for the bullet which struck Cooke pending development of X-ray plates. Doctors said that Cooke had an excellent chance for recovery, explaining that although the bullet entered above the heart it took an upward, rather than a downward course.

Cooke wounded a hold-up man on the night of Dec. 31, 1924, after a chase which started at Seventh Avenue and 132d Street and ended at Ninety-eighth Street and Columbus Avenue. Three men had held up the drug store of Samuel Landau and jumped into a taxicab in front of the store and fled. The car owner followed in another cab and met Patrolman Cooke, who took up the chase and was joined by Captain James Wall in a department car. After a wild race through Harlem and the upper west side the robbers' car was wrecked and they fled on foot. Cooke brought one of them down with a bullet in the hip.

Captain James Wall of the West 123d Street Station said last night that he had recommended in his report to Commissioner McLaughlin that both Sheehan and Cooke receive a commendation for their work yesterday.

Patrolman Cooke, who lives at 429 East 166th Street, entered the department two years ago, coming from the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, where he was a signal repairman. He is married and has a daughter 5 years old. His wife visited him at the hospital yesterday, but he was unable to talk to her. He smiled encouragingly and said, "I'll be all right," when physicians forbade him to talk.

POLICEMAN BACK ON POST.

West New York Member Apologizes to Chief and Is Restored to Duty.

Alfred Abel, a West New York policeman, who was suspended because of his charge that Chief Charles Hangley of the West New York Police had been responsible for the disappearance of two barrels of beer left over from the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association banquet on July 17, was reinstated yesterday in prospect of the publication in a newspaper today of an apology.

The apology read in part as follows:

"I hereby state and have already stated before the Police Committee that I have the highest respect for your integrity, that I never intentionally made any remarks that would charge you with any kind of theft. If as a result of a talk that was had between me and my superior officer it was gathered by him that I made such a statement attacking your character, I take this opportunity to apologize to you."

COOLIDGE WILL HEAR KELLOGG ON MEXICO

Stiffer Policy Thought Possible if Situation in Southern Republic Changes.

Special to The New York Times.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Developments in the foreign field will be brought to the attention of President Coolidge next week when Secretary of State Kellogg will be at White Pine Camp.

Although the President has not been cut off from the important moves that have a bearing upon our foreign relations, as he receives daily dispatches and letters from the State Department, yet he has not had an intimate talk with Mr. Kellogg with a view to defining a new or stiffer policy if this be necessary.

It is expected that the conference will deal with the Mexican situation particularly, as this is the only matter of pressing moment now before the State Department.

Before he comes here Secretary Kellogg will have received the committee of the Knights of Columbus and heard their protest and demands in regard to this country's attitude toward Mexico.

It was explained here today that the Chairman of this committee had been told to present his protest to the State Department in the regular way.

This is the course President Coolidge follows in all such matters, but in this case the committee desires to discuss several questions with him. If, after having consulted the Secretary of State, the Knights' committee still wishes to see the President, it was indicated that an appointment would be made.

The President feels, however, that the State Department can deal adequately with the protest and transmit to him any recommendations it may deem essential.

Today, as on the previous day, the telephone and telegraph wires were busy transmitting messages between here and Washington. Reports to the effect that there had been developments in Mexico that might call for a different policy and an emphatic note were denied.

According to one report, American citizens had suffered outrages in Mexico, but it was said that American interests had not been violated in Mexico since the conflict between the State and Church arose.

By the time Secretary Kellogg arrives here it is thought that the Mexican situation will have developed to a point where it will be possible for the President to form definite conclusions on our policy toward Mexico. So far in the internal struggle there ours has been a "hands-off" policy.

One possibility of the present internal Mexican situation is that this Government may find it necessary to press for a solution of the land and oil laws as they relate to American interests.

While Ambassador Sheffield is not scheduled to come here to see the President, there is reason to believe that if he arrives in this country about the time Secretary Mallogg is at the Summer White House he may come here to make his report and confer with the President at the same time as the Secretary.

Merchant Held Incommunicado for Six Days—State Department Protest Is Expected.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—Friends of J. H. Grande, an American who is engaged in the banana business here, were alarmed over his mysterious disappearance and a thorough search of Mexico City finally located him today at police headquarters where he has been held incommunicado for the past six days.

The American Consulate through friends located Mr. Grande and sent an American lawyer, Erby Swift, to consult with the chief of police.

Mr. Grande is well known in Los Angeles, Cal. A group of government officials lost investments through the failure to sell a shipment of fruit at the right price and this is believed to be the cause of the American citizen being held incommunicado in violation of the Mexican Constitution.

It is expected that the American State Department will make a strong protest against the treatment of Mr. Grande.

QUESTION HELD DOMESTIC

But Insistence of A. F. of L. on Religious Freedom Is Noted in Statement by Its President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The American Federation of Labor disclaims all responsibility for the support which the Mexican Federation of Labor has been giving President Calles in his conflict with the Catholic Church, according to a statement issued here tonight by William Green, President of the American Federation.

President Green said that the American Federation greatly deplores the existing situation in Mexico and he voiced the hope that some "basis of accommodation" might be found "so that a constructive and satisfactory program may be agreed upon and peace and tranquility established between the contending forces."

The American Federation has had nothing whatever to do with the religious policy of the Mexican Federation of Labor, he said, for it neither controls nor directs the work of that organization.

Question Held to Be Domestic.

"While the whole situation may be viewed with feelings of apprehension," the statement said, "the American Federation of Labor has refrained from interfering in the internal and domestic policies of the Mexican nation.

"We regard the domestic and internal policies of another nation as a part of their own problems. Whatever wrong may exist and whatever injustice may be practiced can only be remedied by the people who make up the nation.

The statement says that the right to deal with their own domestic problems must be conceded to other nations and continues, in part:

"But, in considering the exercise of this right, it seems quite pertinent to reiterate the attitude of the American Federation of Labor toward the principle of religious freedom. This is a fundamental principle with the American Federation of Labor.

"We guarantee the exercise of freedom without interference from the American Federation of Labor to all members in their choice of religious beliefs and in the exercise of their right to worship in accordance with the dictates of their conscience.

"The success of the American Federation of Labor has been largely due to a strict adherence to and observance of the great fundamental principle of religious freedom.

Says Interest Is Economic.

"The interest of the American Federation of Labor in the Republic of Mexico has been confined exclusively to economic and industrial affairs.

"We have endeavored to instill in the hearts and minds of the Mexican working people the principles and philosophy of the American Federation of Labor.

"We have sought to extend such assistance as we might be able to the Mexican working people in promoting their standards of living and in the advancement of their economic and industrial welfare.

"The Mexican Federation of Labor is an autonomous body, a unit of the Pan-American Federation of Labor.

"If the Mexican Federation of Labor decided to give its support to the Mexican Government in the enforcement of Mexican Constitution affecting religious matters, the American Federation of Labor has no power or authority to interfere with such decision.

"We have not given approval or support to the Mexican Federation of Labor in any policy which it may have adopted or in any decisions which it may have made to support the Government in the present situation.

"We greatly deplore the present situation existing in Mexico. Only the exercise of reason, of toleration and sound judgment can bring about a settlement."

FREEMASONRY IS ACCUSED.

It Caused "Religious Persecution" in Mexico, Roman Paper Says.

ROME, Aug. 11 (AP).—International Freemasonry is responsible for the Mexican Government's "tyrannical religious persecution," says the semi-official Tribuna in a vigorous criticism today of the Calles Government.

"The Mexican Government's measures against the Catholics, which have reached a most odious and exasperating form, are not justifiable by the necessity of a defense against the Church," the paper says.

"It is a Masonic procedure, obeying without restraint the fundamental canons for the negation of all religious principles. International Freemasonry has achieved an integral application of its program in Mexico."

30 EXECUTED IN MEXICO, ARCHBISHOP REPORTS

They Were Put to Death for Leading Revolt, He Declares —Puts Dead in Fight at 50.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11 (AP).—Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, who has arrived from Michoacan, has informed the Archbishopric here that two Catholic priests and between twenty-seven and thirty-seven Catholic citizens were executed by the military authorities on Aug. 1 and 2 on a charge of heading an uprising growing out of the religious situation.

The Archbishop reported that the disturbances occurred in three towns in the States of Michoacan and Guanajuato. A battle between soldiers and citizens lasted for a day in the town of Zahuayo, Michoacan. The Archbishop estimated that probably about fifty persons were killed in the battle.

The other two towns where disturbances occurred were Ascmbaro and Irapuato in the State of Guanajuato.

The Department of the Interior, however, announces that it has no knowledge of the incidents mentioned by the prelate.

Archbishop Ruiz y Flores said that the people of Zahuayo refused to deliver the Catholic churches to the municipal committees appointed to take them over after the priests had ceased to function on July 31.

A group of fifty soldiers arrived from a near-by garrison and were fired upon by the people, who took up positions in the church towers and house roofs and engaged in a day's exchange of shots. The next day Federal reinforcements arrived and subdued the Catholics. The soldiers then executed two priests and the leaders of the citizens.

The Archbishop said that the people at Acambaro also refused to turn over their churches. Two visiting Government engineers who attempted to assist the local officials were killed by the crowd and their bodies hacked almost to pieces.

The priests vainly appealed to the crowd to desist. Federal troops then arrived and executed three, and possibly more, of the leaders. All Catholic priests fled and the authorities are searching for them.

The Archbishop said that at Irapuato a Mexican Protestant woman taunted the Catholics as their services ceased, whereupon the crowd killed her and set fire to several residences of Protestants. Federal troops then arrived and executed three or four leaders of the mob.

After these troubles, Archbishop Ruiz y Flores reported, the States of Michoacan and Guanajuato became quiet. He said that he himself had not fled to Mexico City, but was merely here to discuss matters with the Episcopate.

Special dispatches from Puebla state that the Catholic leader, Eduardo Tamariz Oropesa, had been arrested on a charge of sedition. Police searched his residence and reported that they had found manifestos of the League for the Defense of Religious Liberty, the organization which initiated the economic boycott.

Special dispatches from Guadalajara say that the local court has "consigned," that is preferred, formal charges and held for trial, twenty persons, supposedly Catholics, said to be leaders of demonstrations there.

More than fifty have been held for further examination and 150 released. The charges against them are based on demonstrations which occurred when the religious regulations became effective.

The wife of Arturo Ceniceros Pena, Director of Correo del Centro of Leon, the State of Guanajuato, has sent a telegram to Excelsior saying that her husband has been arrested.

His arrest is supposedly for articles in his newspaper concerning the religious situation, but Señora Pena says that she fears it was inspired by a political "frame-up."

Students in Cuba Support Calles.

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 11 (AP).—The Students' Federation has sent a message to President Calles of Mexico expressing support of his policy in the religious situation. The Federation has also requested authority to hold a parade and demonstration on Sunday in support of the Mexican Government.

residences and business houses, chiefly in the State of Michoacan and Guanajuato.

This property, denouncers declare, is really owned by the Catholic Church or its prelates, but its title appears in the names of various private citizens.

Business depression, resulting in large measure from the economic boycott called by the League for the Defense of Religious Liberty as a protest against the Government's religious regulations, continued today.

The silver exchange ranged between a discount of 4 and 4¼ per cent., averaging about 4.20, the same as yesterday.

With no prospects of an agreement between the Catholic Episcopate and the Government, many business men fear that a prolonged continuance of the boycott may cause severe losses. Some of them still think, however, that the Government can endure the situation for a long time without being forced to yield.

It is understood that the committee of financial experts appointed by Secretary of the Treasury Pani to study the financial and economic depression sees little prospect of an immediate solution.

One of the fundamental difficulties in the financial situation is that Mexico produces so little of what it consumes. For example, it imports a large part of the butter, eggs and foodstuffs used in the country, where the potential possibilities of production of such commodities are almost unlimited.

Bishops Address Americans.

The Catholic Episcopate, in the name of "elemental justice," has issued a long statement addressed to the American people to endeavor to refute "false statements and imputations" in which Mexican Government officials and others have told American newspapers that Mexican Catholics are to blame for the present controversy.

The statement denies Catholic responsibility for the situation. It cites in detail the restrictions of the religious clauses in the Constitution and says these make impossible the life of the Catholic Church in Mexico. It also says the Church is seeking only to have the Constitution amended if we are forced to defend, we will not be an obstacle to a settlement. We have already told President Calles this through other channels."

President Calles's charges that the Catholic Church is intolerant, that it has kept the Mexican people ignorant, that it covets wealth and that it has fomented revolutions brought a denial from the Episcopate.

The Bishop's statement says that the Church devotes all of its possessions to acts of the Church, such as charity, education and beneficence.

The Church does not covet power, but covets only liberty. It has never provoked a single Mexican revolution, the statement says.

The Church commands Catholics to obey Governmental authorities, but if the Government's laws violate the laws of God, it is its duty to disobey them, because God and conscience are above everything, the Bishops declare.

The devotion shown to the Church in Latin-American countries disproves the President's statement that the Church has been a calamity throughout Latin America, the statement concludes.

Slim Hope Based on Congress.

The controversy between the Government and the Church over the Government's religious regulations showed no signs of lessening today.

The "battle of words," as it is being characterized here owing to the statements of the Catholic Episcopate regarding its stand and the Government's reiteration of its policy, was still in progress, seemingly with no prospects at present of anything more dangerous than words being used.

The Government and the Episcopate continue unyielding in their respective declarations that there will be no modification in nor acceptance of the religious regulations.

Hope, although it is considered slim, persists that the new Congress in September may modify the regulations but it is said that unless President Calles, who controls the legislative body, softens in his attitude, which at present he is giving no signs of doing, it seems that Congressional relief is doubtful.

Some relief is expressed over the abandonment of joint debates by Government and religious leaders on the religious situation. These debates had been drawing big crowds. The arguments were becoming so warm and the feeling so intense that it was feared serious clashes might develop if they were continued.

Hereafter those supporting or opposing the Government's religious policy will conduct their debates through newspaper columns instead of at public meetings.

SIMPSON TO KEEP HALL CLUES SECRET

Silence to Be the Prosecutor's Policy Because of "Leaks"—Denies Inquiry Is Costly.

ARRESTS NOW UNLIKELY

Testimony of 40 Witnesses Being Checked Up—Report Mrs. Hall Planned Divorce Called 'Bunk.'

After nine witnesses had been examined yesterday in the renewed investigation of the slaying of the Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills four years ago, Assistant Attorney General Alexander Simpson and those associated with him in the inquiry announced that silence would henceforth be the tactics of the State.

Disclosure of yesterday's plans for two arrests, as revealed on Tuesday night by one of the investigators, coupled with publication of testimony given by various witnesses were the reasons advanced for the muting of the investigators.

Senator Simpson, Inspector John Underwood, Public Safety Commissioner John Beggans and Chief Patrick Hayes, who is supervising the inquiry, conferred in the Jersey City Court House. They went over the signed statements of forty witnesses.

Says Publicity Hampers Them.

At the end of the conference, Mr. Simpson issued this statement:

"I have talked to Inspector Underwood of the Jersey City Police Department, who is in local charge at Somerville, N. J., and I have also talked to our Commissioner of Public Safety, John Beggans, who is the Inspector's superior, and they both agree, and I agree with them, that publication of the statements of witnesses, which have been signed, is inimical to the proper investigation of this case, and only warns persons who may be interested against the State.

"The Jersey City police are not making public any evidence they obtain until the proper time. Among other propaganda to stop this investigation is the propaganda of excessive expenses—that it will cost $100,000, &c. This is untrue. The expense will be practically negligible.

"We have obtained information as to the whereabouts of the bullets found in the body of Mrs. Mills. They will be turned over to an expert for examination. I cannot tell at present where the bullets were located."

Senator Simpson said that detectives were still busy interviewing witnesses. He added that he was pleased with the pace of the inquiry. He said that he had been told by Inspector Underwood that about ten more witnesses were to be examined and that when their stories were obtained there would be another conference.

Undecided on Next Move.

"Some time tomorrow," he continued, "or on Friday, we should know what our next move in the case will be. I have arranged for a conference in my office Friday morning with the same officials who were here this morning. We will go over the evidence as we have it up to then and we ought to know just what turn the investigation will take."

He was asked what his step would be if the evidence failed to support the charge of murder brought against Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain clergyman, who is at liberty in bail of $15,000.

"I would be quick to state that fact," he said. "I will be equally prompt to state we have a case should the evidence warrant my making such an assertion."

C. Russell Gildersleeve, a former member of Dr. Hall's congregation, who was quoted in yesterday's TIMES as saying after he had been examined as a witness on Tuesday that because he could not make statements which fitted in with the theories of his interrogators Prosecutor Bergen and detectives tried to browbeat him and threatened to put him in jail, declared yesterday in a written statement that he had been misquoted. His statement follows:

"The statements attributed to and about me in the press are grossly inaccurate and misleading. As a witness I am of no importance in the Hall-Mills inquiry and therefore can consistently and emphatically state that I bear no ill-will nor prejudice toward any person or persons involved, directly or indirectly in the investigation, including the members of the prosecution."

Mr. Simpson said he would not countenance any brutal methods in questioning witnesses.

"The police don't have to browbeat witnesses," he declared. "All they are trying to get is accurate information."

When he was asked about the arrests which had been predicted for yesterday, he said:

"That is a matter you will have to ascertain from the police at Somerville. They are handling that end of the prosecution."

No Arrests, Inspector Says.

Major Mark O. Kimberling, at Somerville, said he knew nothing about them. Inspector Underwood, after the conference in Jersey City, reached Somerville and said there would be no arrests. The Major then said, and made it clear that he was "not taking this action on my own initiative," that he had been directed not to give out any evidence and to conceal the names of witnesses in the future.

"The Senator," he explained, "said that there were two or three 'leaks' of information somewhere, which he had been unable to trace."

Senator Simpson later admitted that he had decided that silence would be the best policy of his investigators, but said that he saw no objection to witnesses' names being made public.

Before the order directing Major Kimberling to withhold information came through from Senator Simpson, the Major had made public the names of yesterday's witnesses.

The first witness examined was Elmer Boyd, managing editor of The New Brunswick Home News. Mr. Boyd said later that he was asked about a telephone call made from his office to the home of Mrs. Edwin Carpender, a cousin of Mrs. Hall, shortly after the bodies were found. He explained that he had telephoned Mrs. Carpender's home, rather than the Hall home, as he thought the distressing news could best be communicated by a relative.

Charles Jones, whose home is near the Phillips farm, where the murders were committed, was said to have told of hearing shots on the night of the crime.

Other witnesses were:

Dr. John F. Anderson, director of the Squibb Laboratories, who analysed the soil where the bodies were found and gave it as his belief that the crime was committed there.

Cedric Paulus, now chauffeur for the Hall family, who saw a light late on the murder night in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, of which the dead minister was rector.

Dr. J. Harry Loehline, a veterinarian, who identified Dr. Hall's body.

W. F. Randolph, who was passing along Easton Avenue and heard shots on the night of the slaying.

Henry Mills, brother-in-law of Mrs. Mills.

Miss Jessie Jamieson, organist in St. John's Church, who was supposed to have noticed the bond between Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills.

The witnesses were questioned by Major Kimberling, Inspector Underwood, Captain John Torpey, Lieutenant Walter Cieciuch and Sergeant Joseph O'Neill. The examinations lasted from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Told of Finding Buckle.

It was learned that a man named Koch had written to the investigators saying that a week after the murder he had found a woman's silver shoe buckle near the scene. The buckle was decorated with an imitation diamond. The letter writer gave an address in the Garretson Beach section of Brooklyn. He was not known there.

Timothy N. Pfeiffer of counsel for Mrs. Hall, denied that the revolver taken from "Willie" Stevens, brother of Mrs. Hall, four years ago, had been returned to him. The attorney said the revolver had not been seen by Stevens since it was taken away. Mr. Pfeiffer also said that the rector's cuff links and two of Mrs. Hall's coats had never been returned.

A spokesman for the Hall family said that reports of a projected divorce in the family before the murders was "pure bunk." He added:

"If you knew Mrs. Hall as well as I do it would not seem at all peculiar that, whether or not there was gossip outside, none of it reached her ears. Her dignity and reserve make it obvious to her friends that she would be the last person to whom any one would have mentioned anything of the sort."

No Clues from Him, Mills Says.

"If the prosecutor has anything up his sleeve that is going to solve the Hall-Mills murder he hasn't got it from the Mills family, because they don't know anything about it." Henry Mills thus summarized his contribution to the evidence following his return to New Brunswick from Somerville.

Mills was questioned for more than half an hour. After his return he spent the afternoon painting the tin roof of his house.

"They asked me what I knew about the case and I told them 'nothing,'" he said. "But I told them one thing, and that was that my brother, Jimmie, never knew much about it either. She had him buffaloed. Have you seen Charlotte? Well, she's your heredity for you. Why, she's her mother all over again. I remember Eleanor used to leave Jimmie to get his own Sunday dinner."

"This," said Henry, in explaining the case as it appeared to the Mills family, "was just a simple little love affair which ended in a terrible tragedy. I always thought a lot of Dr. Hall. He had a lot of personality and was a great mixer, and Eleanor was an attractive woman, and she certainly did a lot of church work. There never was anything definite against them before the murders.

"Jimmie was always kind of slow and easy going, and she used to spend all her time at the church instead of at the home."

"I never did believe that Mrs. Hall did it or knew anything about who did it."

BOY KEPT CHAINED, NOW HAS VANISHED

Freed by Police on Neighbors' Pleas—Mother Says He Is Ungovernable.

The police in Newark released Salvatore Rossetti, 8-year-old "ungovernable" son of Mr. and Mrs. Luigi Rossetti, from the shackles that chained him to a bootblack stand yesterday afternoon only to have a search for a lost child on their hands last night.

Neighbors had complained to the police about the treatment the boy received. His father, it was said, fastened him each morning with a three-foot chain and collar and then went off to work, leaving the child in bondage until nightfall.

Acting on the complaints, the police went into the yard where Salvatore was fastened and cut the collar. The lad bolted over the nearest fence and was still missing late in the evening.

The boy's mother told the police that her son was "ungovernable" and had run away from home on several occasions. She said she had nine other children, all of whom were quite exemplary. The case was reported to the Children's Aid Society.

SPAIN SIGNS FOUR TREATIES.

Agreements Are Made With Mexico, Guatemala, Italy and France.

MADRID, Aug. 11.—The Government in the last few days signed four treaties with different countries, which demonstrates the official intervention is policy in economic matters is on a level with its pacific international politics. The treaty with Mexico creates a special Hispano-American commission to consider claims of Spanish citizens who suffered losses from 1910 to 1920.

Another treaty relates to industrial rights between Spain and Guatemala, guaranteeing patent and trade-mark rights, until now unprotected.

Duties and taxes paid by French companies in Spain and Spanish companies in France are agreed upon in a third important treaty.

The treaty of arbitration between Italy and Spain is especially well received as indicating close cooperation between the two countries most interested in the Mediterranean. Several such treaties are planned by Spain. A similar one was entered into with Belgium, in which both countries agree to submit to arbitration all questions which may arise in the development of trade.

MASS MEETING AT HORNELL

Governor Stresses Municipal Economy in His Address to Large Crowd.

Special to The New York Times.

HORNELL, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Governor Smith's attempt to make an official tour of State institutions assumed today, through no fault of the Governor's, the characteristics of a campaign tour, with the usual accompaniment of flags, oratory, local committees and parades, ending tonight in the armory here with a mass meeting so large that many citizens could not get into the hall.

It is significant that on this trip he will enter several of the eight counties which he has never visited, although he has been Governor for nearly six years.

The Governor himself made it plain in Corning today that some sections of the State might appear to have been slighted and he explained why. It was the Governor, too, who set eight as the number of counties which he had never visited. One is Steuben. Today he made five stops in Steuben, one being in the county seat, Bath. In three places he made speeches. They were short, innocuous and non-political. But in all five places the people for the first time had a chance to see and greet him, and they turned out by the thousands.

Governor Smith had a long day of it. He arose in Binghamton at 7 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, and visited the State hospital there, going through it with Dr. William C. Garvin, the superintendent. He found the institution, he said later, in excellent condition. He returned to the Arlington Hotel and left there just before 10 o'clock for the day's tour. The principal stop was to have been at the Soldiers and Sailors' Home in Bath.

Everybody Gets a Pair of Shoes.

But the Governor was not to get away so easily. A former member of Congress, William H. Hill, waylaid the party and took them to one of the Endicott-Johnson shoe stores, where each member of the party was presented with a pair of shoes on behalf of George F. Johnson. "Naturally, the party stopped at Mr. Johnson's beautiful place in Endicott City to thank him.

Then, just outside of Elmira, a committee met the party, and with a police escort the Governor and others were taken in tow. On the local committee were Mayor David M. Heller, District Attorney Walter B. Herendeen, Florence J. Sullivan, Chairman of the Democratic County Committee; Daniel Sheehan, member of the State Committee, and Martin Purtell, Secretary of the County Committee.

A stop of twenty minutes was made, and then the party hurried on to Corning. There the streets were decorated with flags and the entire population was out to greet the Governor.

After the local band and the local committee had done the honors, the Governor spoke briefly. He said that one reason he had never been in Corning, or even Steuben County, and the seven others he had never visited, was because of the pressure of official business. That includes the necessity of going to New York City frequently, because about half the problems that arise to confront the State Administration centre there.

Girl Reporter Wants a Scoop.

As he was leaving a young woman reporter, Miss Mildred Kettyle, asked him:

"Are you going to run for President? I would like to have a scoop on the New York newspapers."

The Governor smiled and replied:

"If I ever have an important announcement to make in Corning I will give it to you."

In Bath another tremendous crowd awaited Governor Smith, and he made another speech, also introducing to the crowd the members of his family. It was then late in the afternoon and the party had not stopped for lunch. The Governor's son, Alfred Jr., asked "When do we eat?"

A drive of fifteen miles along the shore of Lake Keuka brought the party to the Summer home of A. J. Deer, where luncheon was served. It was then after 4 P. M.

The Governor officiated as starter of the motor boat races on the lake, which had been delayed pending his coming and which were witnessed by 500 persons who had gathered to see the Governor and the races.

The first race was won by the motor boat "June," piloted by R. P. Jones of Buffalo, and the only passenger was Miss Catherine Smith, the Governor's youngest daughter.

From the Deer place—the coolest spot found on a day's drive—the party hurried on to Hornell, arriving here at 6:30 P. M., Standard Time.

A brief stop had been made at Hammondsport on the way, and there was a great crowd there, but little time for the Governor to speak.

Here in Hornell the streets were lined with crowds. There was a band and a company of the National Guard and the Order of Elks turned out in force to welcome the State's Chief Executive. The Governor was driven to the Sherman Hotel for dinner and spoke this evening in the armory, ostensibly to the Automobile Club, but really to the greater part of the population.

Makes Speech on Economy.

Announcing at the outset that he would not make a political speech, Governor Smith nevertheless warned the 1,000 persons gathered to hear him that within a few weeks they would be hearing from campaign orators of the extravagance of the Administration at Albany, and told his hearers that these charges would be made either by men who knew nothing of the subject or the very legislators who have to appropriate the money for State expenses. Then the Governor launched into an explanation of the high cost of government and told the audience not to believe any one who promised to reduce the cost of government, adding, "The cost of government is not going to be cheaper—it will be a little dearer every year."

The Governor told the Steuben County folks that they had not shown the proper interest in voting on the amendment last year. Referring to the possibility of a tax on gasoline, he emphasized the need of curtailing municipal expenses and the elimination of unnecessary municipal officials, asserting that if gasoline was taxed the proceeds should go solely to the construction and maintenance of highways and bridges, and that no part should be diverted to municipal uses.

Held Up Twice by Same Train.

He spoke both here and in Bath on grade-crossings, as it chanced that at the village of Painted Post he was held up twice by the same slow freight train, and lost fully an hour's time. The road curved so that the Governor's party, after waiting twenty minutes, passed round the caboose at one crossing, only to run into the middle of the train five minutes later at a second grade crossing.

The stop at the Soldiers and Sailors' Home was made on the trip from the Deer place to Hornell. The Governor went through the institution, in which there are 210 veterans.

The Governor spoke to virtually all of the sixty men in the hospital. The name of the place will be changed by legislative enactment on Jan. 1 to the State Camp for Veterans.

Tomorrow Governor Smith will visit Allegany Park in the course of his tour of inspection.

On Friday he will go to Chautauqua and make an address before the assembly.

THIRTY HURT IN CAR CRASH.

Trolley, With Deranged Brakes, Backs Down Hill into Another.

Thirty people were slightly injured last evening in Brooklyn when an empty Smith Street trolley car, being taken to the repair shops with a defective brake, backed down a hill on Gravesend Avenue near Greenwood Avenue and crashed into a loaded car.

Doctors from Kings County Hospital treated the injured. They were:

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—A strange story of an entire race of man-eating lions, whose ancestors killed men only by accident, but who themselves prefer human flesh because of the hereditary taint now in their blood, is contained in a report of the Chief Game Warden of the British Colony of Uganda, which was received in London today.

By a coincidence it has arrived just in time, it would appear, to corroborate the result of experiments in the breeding of rats, announced at yesterday's meeting of the British Association by Professor McDougall of Harvard. McDougall trained generation after generation of rats to find out their way from a water tank until their descendants showed a hereditary tendency to seek the right outlet.

The lions of the Sanga district of Ankole, which ordinarily would share the instinctive fear of man felt by the rest of their species, do not breed true to type, as they are man-eaters for the reason that their forebears were driven by accident or hunger in a period of starvation, to taste human blood.

They have caused a reign of terror, reports the game warden on the Obetara-Masaia Road, and an appalling death roll has resulted. One lion alone was responsible for eighty-four deaths and another for more than forty kills before they were destroyed.

"When lions collectively take to man killing," he reports, "the taint in their blood is passed on to their offspring although new generations may not necessarily display man-killing tendencies from birth.

The warden writes that these Sanga lions present a very different problem from that of the usual type of man-eater—an old beast with diseased teeth or suffering from some deformity which prevents it hunting in the natural way.

Such beasts are driven by hunger to a human habitation, and once a lion tastes human blood its desire for more is insatiable. The solitary man-eaters, fortunately, seldom breed.

The Sanga lions are different. Originally they were virile breeding animals, in whose habitat a sudden reduction of game drove them to raid flocks and herds, and eventually to taste human blood.

It is now believed in the Game Department of Uganda that every lion in Sanga is a potential man-eater. They are regarded as akin to the bush lions of Tanganyika, which also are said to be man-eaters from birth.

In his concluding paragraph the game warden says:

"I might add that once a lion looses its instinctive fear of man it becomes a menace hard to eradicate. In this category I place the Sanga man-eaters as animals which kill human beings from inclination rather than from necessity, whereas the usual type of man-eater kills only from necessity."

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Three famous pictures, a Van Dyck valued at $200,000, a Velasquez valued at $43,000 and a Titian worth at least $143,000, have been stolen from the house of Señor Isidor Urzais, brother of the late Spanish Minister of Finance, according to a Daily Express dispatch from Madrid.

BAIL IN PISTOL CASE RAISED

Court Jumps Bond From $600 to $5,000 for Peter F. Gallagher.

When Assistant District Attorney Charles White told Magistrate Bernard J. Douras in the West Side Court yesterday that unlicensed gun-carrying was responsible for the shooting of so many policemen, bail of $500 in which Peter F. Gallagher of 370 Central Park West originally had been held for violation of the Sullivan law was increased to $5,000.

Gallagher, a building superintendent, had pleaded not guilty to the charge that he had three pistols in his apartment. One of .45 calibre, it was charged, had five bullets in it, a .32-calibre weapon had a like number of shells and another pistol of the latter calibre was empty. The Magistrate set tomorrow for a hearing of the case.

His arrest followed the complaint of his wife a week ago that Gallagher had threatened her and their two sons. When George Maguire, counsel for Gallagher, asked for the adjournment of the case the prosecutor denounced Gallagher as "a menace to society." Mr. Maguire said that Gallagher several years ago had a permit to possess the pistols, which, he added, his client kept merely as curios.

HELD UP BY FIVE WITH GUNS

Autoist Robbed Near Valhalla, N. Y. —Thieves Slash His Tires.

Special to The New York Times.

VALHALLA, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Five masked and armed men, using an automobile with license plates which, the State Police say, indicate that the owner is a Westchester County resident, held up a man who said he was Oliver Charlton, 292 Madison Avenue, New York City, and after robbing him of $30 slashed the tires of his automobile and sped away.

The hold-up took place on the State Road above the Kensico Dam, near here. Charlton was driving toward New York City shortly after midnight, when the five men darted from a machine at the side of the road, flourishing pistols. Charlton put on speed, but one man jumped on the running board and threatened to shoot him if he did not halt.

Two men rifled his pockets, while two others slashed the tires. They then fled, after warning Charlton not to move for ten minutes.

Charlton drove to the State Police station at Chappaqua, where a posse was immediately sent out. He gave the police the first two figures of the license plates of the other car.

SENDS STATE POLICE ON GAMBLING QUEST

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT FAILS

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Resort by Supreme Court Justice Timothy J. Hefferman to State troopers to serve subpoenas and the failure of habeas corpus proceedings to release the three incarcerated witnesses featured the Saratoga gambling inquiry today.

Sensational disclosures and dramatic situations, such as marked the taking of testimony for the petitioner, were lacking this afternoon when Justice Hefferman, appointed by Governor Smith to investigate the charges of wide open gambling with official sanction in Saratoga Springs, resumed the hearing at the court house in Ballston Spa. Peter A. Finley, the petitioner, has asked the removal from office of District Attorney Charles B. Andrus, Sheriff Arthur G. Wilmot and Dr. Arthur J. Leonard, Commissioner of Public Safety in Saratoga Springs.

That Justice Hefferman would not depend entirely upon county officials for assistance of a routine nature in the investigation was indicated when he placed in the hands of the State police a subpoena for Nathaniel Evans, proprietor of the Brook, a fashionable restaurant in the outside district of Saratoga Springs, which has been frequently mentioned during the present investigation as a gambling place. Other witnesses were subpoenaed by Deputy Sheriffs, and when failure to serve Evans and three or four others was reported, Justice Hefferman said:

"If the Saratoga County process servers cannot find the men then the State police will."

Clergyman a New Witness.

Although the respondents have started their case, Attorney C. L. McMahon, representing the petitioner, still has several witnesses to introduce, including those he has been unable to serve and another, said to be on his way from Philadelphia, whose name was not given. He is said to be a clergyman named Bishop, who, as representative of Canon Chase of the New York City League, is understood to have been in Saratoga Springs making an investigation of conditions following the filing of charges with the Governor.

Practically all of the witnesses this afternoon were called by the respondents to attack the credibility of Abraham Weinberg, one of the petitioner's chief witnesses, who testified to wide open gambling at several of the places named in the complaint. Weinberg is a private detective who operated here in the 1920 investigation, and several witnesses, including Wyman S. Bascom, District Attorney of Washington County, special prosecutor in 1920, for whom Weinberg worked at that time, swore they would not believe him under oath.

Failure of Habeas Corpus.

Sharing in interest with the progress of the investigation is the fate of Matthew J. Byrnes, James C. Fenwell and Almeron F. White, who were to be returned to the county jail at Ballston tonight after the refusal of Supreme Court Justice Charles E. Nichols at Cobleskill to release them from jail on a writ of habeas corpus. The men, all widely known in gambling circles, were committed to jail in contempt of court yesterday afternoon by Justice Hefferman when they refused to answer questions under oath.

Justice Hefferman at one time in the hearing today turned to Theodore A. Knapp, attorney for the incarcerated witnesses, and said:

"Did you deliberately have your clients swear to a falsehood when they said they were not detained by virtue of any mandate issued by a court or a Judge of the United States?"

Receiving no reply, Justice Hefferman added:

"You will need other writs of habeas corpus before you are through with this. I will attend to your case after Justice Nichols has finished with this matter."

Holds Hefferman Competent.

COBLESKILL, N. Y., Aug. 11 (AP).—Supreme Court Justice Nichols, after hearing arguments on a writ of habeas corpus here this afternoon on behalf of the three witnesses jailed for contempt in the Saratoga Springs gambling investigation, held that Justice Hefferman, under the Constitution has the power to conduct the investigation and to punish those who refuse to answer questions.

NEW CHANNEL MARK MISS BARRETT'S AIM

By ALEC RUTHERFORD.

day till the departure of her train for Germany.

The editor of La Phare tonight withdrew unreservedly his charge against Miss Ederle after seeing a statement signed by all the members of her party and by Miss Cannon, a rival swimmer, who was aboard the tug accompanying her.

Mme. Sion and Omer Perrault abandoned their attempts to swim the Channel last night because of sharks and bad weather.

The swimmers left Cape Gris-Nez accompanied by the tug Europe and trawler Salina. When four miles off shore those aboard were startled by sharks, which almost touched Mme. Sion, who decided to abandon the attempt after four hours in the water. The sea became so rough that a jazz band of five players was forced to desist. Thereupon an automatic piano was started.

M. Perrault fought pluckily against the elements but sharks repeatedly approached him. After six hours and forty minutes the sea grew so rough and the sharks so menacing that Perrault gave up.

GERMAN TO TRY CHANNEL.

Miss Cannon of Baltimore Also Will Attempt to Swim Across.

BOULOGNE, Aug. 11 (AP).—Spurred by the feat of Gertrude Ederle in swimming the English Channel in fourteen hours and thirty-one minutes, a German swimmer named Verkoffer has arrived at Calais with the avowed purpose of swimming the Channel in twelve hours.

With Mme. Sion of France and Omer Perrault of Canada forced to quit their Channel attempts early this morning the turbulent stretch of water today was free of swimmers.

Miss Lillian Cannon of Baltimore, who feels that she is in fit condition to beat Miss Ederle's record, hopes to start on Monday.

GERMANS AWAIT EDERLE.

Great Reception Prepared for Her at Stuttgart Today.

STUTTGART, Germany, Aug. 11 (AP). Thrilled by having one of their relatives the centre of world interest, numerous uncles, aunts, cousins and more distant kinsmen of Gertrude Ederle are eagerly awaiting the arrival tomorrow of the young swimmer who is the first woman ever to have conquered the English Channel.

The main celebration of Gertrude's visit to her grandmother in Bissinger will occur in the place where Gertrude's father was born and where nineteen of his brothers and sisters still live. Gertrude's grandmother, who is the owner of the Lamb's Inn, is 77 years old.

Grandmother Ederle still personally manages her farm and last year crossed the ocean to the United States to see her children and grandchildren.

When Miss Ederle leaves the train from Calais here tomorrow she will be welcomed by a representative of the city administration of Stuttgart and officials of swimming clubs and other athletic societies. They hope to persuade her to give an exhibition swim during her sojourn in Germany.

FINANCED MISS EDERLE.

Dudley Field Malone Advanced $5,000 for Channel Feat.

Dudley Field Malone, former Collector of the Port of New York and now a lawyer with offices in Paris and New York, returned last night on the French liner France with the news that he had financed Gertrude Ederle's expedition to swim the English Channel which had ended so triumphantly for her while he was crossing the Atlantic.

"I advanced $5,000 to pay the expenses of the trip to Europe and the training for the swim," he said, "and would have lost the money had she failed to accomplish the arduous feat.

"Last year the Women's Swimming Association paid Miss Ederle's expenses, but they had no more money. As her lawyer, I asked five friends to put up $1,000 each, but they declined, and I had sufficient faith in her courage and ability to risk it. She asked me to do so last winter when I met her at Miami Fla."

Mr. Malone said that before sailing for Havre on A 15, he telegraphed Miss Ederle to Boulogne:

"I do not think that you will give up before you reach the English shore, but if such a feeling should come to you think of your Irish lawyer and make the English shore."

Saturday evening, he said, the following wireless message came from Miss Ederle at Boulogne:

"Your little infant did it. Uncle Dudley. Love. Gertrude."

The lawyer said there was no longer any financial trouble for the young American swimmer, one contract had been signed for $7,500 with The Chicago Tribune, which would repay him for the $5,000 he advanced with $2,500 to spare.

He had also received fifteen wireless messages on the France from various companies in America offering big money for her appearance on stage, moving picture and lecture tours. Several firms offered large sums to use her name on candy boxes, liniments, patent foods, &c.

Mr. Malone added that when he advanced the $5,000 to Miss Ederle she agreed the money was to be repaid from sums received through contracts.

OFFERS PRIZE TO MISS EDERLE

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 11.—William Wrigley Jr. today issued an invitation to Gertrude Ederle to be the first human being to swim the 25-mile Catalina Channel.

Mr. Wrigley said he was setting aside $5,000 for Miss Ederle's project. This sum is intended to underwrite all expenses of her trip to the west coast and her training here.

"There are no strings on my offer," he declared. "The Catalina Channel never has been swum. I have been approached a dozen times in the past by swimmers who thought they could do it. I always declined to back them.

"It is only fair that this triumph should wait for the wonderful New York girl and be a strictly American triumph."

Mr. Wrigley said that the choice of time and place for the swim would be left to Miss Ederle, but that he thought some time between October and the Christmas holidays would be suitable.

MA FERGUSON STAYS IN PRIMARY RACE

HE BLAMES HER HUSBAND

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 11.—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson officially announced today that she will continue as a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination against Attorney General Dan Moody in the run-off primary Aug. 28, and also that she would not resign from office at adjournment of the special session of the Legislature called for Sept. 13.

She is continuing in the race, she said, with the Ku Klux Klan as the main issue, asserting that the showing made by Moody in the first primary was due to support of the Klan.

"My duty to my State at this time to continue as a candidate is far greater than my personal preference for private life," she announced. "God will give me courage to stand for the right in this contest and I ask the people everywhere to take up this gage of battle thrown down to us by the Ku Klux Klan and let us win a glorious victory."

Governor Ferguson issued a lengthy statement in which she declared that Moody had only called what he termed "Jim's bluff," and had not accepted her challenge to resign if defeated in the primary.

Says Klan Seeks Repeal of Law.

She asserted that the first election was irregularly conducted and illegal, and that the Ku Klux Klan was responsible for Moody's lead.

"In view of all that has happened," the Governor said, "I am quite well aware that this announcement will cause widespread comment. I know in advance that some of it will be favorable and some of it unfavorable."

She charges that the slogan, "Dan's the man," originated at the Waco conference of high Klan officials, presided over by H. W. Evans and the Texas Titans; that the Klan has already claimed the victory and that they will repeal the anti-mask law.

If re-elected, Mrs. Ferguson says, she will recommend that the Legislature make that law stronger and that the Klan register its membership in every county in Texas.

Statement by Moody.

In reply, Attorney General Moody issued a statement reading:

"The latest statement coming from the Executive Office, which was prepared by Mr. Ferguson, must certainly exhaust the patience of the people of Texas, and show even those who have followed him through all his vicissitudes his absolute lack of political sincerity and his utter faithlessness to his word.

"This playing fast and loose with the people of Texas must certainly be revolting to the sensibilities of high-minded citizens everywhere, and the time is surely here for the people of Texas to reclaim their Government from irresponsible control."

FOR REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN.

Eastern Headquarters to Be Opened at the McAlpin on Monday.

Representative John Q. Tilson of New Haven, Conn., Republican floor leader in the House, announced last night that Republican headquarters for the Eastern section of the country will be opened on Monday in the Hotel McAlpin. The territory extends east of the Ohio River and from Florida to Maine.

The headquarters will be known as the Speakers' Bureau of the Senatorial and Congressional Committee. Representative Tilson will be Chairman. His assistant will be J. R. McNinch.

REPUBLICANS TELL CONVENTION PLANS

National and Women's Clubs to Keep Open House for Gathering Sept. 27.

The Republican State Committee made public yesterday its plans for the State convention to be held at Madison Square Garden, Eighth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, on Sept. 27. Headquarters for the State Committee, Women's Division, and the candidates have been reserved at the Hotel McAlpin, Thirty-fourth Street and Broadway, and it was announced that accommodations could be obtained at the Hotel Martinique, Thirty-third Street and Broadway, which is under the same management as the McAlpin.

The National Republican Club, 54 West Fortieth Street, by resolution has extended the courtesy of the clubhouse to all delegates and alternates, State committeemen and others attending the convention. The Women's National Republican Club, 8 East Thirty-seventh Street, likewise also will welcome women delegates and alternate delegates, State committeewomen and other women visitors.

Tickets for the delegates and alternates will be distributed to the State committeemen at the Hotel McAlpin. The convention proceedings will be broadcast by station WMSG at Madison Square and station WMCA at the Hotel McAlpin.

CRISTMAN IS CONFIDENT.

Candidate for the Senate Sees Revolt Against Wadsworth.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Aug. 11.—F. W. Cristman of Herkimer, who is running for United States Senator against Senator Wadsworth, in a letter to a friend here declares:

"I greatly appreciate the efforts that are being put forth by the Christian people of New York State. I am receiving letters from nearly all sections of the State tendering support and telling me of the revolt against Senator Wadsworth.

"I greatly appreciate Senator Wadsworth's announcement of his position, which makes the issue so clean-cut that no one can be deceived, and feel sure that if the 'drys' vote on Nov. 2 as they are headed for at present, we will have nothing to fear and the victory will be a great one for law and order."

SEES UP-STATE FOR WAGNER

W. H. Kelley Says Justice's Candidacy for Senate Is Acceptable.

Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner's candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator received fresh impetus yesterday when William H. Kelley, Democratic leader of Syracuse, visited Tammany Hall and made it known that Justice Wagner would be acceptable to up-State Democrats. Mr. Kelley had a brief interview with George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall.

Mr. Olvany has had no conference with up-State leaders on the choice of a Democratic Senatorial candidate. Justice Wagner has said that if he is nominated he would resign from the bench to make an active race against Senator Wadsworth.

CALLS GOV. SMITH STRONG CANDIDATE

R. F. Angell Declares Survey of 14 States Shows His Religion No Barrier.

CITES OTHER HANDICAPS

Democratic Manager Says Tammany Hall Affiliation and Wetness Would Influence Many.

Raymond R. Angell, who managed the Democratic National Committee's headquarters in 1924 when John W. Davis was the Presidential candidate, a financial investigator, of 42 Cedar Street, in further summarizing his political observations made recently in fourteen States, expressed the opinion that if Governor Smith's religion alone would not keep him from making as strong a race as any other candidate the Democrats might nominate. Speaking of the objection that has been made to Governor Smith's religion, Mr. Angell said:

"I made a close study of the above subject in all of the fourteen States covered and I would like to publicly state that I do not believe Governor Smith's religion alone would or could keep him from making as strong a run as any other man the Democratic Party could nominate.

"The consensus of opinion of the local Democratic State and county leaders interviewed was that Governor Smith had three handicaps. First, the is a product of Tammany Hall; second, he is known as a wet, and third, his religion.

"The first objection is by far the most serious. Local newspapers have been picturing Tammany Hall as a gigantic political machine run by political bosses for thirty years, who cared nothing for right or wrong. The American farmer, who is free to live and do as he pleases, believes that machine politics are un-American and therefore Tammany Hall is a dangerous and undesirable organization. It is unfortunate that the above opinion has been allowed to exist all these years without some effort being made to correct it.

"Governor Smith is not the first man to suffer because of this condition. Mayor Gaynor was spoken of as Presidential timber before his death, but his connection with Tammany Hall was a barrier. This handicap should be corrected, but it would take more money that the Democratic Party can raise for publicity and speakers, to correct this wrong impression before the 1928 campaign.

"The second objection, the wet and dry issue, with the help of the farm relief sentiment is quite likely to divide the country politically in 1928.

"The Eastern States, known as the industrial East, have had prosperity since 1920, while the Western and Southern States have been laboring under an agricultural depression. Under the above conditions the Democratic leaders must figure that the prosperous East will vote to retain the present Administration, and that they must appeal to the dry West and South for votes.

"Another point that will influence is the fact that large voting States like Pennsylvania and New York seldom go Democratic in Presidential years. There Governor Smith, as a wet, is not likely to fit the needs of the national party leaders.

"His religious handicap will only influence a few of the older generation and a few who could be called religious fanatics.

Feel Handicap Is Too Great.

"Western and Southern party leaders have recognized Governor Smith's ability to organize and lead State Legislatures, and feel that he would make a good President if they could see some way of getting him elected. They do not feel that they want to throw away a Presidential election on a candidate that apparently has little chance to be elected. It is the feeling that he might overcome any one of the handicaps, but to expect him to overcome three is a little too much for even Governor Smith."

State Senator William L. Love, in a radio address broadcast last night by station WMCA, asserted that the attack made upon Governor Smith's religion by Bishop Jas. W. Leonard of the Methodist Church, would "act as a boomerang" and "help rather, than hinder," by focusing nationwide attention upon New York's "Governor of proven executive capacity whose career is a monument of achievement."

THREE HELD IN OIL ROBBERY

Arrested When Belgian Trading Co. Gets Back Last to $7,000 Shipment.

When Louis A. Banos, Vice President of the Belgian Trading Company, received a consignment of essential oils valued at $7,000, at his office at 211 Water Street yesterday afternoon, he recognized the goods as part of the loot that burglars had stolen from the company loft on July 8.

Detectives of the Oak Street Station traced the truck in which the oils were delivered and last night arrested three men charged with complicity in a ten-thousand-dollar oil burglary. They were described as Harry Fantis, 25 years old, of 213 West End Avenue; Jaymes Albeldas, 31 years old, of 301 West Washington Avenue, and George Martinez, 35 years old, a truckman, of 49 Monroe Street.

According to Detective Armstrong, Fantis had possession of the oils next in the manufacture of perfumes and soap, and got Albeldas to act as his agent in disposing of them. Albeldas is believed by the police to have unwittingly sold them back to the firm from which they were stolen.

Martinez, the truckman, at first declared he did not know the man who had given him the oils to deliver to the Belgian Trading Company, but later, police said, identified Fantis as the man. Both Fantis and Albeldas denied any connection with the theft.

SEIZE YOUTH FOR HOLD-UPS.

Police Also Charge Him With East Side Shooting.

Hyman Schnerderman, 19 years old, was arrested at 6 o'clock last evening at his home, 68 Mangin Street, by Detectives Mitchell and Whalen of the Clinton Street Station and taken to Police Headquarters, where he was held on charges of robbery and felonious assault. The detectives say the boy's arrest solves a series of small hold-ups on the east side and at least one shooting.

The youth is specifically charged with the shooting of Sam Harris, 20 years old, of 223 East Third Street, who was found last Monday night in a drug store at Elvington and Goerck Streets, with a bullet wound in his right lung. Harris, who is now in Gouverneur Hospital, refused all information about how he was wounded and Commissioner McLaughlin ordered detectives to make every effort to solve the case.

The detectives said that Harris was wounded by Hyman Schnerderman in the latter's home and that afterward a brother of the prisoner took Harris to the drug store where he was found. The police also say the prisoner confessed to holding up Abraham Slashower, a collector for the Metropolitan Insurance Company, in a hallway at 73 Mangin Street on July 6 and robbing him of $100.

MANY HIT TWO-THIRDS RULE.

Over Half of Democratic Committee Replying Oppose It.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP).—A majority of Democratic National Committee members who responded to a request from Clyde W. Herring, committeeman from Iowa for their views favor abolition of the two-thirds convention rule.

Reporting today to other committee members on his poll, Mr. Herring said one-third of the membership was noncommital, but that more than half who replied were wholeheartedly in favor of the nomination of Presidential candidates at national conventions by a majority vote.

Some members, he said, contend that the committee has no authority to change the system and that the issue must be passed upon by the convention itself.

Pick Schwartz for Assembly.

Republicans of the Sixth Assembly District, Brooklyn, last night designated Harry Schwartz as their candidate for the nomination for Assembly from that district. The meeting was held in the club house at 44 Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn.

HACKENSACK AUDIENCE FIGHTS THEATRE FIRE

A Hackensack theatre audience, smelling smoke last evening, proved that a theatre fire need not mean panic, by seizing the hose on the walls and becoming firemen rather than stampeding toward the doors.

About 10 o'clock there was trouble with the film at the new Cretona Theatre. George Koch, the operator, tried to fix it, but suddenly the film became ignited, and smoke began to pour from the projection room. Instead of getting excited the audience seized the hose, turned on the water, and then completely drenched the entire theatre, from people sitting in the back rows and the projecting room above to the orchestra pit near the screen. Instead of rushing to the street the audience strenuously objected when ordered by the manager to leave.

The Fire Department was called and three men climbed to the top of the projection room with a chemical hose. The fire was out but fumes from the burning films overcame all three, Captain Cyrus Tenque, Ralph Kirk and Andrew Lang, for a moment. They were quickly revived and were able to assist the other firemen in hailing water from the theatre rather than pour it in.

WALKER BACK AT DESK AFTER SHORT VACATION

"Never Felt Better," He Says—Expects Bus Franchise Action on Aug. 19.

Mayor Walker returned to the City Hall yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock from a two weeks' vacation at Dixville Notch, N. H., looking as if he had gained weight.

"I never felt better in my life," he said.

Except for one day when it rained, he said he spent every morning and afternoon on the golf links.

Upon his arrival he said there would be no meeting of the Board of Estimate until Aug. 19. The meeting at that time will be made contingent upon the publication of the analyses of bus franchise applications, which are being prepared by the Board of Transportation. The Mayor said he had been informed that the survey would be ready by the end of this week.

SPEED UP WORK FOR FONCK.

Assemblers of His Plane Strive to Finish Task Before Friday.

Special to The New York Times.

WESTBURY, L. I., Aug. 11.—Every effort is being made to complete the assembling of the Sikorsky biplane S-35-A, in which René Fonck is to attempt a transatlantic flight about Aug. 25, in time to permit a trial flight Friday. Fifty men have been working in shifts under the personal supervision of the French ace.

Today at Roosevelt Field, where the work is being done, confidence was expressed that the trial would be held as scheduled. A heavy thunderstorm late this afternoon caused fear for the safety of the craft. As a precaution against lightning, wires were stretched along its frame and grounded.

New Yorker Is Robbed in Virginia.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 11.—Robert Avon Tysor, 25, of 118 West Ninety-seventh Street, New York, was robbed today by two Philadelphia youths to whom he had given a lift while motoring from New York to his old home near Cumnock, N. C. The robbery occured on the Dex Bowling Green Road, eight miles north of Ashland, Va. After taking his gold watch and $28 in cash the youths hit him on the head, bound and gagged him, leaving him on the roadside, and drove off in his car toward Richmond. He was found, however, the Richmond police were notified and the men were intercepted as they drove into the city.

the hooded organization's national authority was reputed to favor the choice of L. Breckenridge Musgrave, who was running far behind on the face of the latest returns. Musgrave is credited with earning the gratitude of the Klan's national organization on account of his criticism of Senator Underwood, whose candidacy for the Democratic Presidential nomination in Madison Square Garden was one of the rallying points of the anti-Klan cause.

The outcome of the Alabama primaries indicates that the Klan is still strong in that State. Its dominance in this year's choice of Senator and Governor, equivalent to their election in November, is construed to mean that, with a Klan-controlled delegation in the next Democratic National Convention, Alabama's votes will be opposed to the nomination of Governor Smith. Klan sentiment in the State's delegation in the Madison Square Garden convention was not sufficient, however, to overcome State pride in its senior Senator in 1924, and the sonorous repetition of "Alabama casts twenty-four votes for Oscar W. Underwood" for more than 100 ballots was a trial to Klan nerves.

COOPER WINS IN OHIO.

Will Be the Republican Opponent of Donahey for Governor.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 11 (AP).—Myers Y. Cooper of Cincinnati is the Republican nominee for Governor of Ohio. His victory over Thad H. Brown, Secretary of State, was assured tonight by a plurality of about 15,000 on returns from almost every Ohio precinct made by The Associated Press.

In 8,207 of the 8,634 precincts Cooper's plurality was 15,396, the vote being: Cooper, 485,020, and Brown, 149,389.

Heads of the Republican ticket at the November election will be Cooper and James O. Mills of Columbus, opposed to Governor Donahey on the Democratic ticket, and Earl D. Bloom of Bowling Green, former Lieutenant Governor.

The two women on the primary tickets, Mrs. Evelyn Frances Snow of Mt. Vernon, who sought the Republican nomination for Governor, and Judge Florence E. Allen of Cleveland, who opposed Atlee Pomerene for the Democratic nomination for the Senate, were defeated. Mrs. Snow polled only 5,656 votes in 7,998 precincts, and Judge Allen was 20,000 votes behind Pomerene in 7,670 precincts.

BLACK AHEAD IN ALABAMA.

Probably Named for Senator—Governorship Result Uncertain.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 11 (AP).—With two-thirds of the vote of yesterday's Democratic primary tabulated, it appeared certain that "second choice" votes would decide races for the nomination for United States Senator and Governor.

The "second choice" votes make possible deciding the issue without a run-off, the contest going to one of the leaders in a race getting the most first and second choice votes.

Hugo L. Black of Birmingham continued to lead the field in the race for Senator Underwood's seat, the vote in 1,165 precincts giving him a 15,000 lead over John H. Bankhead. James J. Mayfield, Thomas E. Kilby and L. B. Musgrove trailed in the order named. Bibb Graves on late returns was gaining slightly to his lead for the nomination of Governor. Graves's vote was 42,800, while Charles S. McDowell Jr. had 39,110, A. H. Carmichael 37,112 and A. G. Patterson 31,600.

ARKANSAS STILL UNCERTAIN.

Martineau Leads in Contest for Governorship Nomination.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 11 (AP).—With close contests marking every State race except one, Arkansas tonight still was uncertain who would be the Democratic nominee for Governor.

Chancellor J. M. Martineau of Little Rock, who started in the lead last night with the reporting of the first precincts, continued today to have a substantial lead. With 1,696 out of the 2,008 precincts in the State tabulated unofficially tonight, this lead was 12,575. It had fallen as low as between 4,000 and 7,000 several times during the day, once going below the former figure.

The vote in the 1,393 precincts was 75,849 for Governor Tom J. Terral and 63,324 for Judge Martineau. The 257 precincts still missing were not expected to poll much more than 20,000 votes, but many rural precincts were missing, and it was in rural districts that Governor Terral expected to poll the bulk of his vote.

SAYS BRITISH HELP WILL CUT RUM FLOW

chinery which would tend to stop illegal shipping operations.

"We exchanged information and evidence and each country is now standing by to see that its own laws are observed. The Foreign Office tells me that this is the first time this kind of thing has been done between nations. Instead of trying to reach an understanding through diplomatic correspondence, which is difficult to understand and a slow process at best, the British Government, out of their native sense of law and order, sat down with us to help clear these matters up in this way.

"The British believe in the integrity of law and were quick to suggest remedies for a condition which indicated illegal practices. The British and we feel that this is an advanced step in international relations, if you get the idea. I feel that we shall have a very marked improvement in the enforcement of prohibition as regards the smuggling of liquor and alcohol."

Agreement Not a Treaty.

Asked if he meant that the British Government had agreed to tighten up on some of its own laws to aid the United States to enforce prohibition, General Andrews said he did not wish to give the subject "that color." He added:

"These are Colonial laws which are being broken. It is in Great Britain's Colonial possessions that the violations occur, with the Bahamas as the most striking illustration. The arrangements we have made with the British have been approved by our State Department and the British Foreign Office. No, it is not a treaty."

"How much of the good liquor we obtain in this country is smuggled liquor?" General Andrews was asked.

"Well," he said, "when I took office I was told about 20 per cent, but that was materially cut down by the Coast Guard campaign against rum row and smuggling generally."

"Then, if you succeed through these international arrangements in eliminating all smuggling, you will have cut off only about 15 per cent. of the supply of good liquor we are getting?"

"That is mathematically about correct," replied the General, "but that 15 per cent has in reality a greater value to the bootlegger, furnishing him, as it does, an excuse to foist his product upon his customers as good liquor made from pure grain alcohol. You see the bootlegger of today is clever. He employs clever counsel and knows how to do some very clever advertising.

"The bootlegger is highly elated if he can get into the newspapers a story that 100,000 cases of liquor have been stolen and not recovered. By such means he can convince his customers they are getting the real thing. I look to reduce the smuggling of liquor to a minimum so that the public must come to know that the goods sold by the bootlegger as imported goods are in reality imitations. And I am sanguine that what has been accomplished in England will be very helpful. I am going to Washington tomorrow evening to set up our end of the machinery immediately."

Sees No Change in Dry Forces.

Asked if the setting up of that machinery would mean any additional appointments, or any changes here, General Andrews said it would not. He said he did not think that prohibition enforcement was tending toward a "bloodless revolution" or anything like "civil warfare." He further emphasized his belief that he was making progress by saying:

"I am not giving any thought whatever to my resignation. On the contrary, I am going to jump into this new situation with great avidity."

General Andrews refused to comment on the manner in which England was reacting to prohibition enforcement in this country. He maintained a similar reticence as to France's reaction. He said, however, the arrangements and agreements had nothing whatever to do with any treaties of laws now extant.

Two members of the commission who went to England with General Andrews returned with him. They are Harry J. Anslinger, American Consul of the Bahamas, and Keith Weeks, who acted as secretary to the commission. Mrs. Andrews and their son, John, whom he left in Paris, sailed yesterday, General Andrews said, aboard the Leviathan.

General Andrews went home with his brother, Dan E. Andrews, of Great Neck, L. I., last night. He will confer with Major Mills and possibly with United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner this morning and will go to Washington tonight.

ANDREWS 'SPOOFED' ON SHIP.

Edna Ferber, Novelist, Tells of 'Dry' Jokes Which He Took in Good Part.

Edna Ferber, the American novelist, returned yesterday on the French Liner France from a ten weeks' trip to Europe which she spent chiefly at St. Jean de Luz on the shores of the Bay of Biscay and in Switzerland. She sat next to General Lincoln C. Andrews at the captain's table and was amazed at the number of passengers who tried to "spoof" him.

"They drew him aside on the deck," Miss Ferber said, "and asked him how they could smuggle a case of champagne ashore in the easiest way. Dudley Field Malone made a speech at the ship's concert last night and spoke of the wet party in glowing terms. General Andrews sat in the front row and took everything in good part. He drank mineral water at the tables, but appeared to like the rum punch and the crepe suzettes, which are French pancakes with rum sauce. He said that everything along with a fork or a spoon was quite alright."

Another passage in the France was Mrs. Irene C. McLaughlin, who was formerly Irene Castle, the dancer. She brought back several trunks filled with new gowns and said that unless she lost all her money she would never appear again on the stage. "I have my husband and my child now to look after and am very happy," she said.

11 IGNORE DRY LAW SUMMONS.

Federal Judge John C. Knox issued bench warrants yesterday for the arrest of four physicians, one druggist and six alleged whisky agents who failed to appear to plead to an indictment charging them with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. Sixty-eight other defendants who were indicted with them appeared in court and were held in bail ranging from $1,000 each for doctors and druggists to $3,000 for alleged whisky agents.

The doctors who failed to appear yesterday were J. L. Medina, 203 West Eighty-first Street; John R. Swarts, 44 West Eighty-ninth Street; Stella Schaffer Epstein, 1,725 Crotona Parkway East, and Emmanuel Ballyn, 447 Pine Street, Brooklyn.

The druggist was Louis Scheinfeld, 565 Second Avenue. The alleged agents who did not appear were Moses Friedland, 235 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn; Jacob Schindler, Harry Orlando, William Mathews, William Colle and Theodore Schroeder, whose addresses are not known.

Twenty-three doctors appeared in court.

The defendants were indicted after an investigation of alleged bootlegging of prescriptions for medicinal liquor. They will be tried in October.

RAID FOUR MIDTOWN CLUBS.

Police and Dry Agent Seize Liquors on Search Warrants—Five Arrested.

Detectives of Chief Inspector William J. Lahey's staff and a prohibition agent with search warrants, visited four clubs in the midtown section yesterday, arrested five men charged with illegal possession of liquor and seized quantities of alcoholic beverages.

At the Palace Club, 108 West Forty-sixth Street, they arrested Edward Levy, a waiter, of 38 West 119th Street. At the Nemo Club, 117 West Forty-ninth Street, Sidney Walker, a bartender, was arrested. He said he lived at the club. In the Belmont Club, 109 West Forty-seventh Street, George Smith of 210 West Thirtieth Street was arrested and at 209 West Forty-fifth Street, another club, Edward McLaughlin, a clerk, and Michael Rourke, both living in the building, were taken into custody. Liquor was seized at each place.

The prisoners were taken to the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station and later released in $500 bail each. The three first named clubs were crowded with patrons, the raids tour Europe leisurely in September

THE early summer rush is over. The crowds have passed. Steamship rates are lower and Europe's hotels afford greater comfort and wider range of accommodations. This is the year of years in which to take a trip abroad—Europe is once more its natural self.

Your voyage over and back on a Cunarder will remain one of the fondest recollections of your trip.

The new Cunard Cabin Service to Plymouth, Havre and London provides an unusually attractive way of visiting Europe at unprecedented low costs. A number of three and four week all-expense tours to London and Paris have been arranged for as little as $222. and $255. respectively, the rate including round trip Atlantic transportation in the new comfortable Tourist Third Cabin.

Splendid Cabin accommodations are also available on these ships from $145. up.

The Cunard Cabin Service carries tourists only in the new Tourist Third Cabin section—no ordinary third class carried in these ships from the beginning of the season to the end—

The only weekly service of its kind on the Atlantic.

PREDICT SUBSTITUTES FOR RAW MATERIALS

RUBBER FROM PETROLEUM

DIFFER ON RUSSIAN AIMS

Soviet Policy in China Criticized and Upheld—Rowe Hopeful of Tacna-Arica Case.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 11.—Forget your worries and trust to chemistry, was the message sent out to the world from the Institute of Politics today by leading scientists.

Is the gasoline reserve being depleted? Forget it. The chemists will find a substitute.

Are you worried about rubber? Synthetic rubber may be made from petroleum. Four billion pounds of rubber may be made from 52,000,000 barrels of petroleum. Last year's yield of crude oil in the United States was 758,000,000 barrels.

Does the exhaustion of the coal reserves keep you awake nights? Leave it to the chemists. They will harness the inexhaustible energy of the atom to do the world's work.

Suppose the atom fails to come up to expectations? The chemists will find sources of energy. Locomotive wheels will furnish the lubricant to make them go smoothly and the energy to make them go round.

A world built with houses of steel. Lumber as fuel or construction material, or other composition material, will be too valuable. Exteriors will be of artificial stone.

Homes furnished by synthetic materials. Tapestries, decorations and wall furnishings will be made of substitutes. Furniture will be of bacalite, floors of composition, floor coverings of artificial leather and draperies of rayon.

Scanning the skies, one of the speakers saw a heaven paved with platinum for the man who wrote of the heavens paved with gold, he said, chose gold only because it was the most expensive material he knew.

Discovery of more expensive materials than platinum, it was said, would release platinum jewelry for more necessary uses, the contention being that women wore platinum merely because it was the most expensive thing they knew. In the future tiaras of radium "will hold rebellious locks," a scientist maintained.

An Age of Synthetic Material.

The chemists indicated that the forthcoming famine in the world's mineral and metal supply would cause them no alarm. They would find something just as good, perhaps better. The key they were using to unlock the storehouse of the future, they explained, was chemical synthesis. The age of synthetic material is at hand. The world will soon be freed from the tyranny of specific raw materials, according to the speakers.

The discussion of the rôle of chemistry in the world's future affairs took place at the round table conducted by Dr. Harrison E. Howe of Washington and continued at the general conferences which followed. The speakers included Dr. Roger Adam, Professor of Chemistry of the University of Illinois; Dr. Charles L. Parsons, Secretary of the American Chemical Society; Dr. John E. Teeple, pioneer in the potash development in the West; Professor Moritz J. Bonn of Berlin, Justin Dupont of Paris, manufacturer of perfumes, and Dr. Howe. Dean Gerald I. Wendt of Pennsylvania State College made his contribution in a paper for the records.

"Chemists are modest men, but they admit frankly that they make the world go round," said Dr. Parsons. "You may sleep well; you, your children and your children's children. Already we vision how to make the wheels furnish the lubricant to make them go smoothly and the energy to make them go round."

Dr. Parsons spoke of the enormous growth in the use of metals, now consumed at the rate of 75,000,000 tons annually and said at this rate the world's metal resources have been largely charted.

The resources of copper, lead, zinc, tin and antimony, he said, were nearing exhaustion and probably will not last more than thirty years at the present rate of consumption. He said the junk piles are becoming of more and more importance. In this country, he added, one-half of our copper, one-third of our lead, one-eighth of our zinc, two-thirds of our tin and three-fifths of our antimony came from the junk pile.

When tin is no longer available for food containers others will be developed, possibly waterproof paper lined with lacquer, he said. Substitutes for antimony will be found. He did not doubt the ability of chemists "to meet every need of the future from the raw materials which we do have in abundance and always will have in abundance." Special alloys were being developed, he added, to control corrosion, which destroys hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of metal annually.

Predicts New Source of Energy.

Referring to the possible exhaustion of gasoline supplies, the speaker said there was no cause for worry, as the depletion of coal and petroleum will lead chemists to solve the problem of the future supply of energy. It was then that he remarked that platinum as jewelry was used by women only because of its high cost and not because of its appearance or intrinsic value. He pointed out that a lead-colored metal, a chromium alloy, was just as suitable for rings and bracelets, but that women would not use these bangles because they could be made cheaply.

Dr. Parsons predicted the future harnessing of the energy in the atom to do the work of the world.

Dr. Teeple, who followed, spoke in a light vein of the platinum shortage and mentioned the "streets paved with gold" in the Bible, but he was sure the chemist would examine the golden street with great care, as gold was not as good as cement for paving blocks. However, if the author of the lines were writing today, he said, he might refer to "streets of platinum," as that was now the most expensive metal.

"The real function of the chemist comes in his ability to adapt himself so to circumstances that he can supply the demand from many different sources, selecting at the moment the one that is convenient," said Dr. Teeple. "The real function of the chemist is to free man from the tyranny of specific raw materials.

"Many wars in the past have been waged between nations for the possession of land, and the land was commonly wanted because it produced certain raw materials that seemed absolutely necessary. The rôle of the chemist comes in his insistence that specific raw materials are less and less necessary each year to supply the world's needs, and so each year he reduces this cause of friction among nations.

"I can't get excited because of any impending shortage of cellulose, or manganese, tin or copper, and of the other materials that are not actually essential to life or cannot be easily reproduced," he continued. "This does not mean that we should ignore the subject of waste or shortage."

Artificial Stone For Buildings.

In his paper Dean Wendt predicted that buildings of the future would be of steel with external shells of artificial stone or other composition materials with interiors of synthetic substitutes and with furnishings of other synthetic materials.

Use of substitutes for lumber, he urged, should be encouraged because they released wood and natural fibres for superior usefulness as chemical raw materials.

Further hope for the conservation of lumber was expressed by Dr. Adam, who predicted that the industry now distilling wood alcohol from the forests, capitalized at nearly one hundred million dollars, was certain to be eventually eliminated because recent developments of synthetic materials do away with the necessity for distilling wood.

Discussing the rubber situation, Dr. Adams said that a modest expenditure in the hope of making a cheap synthetic rubber from petroleum would be more economical in the end than spending hundreds of millions of dollars in the Philippines, Africa and elsewhere for the developing of new plantations.

"Rubber has been made synthetically and the types of raw material necessary are well known, but the serious problem is to find a source of this raw material cheap enough to make synthetic rubber that will compete with the natural product," he continued. "Petroleum offers a possibility."

To make up the American shortage or manganese, which, he said, possibly jeopardized the welfare of the nation, Dr. Howe suggested that the tariff on manganese be fixed in kind, so that the importer would pay his duty not in cash but in manganese. This would increase the Government's supply.

The suggestion was combated by Dr. Bonn, who remarked that a nation which proposed disarmament and then insisted on storage of war material could hardly impress the world convincingly that the era of peace and disarmament had begun.

Speakers Differ on Russia.

Russia's policy in the Far East was debated at the round table on Far Eastern affairs, conducted by Henry K. Norton of New York. Mr. Norton maintained that Soviet Russia "has not only set about to recover all the territory and rights which Czarist Russia had won in the Far East but has exhibited a skill in aggressive imperialism of which even Czarist Russia might have been proud."

Major Gen. V. Yakhontoff, who was Assistant Secretary of War in the Kerensky Cabinet in 1917, argued that the present policy of Russia in the Far East contained no tinge of aggression or imperialism. He said that Russia had practically no trade with China, claimed no extraterritorial rights or custom control and was not in any sense a rival of Great Britain or Japan in China.

In a discussion on extraterritoriality at the round table conducted by Dr. Arthur K. Kuhn of New York, it was brought out by Dr. Kuhn that extraterritoriality was not originally deemed a disadvantage to the country in which it existed, because it prevented the disturbance of good relations between peoples governed by Western systems and those in the Near East and Far East. It was welcomed as a means of making trade possible between merchants of one civilization and those of another.

Dr. Kuhn said that the two prerequisites for the abolition of extraterritoriality in China were a stable Government and the establishment of a fixed and certain jurisprudence. The question was also discussed by Charles C. Batchelder, former Commercial Attaché in China.

Rowe Sees Tacna-Arica Solution.

Dr. L. S. Rowe, leader of the round table on Latin-American affairs, said he doubted whether the world fully appreciated the great triumph of the principle of arbitration when Chile and Peru agreed to submit the Tacna-Arica dispute to a third party.

"The mere fact that both the people of Chile and Peru were willing to accept the principle of arbitration constitutes the most important step toward the final settlement of the problem," he asserted. "The difficulties that presented themselves in the carrying out of the award do not mean in any sense that the problem can not and will not be solved."

Dr. A. Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, a member of the German peace delegation in 1919, delivered a lecture tonight on the publication of the German Foreign Office archives for the period from 1871 to 1914. Next Winter, he said, will see the completion of fifty-five volumes containing 15,000 documents on the pre-war diplomacy from the peace of Frankfort to Serajevo.

In all, he said, the editorial board of which he was a member perused 150,000 documents and he hoped that the other nations would follow the example of Germany and open their archives.

NATHALIA CRANE IS 13.

British Authors' Society Sends Congratulations on Birthday.

Seven little playmates of Nathalia Crane, participating yesterday in the celebration of her thirteenth birthday at her home, 145 Henry Street, Brooklyn, were amazed when their little playmate—who now has two published books of verse and one of prose to her credit—announced that early in September she contemplates publishing her fourth book, a poem, entitled "The Singing Crow."

The festivities were temporarily halted while Nathalia perused a congratulatory cablegram received from J. Herbert Thering, Secretary of the British Society of Authors, Playwrights and Composers. She also showed her little chums a diamond pin she received from Virginia Moor, author, and books sent to her by colleagues. Then the birthday cake was cut and the little ones went home.

Nathalia said she would continue her studies in the Brooklyn Heights Seminary, having won a Mary Snow scholarship.

FRENCH CLEAN OUT OASIS OF DAMASCUS

DAMASCENES RESENT ACT

They See Great Losses in Crops and Timber if Military Continue Repression.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAIFA, Syria, Aug. 11.—The action of the insurgents in taking what the French considered an unfair advantage of the peculiar position of Ghuta, or the oasis around Damascus, which the French military authorities have long respected, has finally compelled the latter to undertake drastic punitive operations.

The relentlessness of the recent concentric attack on Ghuta, which was preceded by preparatory bombardments since July 19, constituted, with the two bombardments of the city itself, the culminating act in the tragedy of Damascus.

The Oasis of Ghuta is about fifteen miles broad and twenty miles long and of such luxuriance that the Prophet Mohammed is said to have refused to enter it, saying that a man enters not twice into Paradise. In normal times it produces a revenue estimated at £1,000,000, but it has suffered grievously and risks almost complete ruin if the two upper confluents of Barada, which were diverted a fortnight ago from the lower river bed, remain cut off.

The hemp crop in Ghuta, which was supposed to be worth £90,000, and the vegetable crops, which form the chief food of the Damascenes, are already withering.

Recent bombardments, which were intense for the purpose of clearing tactical points of defense, have caused the destruction of several thousand valuable trees and most of the villages of the oasis. Of these nearly twenty, some of over 2,000 inhabitants each, with many solid and well-furnished houses, are reported to have been burned after being plundered by Circassian and Armenian levies and Colonial troops.

The remarkable openness with which looted cattle and other property has been sold in public in Damascus gives color to the supposition that these troops were authorized to pillage by the French.

Undismayed by the diversion of the tributaries of the Barada, the insurgents retaliated by cutting off at Fije the supply of drinking water for Damascus on Aug. 4, but it has since been restored and it is now hoped that the French will restore the irrigation system of Ghuta, as the younger trees are in danger and the military advantages cannot outweigh the moral effect of inflicting economic disaster on the civilian population of the oldest and largest city of Syria. Indeed, as the French troops have overrun the insurgent headquarters and their chief stronghold with its system of trenches and telephones, munition dumps and stores have been burned as well as grain on the threshing floors, and the vegetable crops have been devastated.

The position of the insurgents, thus deprived of their resources, has been considerably weakened. Therefore, the situation, to all appearances, no longer warrants pushing severity to the extreme limit, and experience has shown that destructive repression generates a more determined and fiercer opposition on the part of the insurgents and a bitterer feeling among the general population.

In proof of this, after the recent French attack on Ghuta, where the losses on both sides are believed to have been considerable, the insurgents counter-attacked at different points. In one of these engagements it is reported that the insurgents suffered a severe reverse owing to their lack of ammunition, in consequence of which Nessib Bey el Bakry and two other insurgent leaders, who were considered responsible, were sent to the Jebel Druse for trial by court-martial. The timely arrival of Druse reinforcements under Mother Bey el Atrash restrived the position.

If the French dispose adequate forces to enable them to establish posts all over Ghuta then the insurgents, deprived of their former resources, are likely to be faced with the alternative of making peace or to move in the other direction, probably to Wady Tim and Wady Ajam, so as to cooperate more closely with the Druses.

The main cause of the present aggravation of the situation, with all its train of unfortunate complications, is the lack of an adequate French force in the first stage of the insurrection. It is shown that a majority of the Damascenes not only did not sympathize with the Druses, but regarded them as wild and dangerous neighbors, until the first bombardment of the city forced them into an unnatural alliance, which the subsequent destructive bombardments further cemented.

The Druse position is expected to become clear after the gathering in of the harvest in Jebel Druse. If the inhabitants, who now have apparently submitted, can be induced, once they have garnered their crops, which are unusually rich after several successive years of drought, to rejoin the insurgents and attack the French when embarrassed by a seasonal scarcity of water in the Autumn, then the revolt is likely to continue.

There are, however, dissentions between the chiefs of the important Beni Amer Clan and some of the Halabi Clan, the old-time rivals of Atrash, who remained neutral, even during the most successful stage of the revolt.

Also the lower classes, who chiefly benefited from the reforms introduced during Captain Carbillet's domestic régime, are generally pro-French.

All this makes such a contingency rather remote, the more so as General Andrea's policy is supposed to be a combination of tact with firmness.

New Jersey Chimpanzee Joyful After Capture in a Cemetery

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 11.—Leon Shoulder's escaped chimpanzee, which bit three persons and pelted children with tomatoes yesterday, was discovered in a cemetery at 211 Centre Street today. Frank Hauck, the dog catcher, made the discovery, and bagged his extra-routine game with a long-handled net.

When a collar had been placed on the monkey it became playful, caressed its captor, and started a demonstration of stunts taught by its owner. It was then taken to the City Pound.

Health Officer Richards said he would decide whether "Jimmie," as the chimpanzee is called, is a menace to the community. If it is judged a "menace" it will be killed. Otherwise it will be returned to its owner.

Residents of New Jersey wilds are now awaiting the capture of the leopard that escaped from Oliver W. Holton's Twin Brook Zoo at Middletown. Reports from Red Bank today indicated that the leopard was in ten places at once, although no one had actually seen it.

PROTEST TO BULGARIA ON BORDER RAIDERS

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Aug. 11 (AP).—A collective note requesting the Bulgarian authorities to take severe measures to stop the activities of Bulgarian Comitadi, or irregulars, was presented to Foreign Minister Bouroff today by the diplomatic representatives of Bulgaria's neighbors, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Greece.

The tone of the note was much more moderate than had been anticipated. The representatives of the three countries, while stressing the desire of their Governments to live on good terms with Bulgaria, called the latter's attention to the necessity of bringing to a definite end the activities of the Comitadji which have caused unrest for some time along the frontier authorities.

The three countries ask Bulgaria to order the frontier authorities to fulfill their obligations, not only for the sake of good neighborly relations, but also in accordance with existing conventions for surveillance of the border. Bulgaria is asked to take most severe measures in order to render impossible in the future the activities of all revolutionary organizations.

Foreign Minister Bouroff, replying verbally to the diplomats, said that he would send a written reply after the text of the note was submitted to his Government.

TO MORTGAGE NEW CLUB.

St. Nicholas Gets Court Permission to Pay for Improvements.

The St. Nicholas Club received permission yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Guy to mortgage its new club house at 39 East Fifty-first Street for $30,000 to help pay for equipment and for the construction of an additional floor for bedrooms and a roof garden.

The property was purchased last Winter after the St. Nicholas Club sold its old quarters at 7 West Forty-fourth Street for $175,000. A mortgage of $100,000 in addition to the one authorized yesterday was executed against the present property. The directors are spending $50,000 besides the $30,000 to be realized by the new mortgage for the improvements.

Not a Fair Trial, He Says.

"What happened," he asked, "when those jurors went into that jury room? Will Maryland stand by and say this boy had a fair trial?"

Picking up a law book he began to read: "Life is a gift of God, and those who deal with it should do so according to law."

"What is life," he exclaimed "but an empty dream?"

"What connection has that with the case?" asked State's Attorney O'Conor.

Pendleton paused to mop his forehead. Then he said: "It will prove that this man was being pushed to his death without a chance."

Assistant State's Attorney Adams in presenting the State's case said that under Maryland law a writ of habeas corpus was not a subject for an appeal or a writ of error, nor could it be used for that purpose.

Attorney General Robinson followed Mr. Adams. He declared that the case was about as near one of advertising as he had ever seen in a court room and that he "couldn't tell from the argument of the petitioner just what his point was."

In announcing his decision Judge Stanton said:

"The only matter before me is alleged errors in the trial of the case—to wit: that the trial Judge did not charge the jury. Such procedure is not a part of the Maryland criminal system and could not be required under our law."

No White Man Hanged in 25 Years.

The hanging of Whittemore is scheduled to take place in the Maryland Penitentiary only a stone's throw from the spot where Whittemore killed Holtman in his escape in February, 1925.

If he is hanged Whittemore will be the first white man to die on the gallows here in nearly twenty-five years. Only three or four negroes have been hanged in that time.

The room in which the hangings are held was formerly the women's dormitory and was built 114 years ago. It has a very high ceiling. In one end is a balcony into which a trap has been built. Whittemore's cell is on the same tier with the balcony. He will have only twenty steps to walk to the gallows.

From the window of his triple locked cell in the death house, Whittemore can look directly upon the spot where he killed Holtman. He has not shown any signs of strain over the approaching execution, jail officials say. He sleeps well and his appetite is unaffected, they say. His wife visited him in his cell this morning. She told reporters that she still has hope her husband will win a reprieve.

Warden Patrick Brady said that neither Mrs. Whittemore nor the slayer's father would be permitted to witness the execution. It has been reported that both have expressed a wish to be with Whittemore "to the very last" but Rawlings Whittemore, the father, said today that he would not attend the hanging. "We want no scenes," Warden Brady declared.

A special detail of police will patrol the streets around the penitentiary tomorrow night. A large crowd is expected to assemble outside at the hour appointed for the execution. Admission will be by invitation only. Among the last to receive an invitation today was Lieutenant Au in Roach, Chief of Detectives of Buffalo, who played a prominent part in the trial of Whittemore there last April for the slaying of two bank payroll guards. The jury in that trial disagreed.

The principal witness against Whittemore in the Baltimore trial was a negro prisoner, John Bowie. Bowie has since been transferred from the penitentiary, where he had five more years to serve, to the House of Correction at Jessup's Cut.

It was reported that this transfer was the first step toward his release, but State's Attorney O'Conor denied this today. He said that the reason for the transfer was that other prisoners in the penitentiary had threatened Bowie's life after he appeared against Whittemore.

DECLARES CRIMINALS ARE WELL ORGANIZED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11.—Criminals who prey upon the jewelry industry and other lines are well organized, according to Herbert S. Mosher, an executive of Pinkerton's National Detective Agency, who spoke here today at the annual convention of the American National Retail Jewelers' Association.

Emphasizing the thoroughness with which criminals go about the business of robbing, Mr. Mosher said that a man who recently spent months making a survey of the crime situation declared that there are two governments in this country—the one under which law-abiding people live and the government of the underworld.

"The underworld government has its secret codes of communication from one city to another," Mr. Mosher said, "and often arrangements are made in advance for counsel and bail in the event of arrest."

"The crooks get the lay of the land, study the protective features, calculate the chances of getting caught, and frequently arrange for the sale of the loot before the job is pulled," Mr. Mosher added. "This calls for a business organization and has resulted in the setting up of the so-called government of the underworld.

"Citizens who shirk jury duty and will not aid the authorities in prosecutions are playing into the hands of crooks, and after conviction you should use your influence to see that the prisoner is not given a parole or pardon."

SAYS TWO BEAT, ROBBED HER

Two men who represented themselves to be detectives and obtained entrance to her apartment on Monday afternoon on the pretext that they were investigating robberies beat her until she fainted and stole five rings valued at $400, Mrs. Anita Leo, 105 West 115th Street, reported to the police. She visited headquarters yesterday in an effort to identify pictures in the Rogues' Gallery.

Mrs. Leo is the wife of Paul C. H. Leo, a Chinese, who she says is employed as a special clerk by J. P. Morgan & Co.

THOMPSON PLANS VISIT TO MOROLAND

WILL SEE RUBBER DISTRICT

Small Plantations Now Considered Feasible—Colonel to Visit China and Japan.

By RUSSELL B. PORTER.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANILA, Aug. 11.—Colonel Carmi A. Thompson is leaving tomorrow night on a boat trip of a month to the central and southern islands in further prosecution of his investigation of conditions in the Philippines on behalf of President Coolidge. He was to have left last Monday on a trip of a fortnight to the Visayan group of sugar islands, later going south on a separate trip to Mindanao and Sulu, the potential rubber country, but changed his plans owing to a delay in the arrival of the Philippine Government steamship Mindoro and decided to combine the journey into one long trip.

Colonel Thompson, as the eyes and ears of President Coolidge, will try to learn and will report to the President whether the Moros really want a continuance of American rule, as they do not want to be governed by the Christian Filipinos, or whether they favor the Bacon bill or some other plan to separate the islands of Mindanao, Sulu and Palawan, otherwise Moroland, from the rest of the Philippines. He will survey the possibilities of growing rubber on the vast acreage of undeveloped jungle grass land in Mindanao and whether it can be done without changing the land laws limiting corporations to the ownership each of 2,500 acres of the public domain.

Trip of Supreme Importance.

The Mindanao trip is considered the most important part of the Thompson investigation in view of the fact that America imports $2,000,000 worth of rubber daily, and Mindanao under favorable circumstances could produce 200,000 tons yearly, more than half of the entire American consumption. Americans of business and banking experience, men of sound judgment here, say millions could be made in rubber and they would like to see $100,000,000 shipped here for rubber investment. They hope Congress will do something to establish confidence in the political stability of the Philippines, so investments will be protected. There is no chance of large scale development under the present uncertainty, especially because it would require financing over a period of five years before the rubber trees would begin to yield, and none is willing to hazard the money now.

These men think 2,500 acres are large enough for satisfactory units of rubber plantations, despite the first contention that nothing could be done without 500,000 acres. They point out that 90 per cent. of the existing rubber companies in the British and Dutch possessions started with less than 2,500 acres. They say the Philippines can be made one of the greatest rubber-producing countries in the world with small plantations, avoiding trouble with the Filipinos over the land laws and letting them share in the profits. Financiers say a 2,500-acre unit would require about $400,000 in capital to develop. If the Americans finance small planters without any change in the land laws, they think Filipinos would cooperate, because the public lands are largely non-producing either in materials or taxes and it would be to their advantage. Inasmuch as Americans have $1,000,000,000 invested in Cuban sugar, they think they would send rubber money here if assured of the safety of the investment.

Senator Manuel Quezon emphatically reiterated to the American correspondents today his unalterable opposition to any change in the land laws, but asserted a willingness to help the Americans get rubber of they will operate under the present laws.

No Flare Over Independence.

It is considered significant that there has been no adverse comment on the part of the Filipino press or the politicos on the statement made last Monday by Dr. José S. Reyes, who was Senator Osmena's technical adviser in the United States, that there was no hope whatever of Philippine independence within the next ten years and that the Filipinos should not conduct a nation-wide independence campaign in the States. Prominent politicos close to Senator Quezon said that anybody with common sense knows that the ten-year statement is true. The Filipinos do not expect immediate independence and might stop agitation if Congress established a definite policy.

There is much discussion here of the Batchelder proposal at the Institute of Politics in America of a Philippine Free State with a dominion status like that of Canada or Australia. The Philippine Herald, a Quezon paper, which has an "Inquiring Reporter" column, found sentiment divided. Among the answers, Governor Pascual of the Province of Rizal said: "If anything it would tend to advance our political status and would be good enough for the time being." Others said nothing but complete independence would be satisfactory to the Filipinos.

Thompson Changes His Plans.

Colonel Thompson has announced a change in his plans and will leave Manila on Oct. 4 instead of Oct. 28, as he originally intended. He will spend three weeks in China and Japan. He will see John Van A. MacMurray, the American Minister at Peking, and study the importance of Philippine-American trade with China, the maintenance of the open-door policy and the strategy of a military and commercial base to protect our interests in the Pacific. The Colonel's plan to arrive in the United States late in November is unchanged.

Governor General Wood and Henry L. Stimson will sail in a few days on the Governor General's yacht the Apo for Mindanao on a trip of two or three weeks. The separate trips of Thompson and Wood are causing comment.

The Manila Times reports there is speculation in political circles as to the purpose of the Wood-Stimson trip and is wondering whether Stimson might succeed Wood with the latter's sanction, whether Stimson's "collecting ammunition for Wood's guns against Coolidge's possible desire for a change in administration here," or whether he is gathering material "for placing the present Governor General's Administration in the best possible light in the event of General Wood's retirement in the near future."

327 STUDENTS BEGIN SIGNAL CORPS WORK

RADIO TRAINING IS GIVEN

Enthusiasts Study at Army Amateur Net Control Station—Youths Get Life-Saving Teaching Also.

Special to The New York Times.

FORT MONMOUTH, N. J., Aug. 11.—With all the equipment and facilities of the Army Signal School at their disposal, 327 students from seven States and the District of Columbia are now fully in the swing of Signal Corps training of the citizens' military training camp. Established at this post, more than 80 per cent of the men in camp are students at high schools or technical institutions. A good proportion of the remainder are employes of such firms as the Radio Corporation of America, the New York Edison Company, Stromberg Carlson Telephone Company of Rochester and the E. I. Dupont de Nemours Company. Fort Monmouth is well adapted for training the students as it is the one army post that is devoted solely to Signal Corps activities and military routine is reduced to the minimum consistent with army conditions.

The student camp is under the command of Major G. L. Van Deusen, who is assistant commandant of the Army Signal School and who has also been in command of three reserve officers' training corps and four previous citizens', military training camps. Extensive preparations for the present camp were made last Winter and Spring starting with the trip of Captains G. E. Hill Jr. and Lieutenant D. Hodges, who visited every technical school and a large number of high schools in the Second Corps Area, addressing the students and urging them to take advantage of the September camp.

The program, which went into effect on last Monday, has been divided into two sections. The morning hours are devoted to calisthenics, infantry drill, company formations and lectures by company officers. Citizenship lectures and pistol instruction and interior guard duty take up a few hours each week. In the afternoon the students are instructed in telegraph, telephone and radio communication, and in the handling of homing pigeons. Athletics, swimming and other forms of recreation also figure largely in the afternoon programs.

The schedule of instruction has been graduated so that during the last week of the course the students will take the field, carrying their own tents and equipment and for four and a half days will operate a complete corps communication system. Radio enthusiasts among the students are taking advantage of the army amateur net control station 2 CXL, situated within their own camp lines under Captain A. C. Stanford and Sergeant W. L. White, to learn the military procedure of transmitting and receiving radio messages that is now being put in operation throughout the nine corps areas in the country. The amateur net embraces a great proportion of the 16,000 amateur receiving and transmitting stations which are being organized so that in a national emergency they will become links in a chain that will encompass the whole country.

Athletics are under the direction of Lieutenant Milton F. Hankins and several cups and medals have been donated for competition at the conclusion of the camp.

Swimming parties are taken by motor truck each afternoon to Long Branch, where they are instructed in life saving by Captain Volgenau of the Red Cross Life Saving Service.

The officers on duty at the camp, besides Major G. L. Van Deusen, camp commander, include Captain H. L. P. King, senior instructor; Lieutenant Eugene V. Elder, Adjutant; Lieutenant Milton T. Hankins, supply and recreation; Lieutenant M. G. Wallington, mess; Lieutenant Roy Stone, assistant recreation officer; Captain Louis Canseler, commanding Company A; Lieutenant D. Hodges, Lieutenant H. W. Serig, Lieutenant F. H. Leslie, Company A; Captain G. E. Hill Jr., commanding Company E; Lieutenant T. Maddox, Lieutenant H. G. Miller, Lieutenant O. H. Watson, Company B, and Captain A. C. Bush, medical officer.

MONEY RAISED HERE FOR THE PARTHENON

Restoration of Columns, Halted by Lack of Funds, Will Be Resumed Immediately.

GREEK MINISTER GRATEFUL

The work of reassembling several columns of the Parthenon at Athens, which had been halted until recently for lack of funds, will be resumed at once with funds contributed by a group of prominent Americans, according to an announcement yesterday by Dr. Edward Capps, head of the Greek Department of Princeton University and lately United States Minister to Greece.

The columns of the historic Greek temple now lie in fairly complete segments on the site of the ruins on the Acropolis. They have lain upon the ground there ever since the explosion of the Turkish powder magazine within the temple by a Venetian shell in 1569.

Among the contributors were Elihu Root, former Secretary of State; George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General; Paul Cravath, Harrison Williams, Cass Gilbert, President of the National Academy, and Mrs. Gilbert; William J. Wilgus, engineer; Louis Tiffany and Dr. and Mrs. John H. Finley.

Greeks' Gratitude Expressed.

M. Simopoulos, Greek Minister to the United States, has expressed the appreciation of his countrymen for the generosity of the American contributors in the following telegram:

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10, 1926.
Dr. John H. Finley, THE NEW YORK TIMES.

We have always considered the Parthenon as a world's monument of beauty, and your generous contribution is the most eloquent manifestation of this idea.

SIMOPOULOS,
Greek Minister to the United States.

A cablegram has been received from M. Ceurouniotis, Government Director of Arphaelogy, accepting the gift. The work, for which the scaffolding is already on hand, will be carried on under the direction of the Archaeological Society of Greece, with the cooperation of the American School of Classical Studies at Athens.

No extensive restoration of the temple is contemplated. The segments of the columns strewn around the temple site will simply be restored to their places so that the columns in whole or in part may be viewed as they were erected by the original builders. No new material is to be used, and the effect of the magnificent ruin will not be impaired.

Professor Capps in commenting on the work of restoring the Parthenon columns, said:

"In the hundred years that have passed since the Turks gave up Athens to the newly established Hellenic nation the Acropolis has been transformed. The beautiful little Temple of Nike was the first to be reconstructed, its precious stones recovered one by one from the Turkish building which had been erected from its elements.

"Then came the Erechtheum as we now see it, and lastly, in recent years, the Propylaea. The Parthenon was wisely left to the last.

"Work was begun upon the Parthenon something over a year ago under the direction of the accomplished Greek architect and archaeologist, Nicholas Balanos, who has directed the reconstruction of the Propylaea."

NOW an institution with McCreery's, this Advance Sale of Overcoats has become increasingly popular with men and young men who know that money saved is money earned. All these men wanted to know was the date of the event—in fact, many have already purchased their coats, although the sale began only yesterday.

Selling overcoats at this time of year is nothing new to McCreery's. Our first Advance Sale of Overcoats was held way back in 1919—in fact, we were the very first in New York to hold such a sale. And naturally the experience gained with these years has enabled us each year to offer better values. We honestly believe the coats this year are the very best for the money that we have ever offered.

The overcoats are all brand new—the authentic 1926-27 styles. A representative went to England last Spring to procure half of them just for this event. The fine tailoring and excellent materials of both domestic and English coats will appeal to you.

Our suggestion is to come early in the sale—to-day if possible.

BRITISH MINERS SEE OWNERS ON STRIKE

LEADERS IN A DILEMMA

By T. R. YBARRA.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Independent action on the part of the mine owners and the striking coal miners is the latest move in the coal strike, which the day after tomorrow will be fifteen weeks old.

Talks are now going on between the owners and the miners in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire, following a request from the strikers.

This places the strike leaders in an uncomfortable dilemma. It was bad enough for them when the strikers rejected the "Bishops' peace plan." But now the situation is really acute, because the leaders apparently have no alternative policy to suggest.

It is intimated that the Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire miners, in initiating talks with the owners without consulting their leaders, are getting genuinely distrustful of their chiefs.

In view of the latest happenings, the conference of miners' delegates, scheduled to meet in London on Monday, will have a difficult task.

If the "fight to the last ditch" extremists win out at the conference, it will mean that the leaders will be faced with the problem of prolonging the strike indefinitely, which means feeding the strikers and those dependent on them for a further period, or finding food for something like 4,000,000 mouths.

It is probable that Parliament will have its holidays rudely interrupted at the end of the present month, since it will doubtless be necessary to reconvene it in order to renew the emergency powers regulations.

The Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin, will return to Downing Street tomorrow and preside at a meeting of the Cabinet to discuss the coal crisis. It may be confidently predicted that the Government will not intervene in the dispute unless both the coal owners and the coal miners request it to do so.

A frank confession of the dilemma in which the strike leaders find themselves was made last night by one of them in these words:

"We are in a hole and we have got to get out of it somehow."

The Evening Standard today comments thus on their dilemma:

"The next step clearly lies with the leaders. They are henceforth under the compulsion of having abandoned a purely non-possumus attitude to consult the men as to what they do want, since they do not want the Bishop's scheme.

"They will be wise to make the best of the situation, to which they have been brought by their own mismanagement, by putting forward a policy based on the recognition of economic facts.

"An intransigent mood, whatever its strength in some coal fields, by no means persists in all."

Meanwhile the signs are multiplying that the striking miners are greatly dissatisfied with the negative leadership to which they have been subjected.

The leader specially singled out for criticism is A. J. Cook, the "emperor" who, unless he does something drastic soon, is in grave danger of losing his emperorship.

"The result of the ballot on the Church peace proposals shows that the rank and file of the miners are not ready to act as weathercocks at the behest of their leaders" was one view expressed around Downing Street today.

Mr. Cook made a statement today which is conspicuous for its lack of that fire with which he usually spices his utterances. Moreover, it contained a plain hint that he is beginning to be aware of the trouble brewing between him and the strikers.

"We have called a delegates' conference for Monday," he said, "so the miners can decide their future policy.

"I do not believe there will be any serious breakaway from the federation, but I do think that the miners will accept their responsibilities and with their leaders review the whole position.

That last sentence may well be construed as signifying that Mr. Cook henceforth will follow instead of lead. And that is calculated to exasperate even more violently those strikers who blame "negative leadership" for their trouble.

Meanwhile reports from some coal mining districts, notably in Warwick, Cannock and Leicester, show that the miners are returning in large numbers. Similar reports come also from Scotland and South Derbyshire.

1,500 WEEP AT MINER'S PLEA.

Cloakmakers Pledge Aid to British After Ben Tillett Speaks.

The unusual spectacle of 1,500 cloak cutters weeping unashamed at a strike mass meeting yesterday afternoon in Arlington Hall, 19 St. Mark's Place, was presented when Ben Tillett, 66-year-old veteran of British labor struggles, presented the case for 1,000,000 locked-out British miners. Tillett himself, who is heading a mission to raise funds, broke down at one point and stopped for a few moments before he was able to continue.

"I tell you the British Government did not want us to come here to tell you what great rogues they were, what great thieves they were," Tillett declared passionately. "For we have an aristocracy more c. , more brutal than even you experienced strikers are able to imagine. I am an old man and often want to ease up, but when I think of the 2,000,000 children of British miners starving before our eyes, I hold up and refresh myself.

"Our British miners are a proud people. In my forty-five years as a servant of British labor this is my most difficult task. We would not have come to America if we were not forced to for want of food. I appeal to you in the name of our children."

Isidor Nagler, Chairman of the cutters' meeting, assured Tillett that the cloakmakers, though on strike themselves, would contribute to the fullest degree to the cause of the British miners.

BRITISH EDUCATOR SAYS CHINA IS MENACE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—China, formerly peaceful but now armed to the teeth, constitutes a menace to the peace of the world, according to H. A. L. Fisher, former Minister of Education and noted historian.

While delivering the closing lecture in the London University vacation course here today he blamed "certain armament firms" for "conditions in China which threaten to confront the world with the 'yellow peril' in a new form."

China is now well supplied with arms, he said, owing to the action of these firms in preventing ratification in 1920 of the treaty which would have regulated the export of arms and prevented the arming of factions in the Chinese civil war.

The Chinese situation is not the only menace to peace, according to the same speaker.

"When you consider the power of the armament firms, the somewhat barbaric circumstances of many nations, the survival of animosities and jealousies among many nations and the widespread interest in the technical arts of destruction, you cannot feel too confident that better times are in store for posterity," he declared. "The maintenance of peace will clearly involve a struggle. At present the peace of Europe is the offspring of accident. Our task is to make it the child of reason and good-will."

ELLSWORTH PAYS TRIBUTE TO PEARY

Declares Explorer Was First to Foresee Value of Airships in the Arctic.

THANKS AERIAL LEAGUE

Grateful for One of Twenty Cards of Membership Signed by the Admiral.

Lincoln Ellsworth, who made the trans-polar flight in the Norge with Amundsen and Nobile, yesterday credited the late Admiral Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the North Pole, with being the first man to foresee the possibilities of aerial exploration in the Arctic.

This tribute to Admiral Peary was paid in a letter sent by Mr. Ellsworth to Henry Woodhouse, President of the Aerial League of America, thanking the latter for the honorary membership conferred upon him by the league. The honorary membership card which Mr. Ellsworth received bears the signature of Admiral Peary as founder and first President of the league, being one of twenty signed by the late explorer. In his letter Mr. Ellsworth wrote:

"It was significant of the greatness of the man that Peary himself, whose attainment of the North Pole closed the chapter of that romantic history of Arctic conquest by men using ships and dogs as a means of transport, should have been the first, as far as I know, to foresee the possibilities of aerial exploration in the Arctic.

"Thus 'the dreams of one age became the realities of the next,' and today, as we wing our way in comparative comfort, cutting the years to hours in our swift flight over the unknown Polar Sea, the stories of hardships endured by the travelers of yesterday seem as remote as the lessons of the Old Testament.

"But in ages to come the conquest of the North Pole by Robert E. Peary will ever remain a monument to a heroic effort—a symbol of devotion to an idea! 'To seek, to strive, to find and not to yield.' Whatever its value to civilization, the effort was not in vain. The world needs such heroes. They are the salt of youth and from the salt of youth comes the iron of mature manhood."

In conclusion, Mr. Ellsworth said that the Aerial League of America, in furthering the ideals of Admiral Peary, was doing a service to the nation that should inspire those to increase human knowledge.

COOLIDGE FAVORS FARMERS' CREDITS

Discusses Subject With Head of Federated Fruit and Vegetable Growers.

WILL CONSULT HOOVER SOON

Administration May Be Able to Announce Its Program Before the Fall Elections.

Special to The New York Times.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Aug. 11.—President Coolidge today assured Arthur R. Rule of New York, general manager of the Federated Fruit and Vegetable Growers, that he favored more elastic credits for the farmers in general, such as were now available to the cattle growers.

The President's conference with Mr. Rule was the first of similar meetings he will have with experts in agriculture and rural banking and with Cabinet members, to permit him to reach a conclusion as to what further the Government should do to aid the farmers.

Secretary Hoover will be consulted when he comes here Friday, and it is believed the Administration may be able to announce a legislative program for the next Congress in advance of the Fall elections.

Mr. Rule not only talked with Mr. Coolidge on the needs of the farmers, but told him the country would have its largest crop of apples, peaches and grapes in many years, and that much of the crop would be lost because of inefficient marketing systems.

The President assured him, Mr. Rule said, that he favored making credits easier for the farmer, and indicated approval of the proposal that the farmer should have the same credit facilities as the cattle growers, who obtain three-year loans on live stock long in advance of the time they can market them.

The federated organization did an annual business of $30,000,000, and had thirty-five organizations in half as many States, Mr. Rule said. It desired to expand, and he argued that Government credit should be given to cooperative marketing organizations on easier terms than at present.

Mr. Rule spoke of the heavy fruit crops this year and said:

"The misfortune of both the producer and the consumer is that, due to lack of marketing facilities and intelligent cooperative systems, there will be a glut in one section of the country and a famine in the other. Only 20 per cent of the country has cooperative marketing machinery, and the crop today shows the need for an extension. If the country were well organized the consumer would buy cheaper and the producer would also get benefits in larger returns."

His talk with Mr. Coolidge, Mr. Rule said, convinced him that the President looked with sympathy on the farmers' ills. The President told him he had always known of the credit troubles of the farmers through his experience at home, and that he had learned a great deal of the actual pressing questions while on his recent visit to Plymouth.

WOMAN HELD FOR MURDER.

Wilkes-Barre Resident Is Accused Because Man Said She Shot Him.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 11 (AP).—Hovering between life and death since June 26, when he was shot while motoring with Mrs. Alex Kecort, 34, George Kern, 54, died today in the Pittston Hospital.

State police later announced that they had taken Mrs. Kecort into custody and would enter a formal charge of murder against her.

Mrs. Kecort, who also was wounded in the mysterious shooting, was discharged from the hospital several weeks ago and released under $3,000 bail.

Police said that Kern had charged Mrs. Kecort with the shooting, alleging that she asked him to drive her to New York, and that when he refused she shot him twice before turning the pistol on herself.

Efforts to obtain a statement from Mrs. Kecort have been unsuccessful.

GERMANY OBSERVES CONSTITUTION DAY

COOLIDGE SENDS MESSAGE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—Germany held a quiet but impressive celebration of the seventh anniversary of the adoption of the Weimar Constitution. All the ceremonies were conducted with the greatest sincerity and earnestness.

President von Hindenburg attended the ceremonies held in the Reichstag, sitting in a reserved portion of the gallery with the Reichstag President, Herr Loebe, and the War Minister, Dr. Gessler.

After short speeches by Chancellor Marx and the Minister of the Interior, Herr Kuels, outlining Germany's history during the few but eventful years since the republic was proclaimed, and stating their hopes for further development, the President reviewed a guard of honor drawn up on the Platz der Republic, which, until a few weeks ago, bore the name of Kaiser Platz.

Thousands assembled and loudly cheered the President's advent, but completest silence reigned when the former war lord proved the troops' alignment and inspected minutely each soldier, speaking to several and clasping their hands warmly.

Though it was a national holiday, business houses were open as usual, only the Government bureaus observing it.

Few flags were flown, despite the widespread propaganda to get the people to display the national republican colors.

School children from the public schools had a holiday.

The Federal States also observed similar ceremonies, while the Republican Reichsbanner order held celebrations throughout the country.

Tomorrow a Cabinet meeting is scheduled to take up business unfinished by the last Reichstag session.

BERLIN, Aug. 11 (AP).—Many persons were injured and taken to hospitals tonight when Republicans and Communists clashed after a torchlight procession by the former in honor of the seventh anniversary of the adoption of the Republican Constitution.

It was necessary to call out a strong force of police before order was restored.

Coolidge Congratulates Hindenburg.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—President Coolidge today congratulated President von Hindenburg on the seventh anniversary of the adoption of the Republican Constitution in Germany. The message, made public by Secretary Kellogg, read:

Aug. 11, 1926.

His Excellency President von Hindenburg, Berlin, Germany.

On this anniversary of the birthday of the Republic of Germany I extend to your Excellency on behalf of the Government of the United States and in my own name cordial congratulations and earnest wishes for the continued prosperity of Germany. CALVIN COOLIDGE.

GERMANS CELEBRATE HERE.

1,500 at Liederkranz Hall Fete Anniversary of Constitution.

In celebration of the seventh anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the present German Republic, more than 1,500 Germans and German-Americans gathered in the old clubhouse of the Liederkranz Society at 111 East Fifty-eighth Street, last night, as guests of the German Consulate of New York. Several hundred persons were turned away after the hall had been filled to capacity.

"Deutschland uber Alles" was sung when pictures of President von Hindenburg and the late President Ebert were shown on a screen. Previous to this the assembly sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Dr. Karl von Lewinski, the German Consul General, who read an address, told of President Coolidge's cable message to President von Hindenburg, congratulating Germany on the republic's growth.

"We Germans appreciate this token of sympathy and friendship, coming from the great sister republic to the new German Republic," he said.

The Consul General, speaking German, reviewed the history of the German revolution and the adoption of the Constitution, and outlined what Germany has passed through and is facing in the future. He dwelt at length on what Germany has done to overcome Bolshevism in Europe.

If it had not been for the Socialist Party of Germany and its leaders, particularly Frederick Ebert, the first President, he said, Bolshevism would have swept not only Germany but all of Europe.

The possibility of a return to the old monarchy he declared to be negligible, and predicted that the present German Government would continue and that Germany would thrive under it.

He said the reconstruction of Germany was of vastly greater importance to the German people than any struggle between the proponents of democracy and monarchy.

Dr. Gustav Heuser, the German Consul, was in charge of the exercises, which included musical selections by Frank Siratt's orchestra and songs by Ernst Otto of the Deutsch Theatre. Germany. Pictures of scenes in Germany were also shown.

WIFE DID NOT END LIFE.

Mrs. Valencio Unable to Identify Husband's Suicide Companion.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11 (AP).—The body of a woman found with that of Emanuel Valencio in a gas-filled room in what the police said was a suicide compact was not that of his wife.

This was revealed today when Mrs. Valencio appeared at the Morgue and identified her husband's body, telling the authorities she had been married four years and had a two-year-old child. She was unable to identify the other woman.

Love notes which the two victims had written to each other in their last hours and some verse written by the woman, apparently after the man had died, were found by the police. One of the notes, written by the woman, was signed "Mae."

Mrs. Valencio told the police she had left her husband shortly after their marriage because of his attentions to other women, but returned to him a few months later.

TETUAN IS OCCUPIED BY SPANISH TROOPS

Move Hailed in Madrid as Big Step Toward Pacification of the Riff.

MADRID, Aug. 11.—A Spanish force under Colonel Capaz, at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, entered Tetuan and occupied the heights surrounding the city. Both the city and outlying villages yielded to the Spanish troops.

Great satisfaction is felt in Madrid at the able manner in which the commander handled the situation. The occupation means a big step toward pacification of the entire Spanish zone, the city being a highly important religious centre and hotbed of rebel resistance. In Abd-el Krim's day it was often the Riffian leader's headquarters.

HOPE TO RAISE H-29 TODAY.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The work of salvaging the submarine H-29 continued today. It is hoped that during the night she may be moved from No. 3 basin in Devonport Dockyard, where she sank, into an adjoining dry dock.

During last night the submarine was brought to an even keel and today she was upright in about 26 feet of water with 5 feet of conning tower exposed.

More hawsers were fixed to her hull and the water in the basin was lowered, pumps being placed in a position to exhaust the water from the vessel. The work was attended by some danger owing to the escape through the conning tower of poisonous fumes generated by the action of the sea water on the submarine's batteries.

A dockyard man was overcome by the gas, but was rescued. Workmen were then equipped with gas masks.

It is expected to morrow that it will be possible to gain access to the interior of the H-29 and recover the bodies of the six victims.

COOLIDGE OBTAINS CUTS IN BUDGET

1927 to omit filling such a number of these vacancies as will result in saving at least 2 per cent. of the total salary cost. This means that for each $100 for such salaries $2 at least will be covered into the surplus fund of the Treasury, and no employe need be discharged for the sole purpose of effecting this reduction.

Wherever the force can be reduced below the 2 per cent. figure proposed by this plan it will be done. President Coolidge feels that the Government force is entirely too large and can be greatly reduced without injury to efficiency.

It is probable that in some departments the entire 9 per cent. reductions occuring through deaths and resignations will be made by not appointing to the vacancies.

Another plan to save money is the extension of the system of taking advantage of discounts by paying the Government's bills within the discount periods and following the practices of private business.

Since 1920 the Government has saved in discounts $2,231,505,123. It is estimated that the present yearly discount savings can be increased 25 per cent. Duplications will be cut out and all the Government facilities used, instead of each department taking care of drayage and such overhead expenditures for itself.

Mr. Coolidge hopes to add to his economy program by getting through the next Congress a reorganization bill which has been under consideration since 1921. It has been opposed because it would do away with much surplus labor and lessen patronage.

Believing that the country is behind his economy program, the President, it was said today, would make this one of his chief economy measures in the next session of Congress.

Church and State At War In Mexico

THE "FINISH FIGHT" between Church and State which is going on in Mexico, has never had a parallel, newspaper editors say, on the Western continent. The Calles Government, according to official statements and dispatches from Mexico, considers the struggle one to abolish forever the political power which the Catholic Church has heretofore exercised in Mexico, while by the Church, the Government's campaign is regarded as a war upon religion under the pretext of destroying political activity on the part of the clergy.

While this is real contest between Church and State, all observers agree that it differs from the civil conflicts to which Mexico is so accustomed, for both sides are avowedly opposed to stirring up actual revolution, the State relying chiefly on its authority and prestige, and the Church being committed to a campaign of "passive resistance."

Replies to The Literary Digest's telegraphic request to Mexican editors for comment showed a caution not unnatural under the circumstances.

The leading article in The Literary Digest, this week, presents a detailed statement of all the facts. It gives the views of American newspapers, outlines both sides of the case from authoritative Mexican sources, and thus enables American readers to understand the situation as it exists in the Mexican Republic.

Something over $1,000,000 to nominate two United States Senators in Illinois, coming after the disclosure of "cash register politics" in Pennsylvania, sets the country wondering whether ballots are to be displaced by large-denominated bills in our State primaries.

This news-article shows public opinion upon the investigation being conducted by Senator Reed of campaign contributions in Illinois.

INTRODUCING
The Improved Packard Six

TODAY'S Packard Six will out-perform, in traffic and in speed, any Packard car ever built with one exception.

The exception is today's Packard Eight —The Boss of the Road.

The Packard Six has long excelled in beauty, in comfort and in distinction. In simplicity and in economy. Greater than ever in all of these, it now also excels in performance.

Those who drive the improved Packard Six will let others pass as a matter of courtesy, never of necessity.

In car beauty contest or contest on the open road it will more than hold its own against any Six, or any Eight, excepting cars of racing type.

Most useful and most appreciated of all, however, will be the car's agility and ease of control in crowded traffic.

For more than six years the Packard Six has been an inspiration to engineers. It has been the most copied car in the world, mechanically and in body lines.

Now the industry has something new to inspire it—the most brilliant performance of any Six, or any Eight, light or heavy.

If you would know the finest in motor cars permit us to demonstrate the improved Packard Six.

We give you the word of one of the oldest and most conservative companies that you will experience the greatest thrill of your motoring life.

Despite the fact that the glory of all previous Packards has been surpassed, Packard Six prices have not been increased.

You are cordially invited to ride in and drive the improved Packard Six whether you intend to buy a new car or not.

We shall be more than repaid in seeing you get your thrill and in the story you will tell your friends.

Our next advertisement will tell of the improved Packard Eight—

PUTNAM EXPEDITION PUTS TO SEA AGAIN

ALL-NIGHT FAREWELL PARTY

Governor and Settlement of Upernivik Provide Immense and Weird Banquet of Many Courses.

By GEORGE PALMER PUTNAM.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD SCHOONER MORRISSEY (Carrying the Putnam Arctic Expedition), Aug. 11.—We are off again!

The Morrissey floats at anchor in Upernivik Harbor. Her bottom has been patched by Eskimos and the Danish naval diver. There is life in the old girl yet. But it seems to me there is a chastened air about her. She has felt the deadly strength and peril of the Far North.

We leave today for Thule, Rasmussen's trading station beyond Cape York. We pass through the ice fields near the Duck Islands, on which we expect to secure several polar bears. We hope to meet again the schools of narwhal we saw coming down. Then we were leaking so badly we dared not stop.

The narwhal is the unicorn of the sea. Its ten-foot ivory tusk is highly prized among the Eskimos for harpoon shaft material. A twenty-five-foot narwhal is a sporting catch. Rasmussen tells us the raw skin is a delicacy.

Last night the little settlement, led by Governor Otto, gave us a farewell party. Certainly the hardships of shipwreck do not compare with the grim endurance required in this bewildering country. First, there was a feast: flesh of caribou, walrus, seal and sweet liver patties. After three courses of meat we merged into two egg courses: elder duck eggs boiled, auk eggs scrambled, and so on.

Then came fish pies and stews. After that we lost count.

An all-night dance began at 10 P. M. Two accordions alternated to supply the music. The cliffs and grounded bergs echoed the grotesque tunes.

Remember that in this topsy-turvy country there is no Summer sleep. Sunshine sparkles continuously from the snow ribbons among the cliffs.

Breathless and exhausted we stopped soon after midnight for the movies. A film was provided by our Good Samaritan, the local trade ship Iceland Falcon. The main trouble with this phase of the party was to get the fish house, in which it was held, dark enough so that the pictures would show.

The high point in the night's entertainment was an Eskimo wedding. This was held in the little driftwood chapel, just above the beach. The bride and groom expect to go fishing tomorrow for a honeymoon.

We are watching the weather with lively interest. A westerly wind would shift the vast ice fields of Melville Bay foward the rockbound coast that lies in a dark red strip between the sea and the ice cap. We dare not be caught among the floes. One more pinch and the already overstrained Morrissey might give up the ghost. While we do not feel the danger is great, the situation is just ticklish enough to add zest to this phase of the voyage.

An Eskimo medicine man reports through Rasmussen that "the future still holds excitement." This is not exactly good news. Our party feel that they have had their fair shore of excitement already.

This dispatch, sent from the schooner Morrissey, was picked up by an amateur radio operator, J. R. Miller of Hammond, Ind.

ARRESTED AFTER A CHASE.

Man Accused of Hold-Up Tries to Shoot Pursuing Policeman.

While running from the scene of a hold-up late last night, a man who gave his name as Charles Evans, a ship's fireman, living at the Seamen's Institute in South Street, was arrested by Patrolman John Fournier of the Morrisania Station. The arrest was made after a short chase, in which it was charged Evans tried to shoot his pursuer.

Max Seigel was alone in his candy shop at 736 East 163d Street, the Bronx, when a man entered and asked for a box of matches. When Seigel turned around he faced a revolver and was told to throw up his hands. He obeyed.

The robber emptied the drawer of the cash register, but neglected to take along a police whistle. He had hardly left the store when Seigel appeared on the sidewalk and began to blow the whistle. Fournier heard the call just as a running man reached Forest Avenue. He soon overtook the man. He was right behind when the robber drew his revolver and attempted to fire. Fournier knocked the pistol from the man's hand and placed him under arrest.

Later Seigel identified Evans as the man who had robbed him. The prisoner said he was born in England and had been in this country for five years. He said he returned to New York from a sea voyage about two months ago. He was questioned closely concerning the recent murder of Policeman Oehlerking.

NOT BODY OF W. S. WARD.

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The body of a man found on Tuesday afternoon in the Hudson River near this place and believed at first to be that of Walter S. Ward, is now thought to be that of John Hoefler of Interwood Cliff, N. J., who has been missing since Aug. 2, when he left his home to go fishing.

Two men related to Hoefler who viewed the body today were unable to identify it definitely, but said the clothing was that worn by Hoefler. Mrs. Hoefler is expected to view the body.

Ralph Ward, whose brother, Walter S. Ward, has been missing since May 9, said yesterday that he did not consider the reports that the body of the man found near Nyack might be that of his brother as worthy of investigation. He said the discrepancy between the description of the drowned man and that of his brother were so great as to remove all possibility in this regard.

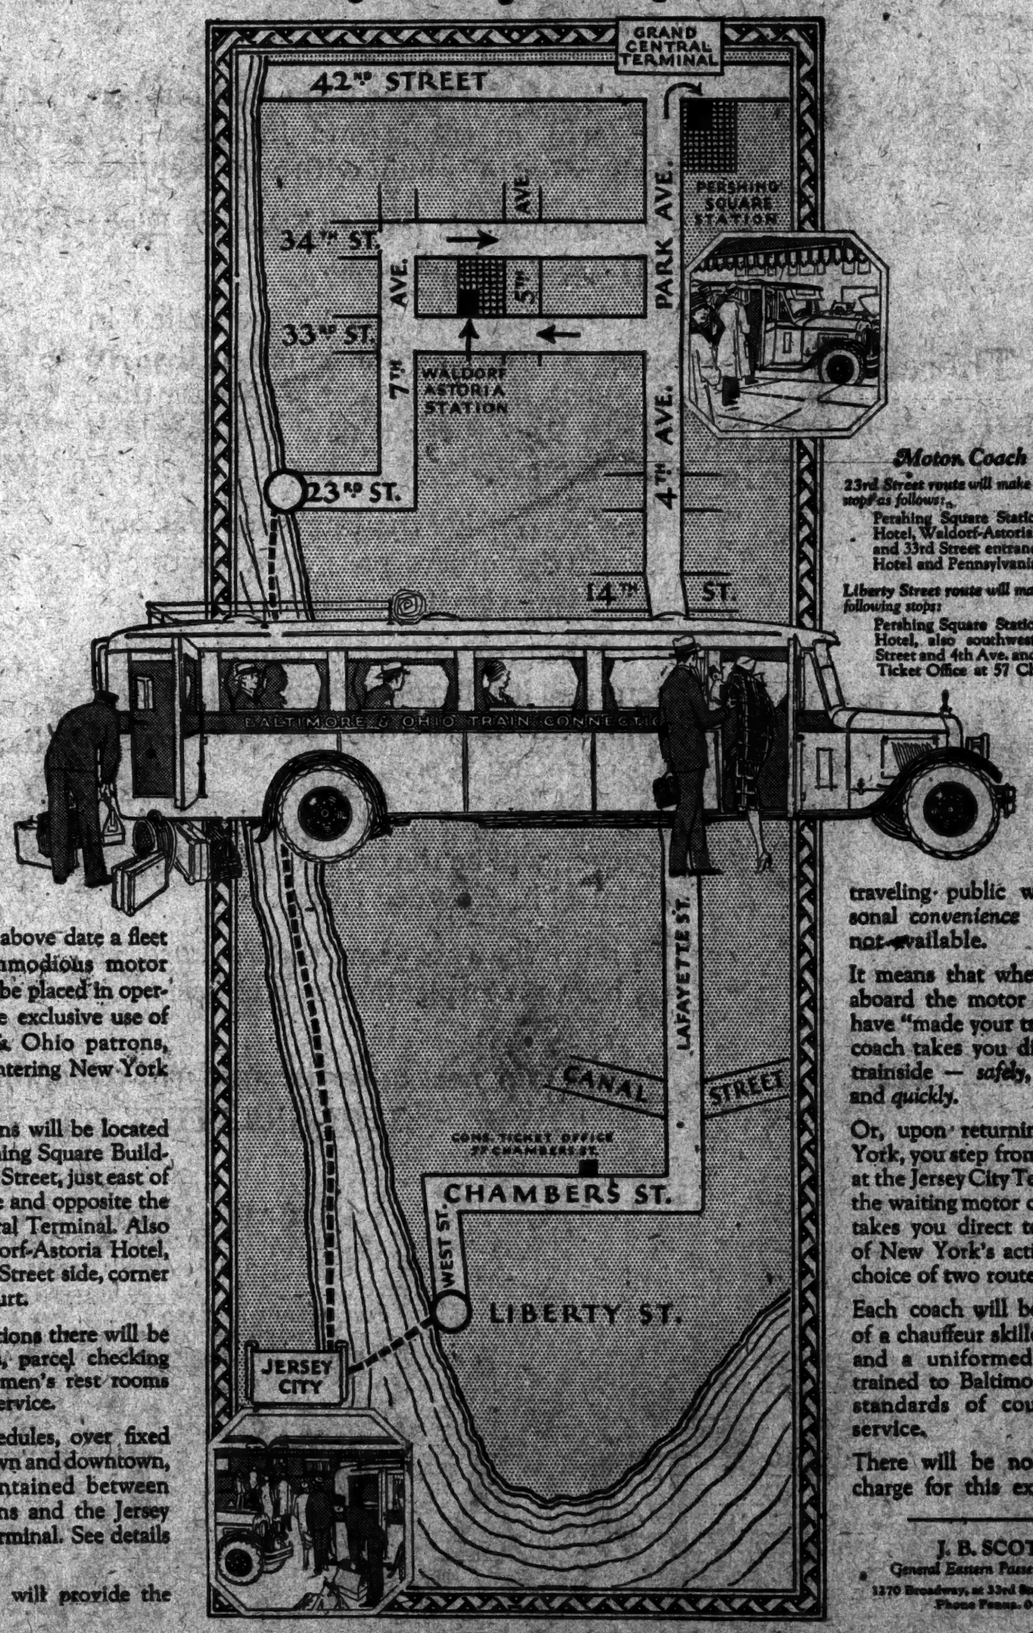
Announcing an outstanding improvement in travel convenience

Beginning August 29th

MOTOR COACH SERVICE

will be established by the Baltimore & Ohio from two new stations in the "Heart of New York" direct to trainside at Jersey City



ON THE above date a fleet of commodious motor coaches will be placed in operation for the exclusive use of Baltimore & Ohio patrons, leaving or entering New York City.

Coach stations will be located in the Pershing Square Building on 42nd Street, just east of Park Avenue and opposite the Grand Central Terminal. Also in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, on the 33rd Street side, corner of Astor Court.

At these stations there will be ticket offices, parcel checking facilities, women's rest rooms and porter service.

Regular schedules, over fixed routes, uptown and downtown, will be maintained between coach stations and the Jersey City train terminal. See details on the map.

This service will provide the traveling public with a personal convenience heretofore not available.

It means that when you step aboard the motor coach you have "made your train". Your coach takes you direct to the trainside — safely, comfortably and quickly.

Or, upon returning to New York, you step from your train at the Jersey City Terminal into the waiting motor coach which takes you direct to the heart of New York's activities, with choice of two routes.

Each coach will be in charge of a chauffeur skilled in traffic and a uniformed attendant trained to Baltimore & Ohio standards of courtesy and service.

There will be no additional charge for this extra service.

Motor Coach Stops

Liberty Street route will make the following stops:

Pershing Square Station, Vanderbilt Hotel, also southwest corner 14th Street and 4th Ave. and Consolidated Ticket Office at 57 Chambers Street.

A TISH STORY

By

Mary Roberts Rinehart

No matter what Charlie Sands might try to insinuate, there was no disputing the fact that at Tish's first séance she materialized an undeniable goldfish—and, at her second, she transmuted said goldfish into something suspiciously resembling an astral cat!

Yet her psychic powers—and her indomitable will—ran slap, bang into a stone wall when she wrestled with Emmie Hartford, that human jellyfish, to cure her doting but deluded husband, Will, of his delusions.

There has never been a Tish story with as many laughs in it as this one and you will want to turn right to it the first thing in this week's Saturday Evening Post—now on sale—five cents.

The Harvest of the Years by

with Wilbur Hall

The world knows Luther Burbank as a wizard who wrought strange wonders with plants, but this splendidly inspiring self-story of his life reveals him as also a master of beauty of thought and word.

The first installment of this most significant autobiography appears in The Saturday Evening Post—now on sale—five cents.

RELIEF WORKER IS FOUND.

Miss Eastman Lost Way in Fog on Russian Armenian Mountains.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 11 (AP).—A message from Tiflis says Miss Evelyn Eastman, Near East Relief worker, who was recently reported missing in Russian Armenia, has been found safe and well by a searching party under Peter Floyd of Cuthbert, Ga.

Miss Eastman is the daughter of Harry A. Eastman of Chicago. She had started out on horseback from Leninakan for Mount Alagoz to visit orphans placed by the Near East Relief with villagers there, but lost her way when dense clouds settled about the mountain.

Leaving her horse she groped forward on foot in an endeavor to reach the nearest village. She wandered the remainder of the day and all night. It was daybreak when the clouds began to lift and she reached a mountaineer's hut, where she was found.

Giants Lose; Yanks Drop Two; Robins Win—Dempsey Case Before Board Today

GIANTS PULLED BACK BY THE CUBS, 11 TO 1

GUY BUSH YIELDS 3 HITS

Does Not Allow a Man to Reach Second Until Sixth and Error Paves Way for Lone Tally.

By IK SHUMAN.

Everything that can happen to a baseball team in full flight happened to the Giants yesterday at the Polo Grounds, and chief of them was the pitching of Guy Bush of the Cubs. The Cubs, therefore, won the third game of the series, 11 to 1, checked the Giants in their climb toward the top of the first division and tied them again for fourth place.

Everything, as has been said, happened to the Giants, and this doesn't include the heat and humidity. There was the bat of Hack Wilson, for instance. And there was, also, the pitching of Jimmy Ring, which was simply terrible, so terrible that he was batted out of the box in the first inning simultaneously with the batting in of four runs. There was the defection in the playing of such stars as Frank Frisch and Travis Jackson, while Chick Davies tried bravely to stop the Cubs. defections which in the third inning resulted in four runs when the Cubs had got only one hit and two bases on balls.

Then, in that same third inning, Davies got his head in the way of a ball thrown by Frisch while Riggs Stephenson was on second and Hack Wilson on third. The ball had been batted by Charley Grimm, and Frisch was throwing it to second in an effort to make a double play when Chick's head interfered. The ball bounced from the skull of Chick on one hop all the way to right field; and although Stephenson scored and Hack got to third on this prodigious bounce, Chick didn't even bother to rub his head.

Frisch Gets the Error.

Perhaps he didn't feel it. Left-handers, as every one knows, are somewhat unusual. They survive all sorts and conditions of stress. It was a terrific whack for Chick's skull but the ruin was assigned, oddly, to Frisch, who received an error from the official scorer for hitting a left-hander in the head.

Chick, however, didn't pitch bad ball, and it might, with fielding such as the Giants have given other pitchers recently, have been scoreless ball, for errors by Frisch, Jackson and Snyder figured in every run scored off Ring's successor.

Meanwhile Guy Bush was pitching like a first-rater. He gave the Giants only three hits in the nine innings. They didn't get a man as far as second until the sixth, when Guy eased up for the only moment of rest he took in the nine innings. Hitherto the Giants, indeed, had been able to get only one man on first. That was Jackson, who reached it on the scratchiest sort of infield hit to Sparks Adams at second.

Guy eased up when Melvin Ott, the Giants' seventeen-year-old pinch hitter, came to bat in the sixth for Snyder. Guy grinned as the infant faced him, and the infant got the first clean hit, a single to left. He must have disturbed Guy, He made a wild pitch to Davies, and while Ott was going to second, Gabby Hartnett made a bad throw to the bag. Ott took third, and scored later on a sacrifice fly to Heinie Mueller.

Bush Just Coasts Along.

After that inning, Guy was again invincible and throughout the nine innings he allowed only thirty-one Giants to face him, which is pretty good pitching.

Jimmy Ring, who pitched a great game his last time out, was unexpectedly disappointing. He allowed Cliff Heathcote to single in the first inning after Adams had fouled out to Snyder. Then he gave a walk to Stephenson, and triples to Wilson and Grimm and a double to Howard Freigau, one after the other, for four runs, which were all the Cubs needed.

TAKES YANKS' VALUABLES.

Stranger Caught in Dressing Room —Trainer Thrashes Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 11.—On the pretense of being a friend of Babe Ruth, a mysterious individual talked his way into the Yankee dressing room before today's double header. While washing his hands he saw near him a strong box containing the players money, jewelry and other valuables. The stranger dipped his hand in and helped himself, then went on with his toilet.

Trainer Al Woods became suspicious when he saw a diamond ring fall from the stranger's towel and roll along the floor. Al seized the thief, searched him, found a roll of bills and then gave him an old-fashioned thrashing. The man was not turned over to the police.

Senators Ship Taylor to Memphis.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP).—Danny Taylor, Washington recruit outfielder acquired from Buffalo, will be released to Memphis on option for the remainder of the season, President Clark Griffith of the Washington club has just announced.

REDS ON STAMPEDE, CRUSH PHILLIES, 21-3

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11 (AP).—The Reds ran amuck here today and evened the series with the Phillies by winning the fourth game, 21 to 3. Wally Pipp hit a homer in the third with the bases filled and Hargrave followed with a circuit smash into the bleachers. Walker hit a third home run in the seventh.

YANKEES ARE STUNG TWICE BY SENATORS

18,000 See Hugmen Lose Both Games by 5-4, the Second Going Eleven Innings.

RUTH HITS HIS 37TH HOMER

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The Senators threw the Yankees for two falls in 6 hours and 20 minutes today and a home-coming crowd of 18,000 appeared to derive a fiendish satisfaction in observing the agonies of the New Yorkers.

Benny Tate, the second string catcher of the Senators, hit a first string homer in the eleventh inning and won the second game, 5 to 4.

By the same score the Yankees lost the first one, too, when Herb Pennock, none too handsomely supported, wilted in the intense heat and was overcome by slow stages.

Babe Ruth drove the ball over a forty-foot fence in right for his thirty-seventh homer in the second game. This made it 4 to 3 in the Senators' favor.

The Yankees tied it up in the ninth. Lazzeri started with a single and streaked to third when Carlyle hit for Dugan and singled to centre.

Paschal, batting for Collins, struck out, and the best Severaid could do as pinch-swinger for Myles Thomas was a tap in front of the plate. However, while Tate was making the out at first, Lazzeri came in from third and slid over the pan.

Ending Comes Quickly.

The ending was mercifully quick. Tate, first man up in the eleventh, smashed one to right centre. The ball rolled to the fence. Ruth, who earlier had pulled a charley-horse, hobbling in pursuit. By the time poor George had limped even with the ball Tate was rounding third.

Hoyt in the second game and Pennock in the first each received a nice lead, but both blew up. The Washington pitchers were Coveleskie and Marberry in the opener and Crowder in the second. Crowder is the rookie from Birmingham.

Bob Meusel pinch-hit in the first tussle and played all through the second. It was Bob's first appearance since he broke a bone in his foot at Boston on June 27.

The Yanks were off on a gallop in the first game. Myer's wild throw on Dugan, Severeid's triple and Pennock's short single produced two runs in the second. Koenig's single and Bucky Harris's error filled the bases, and Coveleskie walked Ruth, forcing Pennock. Paschal fanned with opportunity staring him in the face.

McNeely's triple and a single by S. Harris broke the Washington ice in the third, and Bluege's double, following a pair of walks, tied the score in the fourth.

The Yanks scored a run in the fifth. Ruth doubled, but was out at third when Paschal hit to Myer. Benjamin scored on singles by Lazzeri and Severeid.

Rice singled, was sacrificed and trotted home on Goslin's hit in the sixth. The winning run in the seventh happened along these lines:

Yanks Again Off First.

In the second game the Yankees crowded Crowder for two runs, with two out in the opening round, on a walk to Gehrig, Ruth's triple to centre and an infield hit by Meusel.

This lead lasted just two innings. In the third Stewart singled, went to second on a passed ball and to third on Collins's wild throw. Rice and Goslin doubled to left and Judge tripled to the same precinct. Bluege's single drove the fourth run in and Mr. Hoyt out. Ruth's homer made it 4 to 3 in the sixth.

Bucky Harris protested too much in the first game and was put out by Umpire Owens, who called Jones safe at second, although nearly every one else thought Myer had touched him in plenty of time.

Bucky grabbed Owens by the coat and uttered burning words and then had the rest of the afternoon to cool off.

Ruth pulled a charley-horse in the first game while going after an easy fly and limped a little toward the close. Buddy Myer was damaged in a head-on collision with Gehrig and was replaced by the ancient Peckinpaugh.

Move to Stay Police in Philadelphia From Stopping Sunday Baseball There

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11 (AP).—An injunction will be sought to prevent police interference with a baseball game the Philadelphia Americans propose playing at Shibe Park on Sunday, Aug. 22, to test the blue laws of 1794.

This was announced today by Charles C. Gartling, counsel for the Athletics, at the conclusion of a conference with Mayor Kendrick and City Solicitor Joseph P. Gaffney.

Mr. Kendrick informed Mr. Gartling he would use the full police power to prevent the playing of professional baseball here on the Sabbath.

Announcement that the ball game was being considered was made by the Athletics' officials when an injunction restraining the opening of the Sesqui on Sundays was denied by the Common Pleas Court.

John B. Shibe, Vice President of the Athletics, declared that other amusements were permitted to run on Sunday without interference, or at the most on payment of a small fine, and that professional baseball should not be discriminated against.

A statement from the Mayor's office said he had instructed the City Solicitor to oppose the proposed injunction proceedings.

HAINES SHUTS OUT BRAVES WITH 5 HITS

Blanks Boston Second Time This Season and Cards Carry Off Final, 2-0.

BOSTON, Aug. 11 (AP).—Jess Haines pitched his second shut-out of the season against Boston and the Braves ended their current home stay by dropping a 2 to 0 game to St. Louis. Haines held the Warriors to five hits.

Brilliant fielding staved off St. Louis runs until the eighth, when singles by Bottomley and Douthit and O'Farrell's double broke up the game.

Sanford Stakes Are Won by Northland, Which Is Home First by Two Lengths

NORTHLAND RUSHES TO THE WIRE FIRST

LORD CHAUCER IS SECOND

Is Two Lengths Back, While Bostonian Trails Him by the Same Distance.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Walter J. Salmon became the possessor of a strikingly beautiful racing trophy when his fine colt Northland came home the winner of the Sanford Stakes over the six-furlong course here this afternoon. This handsome son of North Star III and Diversion was bred by his owner and won in convincing fashion, running the best race of his career, covering the distance in 1:13, under 115 pounds.

Northland likes a fast track, but after running second to Sun Forward in the Albany Handicap, conceding the latter 13 pounds, Mr. Salmon thought he might also run in the mud, so he sent him into the Saratoga Special. In that event Maiben did not punish the colt after he saw he had no chance of winning. Today's track just suited him, and he was at the top of his form. As he is engaged in all the big two-year-old events, his owner has high hopes that he will prove his class.

Northland earned $5,175 for Mr. Salmon, including the cup, which is valued at $500. After the race Mr. Salmon was called to the stewards' stand, where he received the cup. The Sanford was established in memory of the late General Stephen Sanford. His son, John Sanford, annually presents the valued plate. This year it is a racing trophy made in London more than a century ago, which Mr. Sanford picked up in England.

Track Dries Out Well.

A heavy shower during the early morning hours soaked the course, but a strong sun and a nice breeze dried it out well by the time the horses answered the bugle for the first race, and it was fast, although not at its keenest edge.

Northland found the track very much to his liking by the time the running of the Sanford Stakes arrived. Johnny Maiben seemed to feel that the colt had plenty of speed, for he sent him right out with the snap of the barrier to kill off his opposition. Northland isn't partial to heavy going, but the dust was flying now, and he quickly killed off the aspirations of the Arden Farm's Hat Brush, which tried for a bit to give him an argument. After straightening out in the homestretch, Northland began to draw away, and Maiben was easing at the end to win by nearly two lengths.

The Sagamore Stable's Lord Chaucer, one of the last to leave the barrier, finished very strongly to take the place by the same margin from H. P. Whitney's Bostonian. The latter, too, was off none too well, but was always within striking distance of the leaders, and at the finish had a length on his stable companion, Valorous.

The W. S. Kilmer entry of Sun Forward and Account, the heavily backed favorites, were never factors. There was a strong play on the Salmon colt, which closed at 18 to 5. The fractional times were 0:23 1-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13.

Large Crowd on Hand.

A crowd of almost holiday proportions turned out for the afternoon sport, and the visitors had a hard time battling with the bookies. While two favorites came first to the wire, they were at very short prices, and a 20 to 1 shot helped to muddle things for the players. There was a sensational spill in the first race, in which Henry Stark's three-year-old filly Prattle stumbled in the stretch in front of the grand stand and tossed off the apprentice jockey, R. Haviland. The boy was uninjured.

A lot of money went up the spout in the running of the Watervliet Handicap at a mile. T. W. O'Brien's Forecaster failed to get home in the money. The home-bred four-year-old was the heavily backed favorite, with the public taking 8 to 5 and 2 to 1. Forecaster made a brave showing for a time and then curled up, dropping out of the picture when Jefferson Livingston's McAuliffe raced into the lead.

In the run down the homestretch there was a general shuffle of positions, and McAuliffe was hard put to save the short end of the money, first going to Charles A. Mills's Millwick by a head over the Greentree Stable's Dazzler, the second choice in the field of eight. Millwick was a 7 to 1 shot.

Only three faced the starter in the Stillwater Steeplechase Handicap under claiming conditions, and of these only two finished the course. The Sewickley's Stable English bred gelding Another Star broke down after negotiating the water jump the first time, and Burgess pulled him up. The race was just a good, stiff workout for the Greentree Stable's consistent jumper Conniebert, Marsters taking the old mare out in front all the way and bringing her home a couple of lengths in front of H. P. Whitney's Heckler, a home-bred son of Whiskbroom II.

There wouldn't have been much excitement to the opening number if it hadn't been for Haviland's spill off Prattle. As it happened right in front of the grand stand, the spectators shuddered when the filly stumbled and Haviland shot off and rolled in the dust. They were quickly reassured as the lad got to his feet with silks and dignity more injured than his anatomy. He declined the services of Dr. Moriarty and the ambulance and walked to the jockey house unassisted.

MET. ATHLETES TRIUMPH.

Win Majority of A. A. U. Events in New Haven Police Games.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 11.—Competitors from the metropolitan district captured a majority of the A. A. U. events at the annual games of the New Haven Police Department at Lighthouse Point this afternoon. The Century Athletic Club athletes featured the meet, Wibekan, Gus Moore and Buckner starring.

The girls from the Paterson Municipal Recreational Department made a clean sweep in the events open to young women, Miss Eleanor Egg taking two firsts. Normal Hall, who has been high scorer at the Yale interscholastic meet for two years, representing the Roxbury School of Cheshire, took both shot puts.

Crusader Has Final Workout In 2:08 for Historic Travers

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Crusader, the Glen Riddle Farm's candidate for the historic $15,000 Travers Stakes next Saturday, worked a slashing final trial this morning, going the full mile and a quarter in 2:08, the fractional times being 0:38 3-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:53 2-5, 2:08. With Pompey in the running the race will not be such a friendly one as usually marks a meeting between such sportsmen as Samuel D. Riddle and William R. Coe, since the former refused a service by Man o' War to the latter's mare Cleopatra, Pompey's dam. Mr. Riddle later relented and there is a fine yearling of which much is expected next year. Mars worked easily this morning in 2:15 3-5 for the Travers.

RACE SPILL SENDS RIDERS TO HOSPITAL

CRETE, Ill., Aug. 11 (AP). — A bad spill occurred in the sixth race at the Lincoln Fields track here this afternoon when H. Elston, riding Kum Kalessi, and J. Roberts on Sixty fell at the first turn. Both boys were rushed to the Chicago Heights Hospital, where it was learned both were badly bruised, but no bones were fractured. Neither horse appeared to be injured.

LACEY, HURT, HERE WITH POLO STARS

OTHER ARGENTINES ARRIVE

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

Two developments of more than usual interest to polo were uncovered yesterday with the arrival of the main body of the Argentine polo team on board the Homeric. The players went to Westbury and will practice there at the end of the week.

It developed that Lewis Lacey, the star of the team and the field captain, one of the four ten-goal players in the world, had more than a slight spill during the playing of the last match in England on July 17. In his own words, it was "a bad spill," and he sustained what he described as a "slight concussion of the brain."

The Argentine field leader has not sat a horse since that day and, though he proclaimed his readiness for immediate play, it remains to be seen whether he will round into form for the first tournament, scheduled for the team at Rumson, N. J., on Aug. 28.

The other development of the day was the fact that two of the Argentine string of ponies have died at Mitchel Field, where they have been quartered since their arrival here two weeks ago.

One Valued Above $5,000.

One of the mounts was a star performer, Pena's Favorita, which has played here before and for which the owner refused $5,000 in England at the close of the season there this Summer. The other was one of the string which belongs to C. N. Land and which came here direct from Argentine with the owner.

Major R. Turner, in charge of the Argentine string, denied anything in the nature of an epidemic and asserted that the thirty-eight surviving mounts were in shape and ready for play here.

The players arriving last night on the Homeric were, besides Lacey, John D. Nelson, the real organizer of the expedition; Manuel Andrada, A. N. Pena and Juan Reynal. At the pier to meet them was F. S. O'Reilly, Executive Secretary of the United States Polo Association, and their team-mate Land, who has been here for several days and has played a bit here while waiting.

Lacey is a player of an utterly reckless sort, and on his last visit here in 1924 as a member of the British international four he was ill and injured and there was doubt that he would be able to play at all, though he finally did with the aid of an elaborate shoulder brace.

Lacey at No. 3.

Lacey would say nothing much of the team, referring questioners to Nelson who, he said, was the real leader and had made him field leader only because of their long association on the playing field and his "sporting feeling." Lacey announced his playing line-up as Land, Nelson, himself and Andrada. Lacey has usually played as back in this country but expressed no doubt that he could fit into the comparative slight change the shift in position will entail. He has played a good deal at three.

Nelson explained that the team had never played together and said that this, while a non-official team, is really the most representative one yet sent out from the South American republic.

"The country, you know," he said, "is a large one. It is as though there was a good player in California and one in New York. They do not often have a chance to get together. This team we have selected from the entire country and from the best players available. It is truly a national team."

One of the most picturesque members of the team is Andrada, who does not speak any English and who comes from one of the largest ranching families in Argentina. Nelson, in speaking of him, said that his presence here was the realization of a long dream of his. "In playing form Andrada weighs about 180 pounds and he is fast, remarkably fast for his weight. He is the one man in the Argentine who resembles your Devereux Milburn in that he is a terrific hitter, fast and big and strong."

BUFFALO BOWLERS WIN.

Take All Events in National Lawn Tourney on Home Ground.

BUFFALO, Aug. 11 (AP).—Buffalo lawn bowlers captured all of the contests at the National Lawn Bowling tournament which closed this evening. Dr. F. C. Kleeker's rink defeated the team skipped by Alexander M. Milne of Essex County, N. J., for the Walter Scott Trophy, 24 to 14.

Scratched—Chocolate Soldier, Little Dave and Dubric.

Calumet, much the best, was rated off the pace to the stretch. He closed with a rush on the outside, took the lead and won easily. Badenoch was in close quarters in the early part, saved ground by hugging the rail and finished with a rush. Kilter had no excuse. He was well up all the way but quit. Alley Cop had speed for six furlongs but tired and swerved out, causing Prattle to fall.

$9,200 TOP PRICE AT SARATOGA SALE

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Another gathering of blood stock breeders, members of society and others interested assembled at the sales ring of the Fasig-Tipton Company this evening for the sixth day of the annual yearling sale. Bidding was more lively than usual and there was sharp competition for a number of the offerings.

Forty-five head came under the hammer of Auctioneer Bain, and they brought a total of $143,600, the average being $3,191. This was the second highest total of the current season. The leading consignee was the firm of Carr & Platt of Lexington, Ky., and the top price of $9,200 was obtained for one of their offerings.

This was a bay colt by John P. Grier out of Lois Cavanaugh. It had been anticipated that the get of this sterling race horse would bring out some spirited bidding and for this half brother to Zeiner James Cox Brady and George D. Widener were the contenders. The colt was finally knocked down to the former under his nom de course of the Hamilton Farms.

The same owner also was a lively bidder for a chestnut colt by Bunting out of Julleanne and he was eventually knocked down to Mr. Brady for $9,000.

Another of the John P. Griers was a chestnut colt out of Dinah Did, and Max Hirsch, acting for Charles Schwartz, got him with a top bid of $7,500. Paul Connelly was the successful bidder for a chestnut colt by Bunting, out of Bonnie Carrie, paying $6,600.

Another Bunting went to the Sagamore Stable for $6,000, this being a bay colt out of Trompeuse. The same sum brought a chestnut filly by Thunderer, out of Lady Moon'et, a sister to the well-known sprinter Worthmore, to William Ziegler Jr.

Bud Fisher did some bidding and finally landed a chestnut colt by John P. Grier, out of imported Graceneote, paying $5,600 for her. Another by the same sire out of Gold Mine, a bay or brown colt, fell to the bid of the Hamilton Farm for $5,900.

Post and Paddock

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Among the visitors at the clubhouse of the Saratoga Association this afternoon was Colonel H. C. Whitehead, chief of the Federal Remount Service at Washington, who has done a great service for the cause of the thoroughbreds.

Now that the racing strip has been thoroughly beaten down by heavy rains, it dries readily after a shower, and visitors this afternoon were surprised to find a fast track.

It looked like a Saturday afternoon at the Union Avenue plant. The crowd on the rail extended from the clubhouse to the very top of the stretch.

Gifford A. Cochran lost his three-year-old colt, Baldpate, out of the first race. W. J. Norton claiming him for his entered price of $3,500.

The Sewickley Stable of J. F. Byers of Pittsburgh has had more than its share of hard luck to discourage a newcomer. His jumper, Another Star, had to be destroyed after breaking an ankle in the Stillwater Steeplechase this afternoon. Mr. Byers paid a big price, said to have been $25,000, for the good jumped Carabinier and he died. He bought Thorndale for $15,000, but it is doubtful if he will ever start again, making three catastrophes in a row.

Mrs. Fifi Widener Leidy will make her début tomorrow in the thoroughbred world. The daughter of President Joseph E. Widener of the Westchester Racing Association will start under her own silks in the sixth race Laddie, a full brother to Ladkin. This two-year-old is a bay colt by Fair Play—Ladin and had been named in various juvenile stakes by Mr. Widener.

J. P. Smith's five-year-old horse Goldbug was claimed out of the fifth race by C. Kloha for $8,000.

EASTERN R BOATS GAIN A BIG LEAD

Cowl's Ardelle Has a Chance Yet After Two Races—Ellen in Van.

Special to The New York Times.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 11.—A trio of Massachusetts Bay R boats threw a double hitch around the Manhasset Bay Cup today by scoring heavily in two races. A single Long Island Sound yacht, Ardelle, has a look in, but the three leaders, Ellen, Ruweida V and Gossoon will have to lag badly tomorrow to lose to the New Yorker.

At the close of the two races this afternoon the fourteen yachts stood as follows on points: Charles B. Curtis's Ellen, 30; Sydney A. Begg's Ruweida V, 28; C. F. Adams's Gossoon, 26; D. H. Cowl's Ardelle, 21; H. W. Hanan's Astrild, C. H. W. Foster's Mary and Dr. Morton Prince's Bonnie Kate, 18 each; C. A. Welch's Yankee, 16; Hitt and Mallory's Alarm, J. C. Gray Jr.'s Scappa II and R. B. Meyer's Bob Kat, 14 each; J. J. Moeb's Rebel, 10; P. R. Mallory's Quiver, 6, and R. Law Jr.'s Doress, 5. The Grayling did not start.

The yachts will sail a final race tomorrow morning.

Both races were sailed today in a moderate to light southwester, the first a five-mile beat to windward and return and the second over a ten-mile triangular course which was a beat, a reach and a run.

Williams and Richards Finally Go Down Before Tilden and Johnston

TILDEN-JOHNSTON TURN BACK RIVALS

THIRD SET IS A CLASSIC

By ALLISON DANKIG.

In a match that started so drably as to put the gallery in a forgiving mood for a team that seemed to have lost its incentive, but which had its ending in one of the greatest sets of tennis ever played, William Tilden and William Johnston defeated Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams 2d yesterday in the third and final of the Davis Cup doubles trials at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills.

Only three sets were required for the winning team to turn the tables on their opponents, who had defeated them in two sets on Monday and in five on Tuesday, but the last set, which required one hour and five minutes for a decision, was a match in itself and will stand out in the memory of those who saw it long after the results of the three tests are forgotten.

Richards and Williams, apparently at the mercy of their keener, more flamboyant opponents in the early stages of the match, recaptured the magnetic touch which had brought them through to victory on Monday and Tuesday, and, to the accompaniment of the thunder from the skies, fought off Tilden and Johnston through thirty-two games of as thrilling tennis as a gallery ever witnessed.

Is a Terrific Battle.

For thirty games, so evenly were the teams matched, the four men fought like titans in cyclonic pace without a single break through service developing. Then, after the national champions had been four times within a stroke of the set, Williams's racquet betrayed him into erring ways at the net. Richards was broken through and Johnston won his game as Williams continued to fight the set with his volleys, bringing the play to an end. The score was 6—2, 6—4, 17—15. The final set stands with the McLoughlin-Brookes set, which required the same number of games, as one of the longest on record in an important match.

In winning this match in three sets Tilden and Johnston came out of the cup trials with the same number of sets to their credit as their opponents, although they lost two of the matches. The opening contest, a two-out-of-three-set affair, ended in the second set, while the national champions increased their margin in winning at 3 to 2 on Tuesday.

The third match between the junior members of the cup squad also resulted in a reversal of the results of the first two. George Lott and A. H. Chapin Jr. turned on Edward Chandler and Lewis White to defeat them in five sets at 6—4, 6—4, 1—6, 7—9, 6—4.

Tilden Takes Command.

Tilden was the outstanding figure on the court for the two first sets of the big match. Except for a few moments of weakness off the ground at the very outset, his stroking was almost flawless. Placing his shots with craftiness and batting them to catch errors in the sector just over the net, the champion not only scored repeatedly on blistering drives, but earned equally as many more points on the errors into which he lured the enemy. Williams was hooked on this bait constantly, failing to lift his half volleys high enough, while Richards also did not have his usual touch in handling these placements to his feet.

Johnston's stroking was lacking in such guile, although his returns of service were directed to open territory in the alley. The Californian put his reliance in pace and his sledge hammer forehand drives ripped through the turf. Instead of allowing Richards and Williams to gain the net position, Tilden and Johnston went forward themselves and their volleying and smashing, particularly Tilden's handling of lobs, was of destructive character.

Two breaks through Williams in the first set and another through him in the second gave Tilden and Johnston these two sets in the space of half an hour. Then the real struggle began, a struggle which was filled with electrifying exploits at the net, frenzied sallies in which the tide of battle fluctuated as the two teams jockeyed for position and dazzling strokes off service. Tilden and Richards were both remarkably effective in service, while Johnston and Williams were continually having trouble in making their deliveries effective.

Richards Fights Off Rivals.

The climax of the match, and indeed of the three days of play, was reached in the nineteenth game. The exhibition of volleying that Richards gave in this game sent the spectators into paroxysms of delight. Tilden, who had been trying day after day to make Richards miss a volley shot, decided that he was going to accomplish his purpose if he had to fight it out on those lines all night. In a rally in which the play was between them entirely, the champion, from his left-hand corner, sent the ball at the New York youth at the net six times in exactly the same line. Each time Richards sent it back at him with full volleys and half volleys, until finally he made an end to the play with a smashing kill.

The cheers had hardly died down before he was in another duel, this time with both Johnston and Tilden attacking him. Again Richards stood them off until Williams stepped in and made the finishing shot. Once more in the next rally the same thing happened, with Richards putting the enemy to rout, and from that point to the end the gallery was heart and soul for the champions.

TILDEN TO PLAY JOHNSTON.

Three Out of Five Sets Will Decide Match on Saturday.

As the feature of the program announced by the tennis officials in charge of the East-West matches at the West Side Tennis Club Stadium, Forest Hills, there is the first meeting of the season Saturday between the old rivals, William T. Tilden and William Johnston.

This match, at 3 P. M. Saturday, will be the best three out of five sets at the direct request of the champion, and will furnish the first clash of the year between the champion and the man who has been his greatest rival since he took the title from him in 1920.

MISS BROWNE GAINS IN STATE TOURNEY

Defeats Mrs. Roeser, 6-1, 6-0, and Advances to Semi-Finals With Mrs. Lockhorn.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Miss Mary K. Browne and Mrs. Helen Gilleaudeau Lockhorn reached the semi-final round of the women's New York State tennis championship this morning on the courts of the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club. Miss Browne allowed Mrs. Edna Hauselt Roeser, metropolitan clay court champion, only one game, playing with such severity from back court and at the net that the New York woman was unable to ever take the offensive. The score was 6—1, 6—0.

Mrs. Lockhorn, Connecticut State title holder, had much more of a struggle to gain her bracket. Mrs. Edward Raymond fought her through sixteen games before yielding in the opening set and made a stubborn battle in the second also before yielding at 9—7, 6—2.

Miss Helen Wills and Mrs. Molla Mallory were scheduled to play this afternoon, but a heavy rainstorm forced a postponement of their matches until tomorrow morning when Miss Wills will face Mrs. Helen Pollak Falk, and Mrs. Mallory will play Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin. Play in the men's Southern New York State championship also was held up by the rain.

Brian Norton and Cranston Holman went on the court and were on the verge of playing their fourth round match when the storm broke. Vincent Richards and William Tilden, who have been playing in the Davis Cup trials, will return here tomorrow to play in the tournament. Richards, who is two rounds behind Tilden, will start play in the morning. The final of the men's singles is scheduled for Sunday.

One doubles match was concluded before the storm drove the players from the court. Mrs. William H. Pritchard and Mrs. J. E. Bailey fought a thrilling battle and just managed to defeat Miss Marguerite Dwyer and Miss Josina van der Ende. The score was 7—5, 3—6, 8—6.

Today the remaining matches in the fourth round of the singles will be staged at 10:30 A. M., and the singles semi-finals between Miss Browne at 2:30, with the other semi-final between the morning winners at 3:30.

MISS WILLS HEADS 59 STARS IN NATIONAL

BELL AGAIN WINS IN JUNIOR TENNIS

DOEG SCORES OVER SMITH

Seligson and Pare Also Continue in Race for National Title—Wood Triumphs in Boys' Play.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (AP).—Berkeley Bell of Austin, Texas, and John Doeg of Santa Monica, Cal., blasted their opponents off the courts today to enter the quarter-finals of the National Junior Tennis Championship at the South Side Tennis Club. Bell and Doeg are seeded one and two in the draw and are favorites to meet in the final round.

Bell continued his devastating way along the path to titular honors by crushing Malcolm T. Hill, Wabash, Mass., 6—1, 6—2. Bell's speedy chop strokes and flashy net game proved to be his winning weapons. No opponent has won more than two games in a set from him so far in the tournament.

Doeg showed improvement over yesterday's loose playing, the Coast southpaw giving Joseph Smith of St. Louis a sound drubbing, 6—3, 6—4.

Seligson Advances.

Julius Seligson of New York was the first junior to enter the quarter-finals, downing Arthur Kussman of Los Angeles, 6—4, 6—1. Seligson's powerful ground strokes kept the Coast star from the net, his favorite position. Emmet Pare of Chicago, the Middle West's leading junior, entered the quarter-finals with a straight set victory over Edward Jacobs of Baltimore, 7—5, 6—2.

Donald Strachan of Philadelphia was in fine form to defeat Howe Bancroft of San Diego after losing the first set, 2—6, 6—0, 6—3. Bob Seller, Pacific Coast junior champion, and Dolf Meuhleisen, Los Angeles, took their places in the select bracket of the final eight with victories over Gustav Feuer, Miami, and Howard Langlie, Seattle, respectively.

Seller had no trouble in driving his way through Feuer, 6—3, 6—3. Meuhleisen sprang a mild surprise with his easy victory over Langlie, who beat Henry L. Johnson Jr. yesterday.

Wood and Coen Win.

Junior Coen of Kansas City and Sidney Wood Jr. of Forest Hills, L. I., easily advanced to the semi-finals of the National Boys' Championship. Coen, rated as the favorite, swept Harold Blauer, Lawrence, L. I., off the court, 6—2, 6—2. Wood put out Arthur Noble, Newton Centre, Mass., 6—4, 6—3.

Fred Brace of Pontiac and William Schommer of Milwaukee went into the semi-final of the boys' doubles by defeating Robert McGoodwin, Philadelphia, and Monta Tiller, Louisville, 6—4, 6—3.

William O'Loughlin of Pittsburgh, seeded second in the boys' singles, won his way to the semi-final, defeating John Sheldon of Glencoe, Ill., 7—5, 6—4, 6—4. Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, Cal., was the other boy to enter the semi-final bracket, defeating Nick Lukats, Gary, Ind., 6—1, 6—4.

The summaries:

Juniors.

Singles, Fourth Round—Donald Strachan, Philadelphia, defeated Howe Bancroft, San Diego, Cal., 2—6, 6—0, 6—3; Robert Doeg, Santa Monica, Cal., defeated Joseph Smith, St. Louis, 6—3, 6—4; Berkeley Bell, Austin, Texas, defeated Malcolm T. Hill, Wabash, Mass., 6—1, 6—2; Bob Seller, San Francisco, defeated Gustav Feuer, Miami, 6—3, 6—3; Dalb Meuhleisen, Los Angeles, defeated Howard Langlie, Seattle, 6—3, 6—3; Julius Seligson, New York, defeated Arthur Kussman, Los Angeles, 6—4, 6—1; Emmet Pare, Chicago, defeated Edward Jacobs, Baltimore, 7—5, 6—2.

Boys.

Singles, Fourth Round—Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, Cal., defeated Nick Lukats, Gary, Ind., 6—1, 6—4; William O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh, defeated John Sheldon, Glencoe, Ill., 7—5, 6—4, 6—4; Junior Coen, Kansas City, defeated Harold Blauer, Lawrence, L. I., 6—2, 6—2; Sidney Wood Jr., Forest Hills, L. I., defeated Arthur Noble, Newton Centre, Mass., 6—4, 6—3.

cally revoking or withdrawing Willis's challenge. A demand will be made, it is understood that the commission place itself specifically on record on this point, which is expected to develop into the crux of the whole situation.

Though his confidence that the fight will be sanctioned here is undimmed, Promoter Rickard, it is known, is making arrangements to transfer it elsewhere. The promoter has Jersey City and Philadelphia available as prospective sites, and it is understood Rickard favors Philadelphia.

"The fight will be held on Sept. 16; that is all I have to say," was the declaration of Rickard.

Dempsey Works With Fury.

That Dempsey, highly nervous ordinarily, is being affected by the situation was reflected in the workout in which the champion engaged yesterday before a capacity gathering at Stillman's Gymnasium. Dempsey confined his drill to sparring and limited the workout to about twenty minutes but it was the most spectacular drill to which he has augured since coming here and reflected the fury of the champion in action more than any previous workout since Dempsey undertook training while awaiting disposition of his license application.

Dempsey fought less than five full rounds, although he was scheduled for seven. He knocked out Alfredo Porzio, South American heavyweight, in about two minutes, crushing the foreign boxer under the impact of his terrific left hook, and in another sharp bout Dempsey's left hook disposed of Jim Myers, east side middleweight, in about two minutes. The champion boxed a spirited round with Roberto Delfino, who got off with nothing more serious than a bloody nose and was immediately engaged as a sparring partner and was sent to Saratoga. Porzio, it was announced, also was engaged. Ted Moore, English middleweight, fought Dempsey for two spirited rounds, but the champion, undoubtedly alive to his inability to restrain himself, refused the request of Frankie Garcia, Mexican featherweight, to box. Through the workout Dempsey let his rivals bang away at his body and at his face. Several punches landed on the champion's nose without having any visible effect.

Dundee, 17 Years in Ring, Works Out on Anniversary

BILL SPENCER WINS ONE-MILE BIKE RACE

Horder and Van Kempen Also Triumph Before 16,000 at Newark Velodrome.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 11.—Willie Spencer, twice champion of America, Harris Horder, the diminutive Australian star and Pete Van Kempen, the all-around champion of Europe, divided honors at the Newark Velodrome tonight before a crowd of 16,000 fans.

Spencer in a sensational ride won the one mile open professional event. Horder riding from scratch took the two-mile handicap, while Van Kempen defeated Gabriel Foulain of France in a one-mile match race, beating him in two straight heats.

Bill Spencer in taking the mile open just nipped Cecil Walker at the tape, while Orlando Piani was third, Harris Horder fourth, Fred Spencer fifth and Alois Degraeves sixth. Horder won a hard race in taking the two-mile handicap. He spreadeagled the field on the last half-lap and just beat out Degraeves and Walker in the home stretch. Degraeves was second and Walker third.

Walter Kraus of the Empire City Wheelmen won a nasty tumble in the one-third-mile amateur championship race, the second of the series of six races to decide the amateur title and the final of the event was put off until Saturday night on account of Krauss's injuries. The fall happened during the running of the final of the event. Tullio Celano, Edward Raffo and Bill Coles were the other riders to reach the final.

Frank Keenan of Boston, riding at a steady clip all the way, won the fifty-mile national motor paced championship race, the twenty-first of the series of thirty-six races to decide the motor paced championship of America. The standing in the championship is as follows: Jaeger 45, Greasin 36, Hopkins 36, Keenan 36, Madonna 30, Chapman 28.

One-Mile Open (Professional)—Won by William Spencer, Newark; Cecil Walker, Australia, second; Orland Piani, Italy, third; Harris Horder, Australia, fourth; Fred Spencer, Plainfield, fifth; Alois De Graves, Belgium, sixth. Time—2:09 2-5.

Won by Keenan; Chapman, second; Madonna, third; Hopkins, fourth; Jaeger, fifth; Grassin, sixth. Time—1:12:36 1-5.

GARDNER WINS ON LINKS.

New Yorker Beats Rothschild, 4 and 2, in Greenbrier Golf.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Aug. 11.—M. Gardner of New York took the measure of Louis F. Rothschild, another New York entry, 4 up and 2 to play, in the second round of match play in the first flight of the Greenbrier Sumater golf tournament here today. Second round matches were also played in the second flight and ladies' division.

First Flight—C. A. Connell, Scranton, defeated Joseph W. Bailey Jr., Dallas, 3 and 1; Dr. S. M. Hill, Dallas, defeated T. Johnston Ward, Philadelphia, 6 and 5; M. Gardner, New York, defeated Louis F. Rothschild, New York, 4 and 2; Ray Green defeated Melville C. Branch, Richmond, 2 and 1.

Second Flight—Dr. Wyatt, White Sulphur, won from Henry W. Taft, New York, by default; Mr. Beale defeated H. S. Worthington, 3 and 2; Warren Elliott, Washington, defeated James Branch, Richmond, 6 and 5; Mr. Peebles defeated J. W. Davis, 2 up.

Ladies' Division—Mrs. C. A. Connell, Scranton, defeated Miss Isabelle Craig, New York, 4 and 3; Mrs. Emil Pollak, Cincinnati, defeated Miss Donnan, 1 up.

FORT HAMILTON FOUR WINS.

Defeats Cornell R. O. T. C. Officers in Madison Barracks Polo, 7-5.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The First Division polo team of Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, won its way into the final of the Madison Barracks tournament by defeating the R. O. T. C. officers of Cornell University, 7 to 5, here today. Cornell could not overcome the three goals it had to allow even with the brilliant playing by Lieutenant J. A. Smith, who is handicaped at five goals.

The line-up:

1ST DIVISION (7).	CORNELL (5).
No. 1—Capt. Allen.	No. 1—Lieut. Silvers.
No. 2—Lieut. Scott.	No. 2—Lieut. Marshall.
No. 3—Major Buels.	No. 3—Maj. Anderson.
Back—Capt. Neu.	Back—Lieut. Smith.

Substitutions—Lieutenant Scott for Captain Allen.

Umpires—Brig. Gen. Parker, 2d Brigade, and Captain Lawton, Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Aug. 11.—The play-off fad started by Macdonald Smith and Gene Sarazen in this year's metropolitan open championship was taken up by two New Jersey golfers, Clarence Hackney and Danny Williams, today and as a result the winner of the 1926 New Jersey open championship will not be known until some time tomorrow.

Hackney, the defending champion, and Williams finished the thirty-six holes of championship play in a tie, each having holed the Montclair Golf Club course twice in 146 strokes. Since each was too fatigued to attempt another eighteen-hole round to settle the issue, the committee granted them a reprieve until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, when they will play off.

Hackney made a great finish to equal the total made by Williams earlier in the afternoon. Upon reaching the sixteenth hole the Atlantic City professional knew exactly what had to be accomplished if he was to live to fight another day for the title which he has won for the last two years. By then he realized that in order to tie Williams he had to play the last three holes in ten strokes and playing the last three holes at Montclair in ten strokes is a task that few would care to have put up as a regular assignment. The sixteenth is a short hole on which a 3 is perfectly feasible, but the next two are 4s and hard 4s.

Gets His Birdie.

The defending champion has to get two pars and a birdie somewhere along the line. The first par was attained easily enough. Then came the much-needed birdie at the seventeenth, where he holed a 20-foot putt for a 3. What was needed now was a par 4 on the eighteenth. His second shot trickled over the green and stopped in the fringe of rough. His chip stopped four feet away from the hole and he calmly sank a difficult putt to put him in a tie with Williams at 146.

The end of the first round saw Joe Dante of Briadburn leading the field of 121 starters with a score of 73, one stroke over par, and Williams a stroke behind. Jack Forrester of Baltusrol, Bayard Beebe of West End and John R. Langlands were tied at 74, and Bruce Heatly of Echo Lake and John Golden of North Jersey at 75. Hackney, with a couple of 4s, was 76, and Harold Sanderson of Hollywood, another likely candidate for the title, was 77.

When Williams returned with another 73, it was the consensus of nineteenth hole opinion that the little Shackamaxon star was finally in with his first notable championship victory. As his chief rivals rounded the turn Williams's case grew brighter and brighter for Dante, who had led him by a stroke at the end of the morning round, took 38 to the turn, and Beebe and Forrester had not improved their chances any by taking 41 and 39, respectively.

There were three to be feared. One was Golden, who could tie by coming home in 34; another was Hackney, who needed a 34 to tie, and the third was Sanderson, who went out in 34 and hence could tie with a 35 home. Golden dropped strokes right and left coming home, ends so did Sanderson. Hackney, however, didn't. In spite of the terrific heat which was the cause of more than one golfer withering with the goal in sight, Hackney proceeded to battle par stroke for stroke for the first six incoming holes, and then began the sprint that saved his title for another day at least.

Bungles the Last Hole.

The task would have been an impossible one, however, had not Williams bungled the last hole rather atrociously. Playing it he needed a 4 for 71, but took a 6 instead as the result of an attempt to cut the pin too fine on his second shot. Instead of getting up close to the hole, as he figured on doing, he pitched his ball into a bunker and took two strokes to recover.

Dante and Holden tied for third place, their totals being 150, and next to them were Sanderson with 151 and Forrester with 152.

LETTERS STILL POWERFUL.

It is the easy fashion to say that nobody writes letters any more, and that they have no consequence when written. But recent events seem to show that the epistolary pen still has a certain might. A retired gentleman in France wrote a letter to the President of the United States which at once went crashing its way round the whole world. Moreover, this letter itself was written because of previous letters. The ingenuous M. CLEMENCEAU explains that he never would have sent his message to President COOLIDGE had he not been urged to do it by letters coming to him from all parts of France. One would have supposed that there could have been no surer way to induce the Tiger to remain grimly silent—but no matter for that. He wrote his letter, and its effect in this country has been to provoke a great number of Americans to seize their pens and write letters of their own. Many of these have been sent on to Mr. COOLIDGE in his vacation camp, with a "demand" that there be an official answer by the Government to CLEMENCEAU'S letter.

Thus far the President remains unresponsive to this epistolary bombardment. By this time he must have become accustomed, or hardened, to the floods of letters that go to the White House, appealing, exhorting, giving advice, offering short and easy solutions of all difficult problems. Public men should know that letters must be weighed as well as counted. When WILLIAM MCKINLEY was urged in 1896 by a visitor to come out squarely for the gold standard, he pointed to two piles of letters on his desk. The larger one favored bimetallism, and the inference seemed then to him to be unavoidable that this was the correct policy for him to advocate. Later he was led to change his mind, though it is probable that the pile of silver letters kept on mounting the higher.

The moral is that letters to a public man, when they are genuine and not "standardized" productions got up by some "accelerator" of public opinion, are indications of sentiment which he cannot afford entirely to ignore. But in the end he will have to make up his own mind what ought to be done, basing his decision on a larger view of all the evidence than can possibly be within reach of his hurried and scattered correspondents.

THE OHIO PRIMARY.

It is usually hard to make head or tail of Ohio politics, so frequent are the factions in both parties, so rich the crop of old and new resentments, jealousies and ambitions. This year the primary itself was "on trial" even more than usual. Some 250,000 voters seek its abolition, at least to the extent of signing their names to petitions. The League of Women Voters tried to lure the good to the polls. A State constitutional amendment important to the cities was to be voted on. There was a pack of nominations and a bigger batch of candidates. Yet the people didn't crowd to the polls. The vote was "light," save in Cincinnati; "lighter than was expected." This is the ordinary day-after-the-primary bulletin. Governor "Vic" DONAHEY, Dry Democrat, was named for a third term without any difficulty, though three hopeful souls were up against him.

Of the twelve Republican aspirants for Governor, MYRON COOPER, approved by the Anti-Saloonists, spurned by the W. C. T. U., and Secretary of State "TED" BROWN, Wet, were the chief vote-getters. The State Treasurer also ran; and a Ku Klux statesman. Both BROWN and COOPER are detested by Mr. HARDING'S friends, the Old Guard. A. VICTOR DONAHEY seems an appropriate name. Outlanders will have some interest in the Senatorial campaign. Senator WILLIS, Dry, the best-beloved of the Anti-Saloon League and the greatest living amplifier, was renominated without effort. He didn't have to say a word—which must have been a trial. Judge FLORENCE ALLEN, who has been campaigning for a year, cheered by divers women's organizations, the Anti-Saloon League and the railway unions—still the implacable enemies of Mr. POMERENE—was honorably beaten.

Mr. POMERENE'S nomination was inevitable. His abilities, experience, national reputation, civic courage marked him as the strongest candidate. To have run so well against such a competitor is no small distinction for Judge ALLEN. Mr. WAYNE B. WHEELER has formally read Mr. POMERENE out of the congregation of the righteous; but we never could discover that this erring brother was conspicuous as a Wet. Doubtless, as a sensible observer, he takes note of the wide and dangerous mischief done by the Volstead act. Mr. WILLIS will let loose all his remaining store of thunder in defense of the cause that will continue to be holy wherever it justifies itself to politicians by a majority. Mr. POMERENE will liberate his mind upon that subject; not, it is to be hoped, to the exclusion of some others.

He has been too busy to take much, if any, part in the campaign before the primary. So far as we have looked into the Ohio hullabaloo no national policy except prohibition, and that itself treated locally for the most part, has been visible or oral. The Republican fight for possession of the Republican machine in Cincinnati has alone stirred feebly the languor of an essentially parochial contest. We shall look to Mr. POMERENE for a discussion of principles.

THE UNYIELDING COAL MINERS.

British coal miners, by their vote rejecting the settlement of the strike proposed by representatives of the Church, have put their own leaders in a very awkward position. When the matter was debated in the House of Commons recently, a statement was read from the Miners' Federation that the Executive Committee would "recommend acceptance by the miners." Acceptance was recommended later, but has now been refused by a decisive majority. And apparently the adverse vote was largely due to violent objection to the one point in the proposed agreement which Mr. LLOYD GEORGE with great fervor urged the Government to accept because it was such a "tremendous step for the miners to have taken." He referred to the undertaking by the Miners' Federation to set up a joint committee, with an impartial chairman, to arbitrate any future dispute about wages or working conditions. The spokesmen for the Miners' Federation declared that they would agree in advance to abide by any award so made. But the miners themselves evidently do not wish to have anything to do with arbitration.

Their action vindicates the caution of Prime Minister BALDWIN in not pledging the Government to accept the proposals of the Church representatives if the miners did. He had come too well to know their obduracy. For a long time they had been called upon to rally to the cry, "not a penny off, not an hour on," and seemingly have got the idea fixed in their heads that they have only to stick to that in order to have their way. They do not even agree to accept all the recommendations of the Coal Commission. Mr. BALDWIN affirmed the Government's willingness to go the whole figure of the report, although parts of it were much disliked, provided the miners would do the same. But they would not. Even in the teeth of their nominal leaders they are still holding out for the impossible.

In the last debate on the subject by the House of Commons before it adjourned, Mr. LLOYD GEORGE strongly attacked the Government for not agreeing at once to adopt the proposals for a settlement urged by the churches. He admitted, to be sure, that the clergy are "not equipped by training or study or temperament to express opinions on questions of wages and business arrangements." He thought that in general they did wisely to leave those matters to the laity. "They provided the stimulus and the appeal, and the more worldly minded laity did the rest." But in the present case he felt that the clerical plea for conciliation and for peace in the coal mines was very effective. A part of the plan was to call together again the Coal Commission, to perfect its work and to pass on the new proposals.

To all this special pleading by Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, the Prime Minister made a telling reply by quoting what Mr. GEORGE, when himself at the head of the Government, had said of the argument that he was bound to accept the findings of the famous Sankey Commission on coal. He then took the high ground that the Government was in no way bound to accept all the recommendations of a commission which it had itself appointed. "I never heard of that doctrine in the whole history of the House of Commons." He added that to swallow it "would have been an abrogation of the functions of Parliament and of the Government." But, of course, there is no end to the inconsistencies in which it is easy to entangle Mr. LLOYD GEORGE. He always comes up smiling just the same. But the long continued coal strike in Great Britain has come to be something at which not even he can smile.

QUESTIONNAIRES.

The questionnaire is stated by a writer in School and Society to be "undeniably a convenient and valuable means of securing information." It may be a convenient means for the questioners, but it seldom, if ever, is for the questioned, who are often called upon to reveal the intimate facts of their experience or observations. In eliciting data it has defects, as this writer admits and points out in respect of certain kinds of information, as, for example, the study habits of children who are asked to give testimony about themselves. The following questionnaire is cited as having been used with high school students:

Do you usually read the assignment once, twice or three times?

Does it bother you to study in a room where other people are talking?

Are those lessons studied at home your hardest or easiest?

How long, as a rule, do you spend on each lesson in the subjects you are carrying?

How long do you study at a time?

Do you read your lessons aloud?

Do you close your book and repeat your lesson to yourself?

Do you try to think out your lesson mentally just before going to class?

How do you prepare for an examination?

To illustrate the "ridiculous" value of such a questionnaire, the writer, who is obviously not only a teacher but also a golfer, suggests that his reader should try to answer the following questions:

Do you usually take one, two, three or more preparatory swings before driving?

Does it bother you to have some one watch you drive?

Do you usually drive harder on the first or last hole?

How long as a rule do you spend in building a tee?

Do you look at your hands, the ball, the club or the hole in putting?

How do you prepare for a match?

The insinuating comment is made that the only golfer who pauses to analyze his movements is a golf instructor or a professional who wants to write a book. Children are not skilled in answering questions about intricacies of their own behavior, and if they were their behavior would probably not be the better for it.

Other defects in the questionnaire method are freely cited, and the conclusion reached that "any picture of study conditions as painted by questionnaire returns is a wrong one." It would not be just to generalize from this; but these illustrations do serve to suggest the peril of lazily putting off upon the questionnaired responsibilities which they are not prepared to meet, and then deducing advice from imperfect answers. Less of the written questionnaire method and more of observation and direct testing are suggested, not only for the soundness of the questioner's conclusions but also for the convenience and the comfort of the personal sources of "data."

ACCIDENTS IN INDUSTRY.

In an article in the August American Federationist by LEONARD W. HATCH, which employers cannot afford to neglect and workers should not overlook, it is maintained that "safety education, which shall inform "and train the human factors to carry "on work safely for human life, as "well as efficiently for production, is "an indispensable part of accident "prevention work." Mr. HATCH speaks from observation as Director of the Bureau of Statistics and Information of the New York State Department of Labor. When an industrial accident occurred before the day of workmen's compensation laws, "the immediate concern was to find out whose "'negligence' was responsible for it." In the search there is now a new purpose and it is how to prevent accidents from occurring. The "bound-to-happen" view no longer obtains. In a well-managed modern plant accidents do not often occur now unless there is failure to use preventive protection. Negligence or carelessness is, of course, a factor still. In building construction, for example, the workes must be provided with stout ladders, secure scaffolding, guard-rails on stairs and plank floors as soon as they can be laid, but he must still keep his eyes open, mind his step and handle himself circumspectly. There is occasion for constant training. Concerning this Mr. HATCH says:

One of the latest aspects of accident prevention to be realized, and one which is coming more and more to light, is that education of employers must be supplemented by education of employes. * * * A very large part, and apparently an increasing proportion, of industrial accidents occur in connection with the way work is carried on as distinguished from fixed conditions of plant, machinery, apparatus or materials.

Some illuminating figures are given from New York State records. If machinery and power apparatus in the period covered accounted for 12 per cent. of accidents, falls of workers accounted also for 22 per cent. Handling of material carried resulted in 12 per cent. of the accidents, explosives and electrical contact in 7 per cent., falling objects in 6 per cent., handling of tools in 6 per cent., and the management of vehicles in 16 per cent. Nine per cent. seem to be indefinable, and come under the head of miscellaneous. If the employer must constantly study means of preventing accidents and supply safeguards, the worker must school himself, and be trained, in the use of them. A large responsibility obviously rests with superintendents and foremen. The main conclusion is that employers and employes have a common interest and assume a joint responsibility.

BELSHAZZAR AND THE EXPERT.

Dr. ARTHUR D. LITTLE, who was President of the American Chemical Society before the war and who did all sorts of scientifically useful things during it, lately made an address in which he had a good word to say for BELSHAZZAR. He "deserved what he got," but this is to be said for him, that he called in an expert to give him advice when his thoughts troubled him because of the handwriting on the wall which his own soothsaying accountants could not interpret. It is to the credit of BELSHAZZAR that he paid the bill of the prophetic expert even though DANIEL showed that this proud son of NEBUCHADNEZZAR was insolvent and prophesied unequivocally that his kingdom was "finished." The advice came too late. BELSHAZZAR was slain that night. DARIUS, the Median, took over the business, and after setting 120 satraps over the kingdom installed over them three presidents, to whom the satraps should give accounts that "the King should have no damage," one of these presidents being DANIEL, the expert.

The scientist took his text from the Book of Daniel to suggest to the modern executive the importance of calling in the expert before the balance is hopelessly against the business—so late that even the expert cannot avert that sentence which may look as but a "mural decoration." Definitions of an expert, current in after-dinner speeches, as "one who knows more and more about less and less" or as "one who doesn't know anything else," will not relieve us of the need of those who really do know everything that is known about something.

It is not enough that scientists should be educated to meet their responsibilities. The manufacturer and the inventor need to be taught the perils which lie before companies that ignore research. The handwriting on the wall, as this chemist interprets it, reads: "The price of progress is research, which alone assures the security of dividends." But for most businesses it is a warning and not a doom, as was the writing "over against the candlestick upon the wall" of the banquet hall of BELSHAZZAR. An unheeded warning becomes a doom.

CHINESE CHAOS IN THE BERKSHIRES.

A complete divergence of opinion prevailed among the speakers on Chinese affairs at Williamstown on Monday. This accurately reflects chaotic conditions in China today. Yet some of the speakers at Williamstown are still trying to perpetuate two of the biggest myths that have come out of China in recent years—that China is not ruled by the militarists and that the Peking Government is strong. It is difficult to see what is to be gained by thus attempting to mislead American public opinion. The troubles of China will not be solved by pretending that they do not exist or by failing to give a complete picture of them. The great curse of China today is the militarists who have overrun it and who have injured their country more than if it had been subjected to a foreign invasion. Next to this is the utter impotence of the Government in Peking, which makes it impossible for China to act as a unit or for the Powers to deal effectively with her in the work of revising treaties.

One of the Chinese speakers raised the question, "Is China a nation or a market?" This is somewhat like asking, "Is spinach a fruit or edible?" China certainly is not a nation today, if the term be used as we commonly think of it in connection with "England" or "France" or "Germany." It is not even as much of a nation as was the United States at the height of the Civil War. The country is divided into several semi-independent regions, warring with one another and refusing to bow to Peking. There is no unity among the Chinese people, no sense of nationality, unless the revival of the traditional anti-foreignism by the student class may be considered as "nationalism." On the other hand, China is still a great trading nation, although Chinese and foreigners alike have suffered from the disorganization of her railways and other difficulties resulting from the activities of the militarists during the last two years.

One of the mistakes most commonly made by Americans is to think and talk of China in terms of twentieth century America. Certain common concepts in political thought like "nationalism," and certain catchwords assiduously spread by Bolshevist sympathizers like "foreign oppression" and "imperialism," have one meaning to us when applied to conditions in the Western world, but quite another when applied to China and the Chinese. One of the wisest English students of Chinese history, WALTER J. CLENNELL, formerly British Consul at Foochow, recently insisted that to understand China today it is necessary to think not in terms of the twentieth century but of mediæval England and Europe. He pointed out that the group of Chinese who have come under Western influence form but a very small, though vocal, part of the Chinese, and that the great masses and their leaders outside of the large coast and foreign cities still think and act in terms of the old China and must be judged according to the standards of their day. "However highly we may "esteem the virtue and intelligence of "Asiatics," he wrote in one of his consular reports, "it seems improbable "that they are so far our natural "superiors as to be capable by one act, "by the promulgation of one law or "code of regulations, or by the united "efforts of one generation, should one "generation ever be so happy as to be "united, of accomplishing what it took "Europeans five centuries to effect." Momentous changes undoubtedly are in progress in China today, but the wheel turns slowly and the "new forces" of which so much is spoken have far to go before they make old China "new."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Murder Is Safer Than Theft.

In explanation of the peculiar ferocity shown by criminals, the promptness with which they shoot to kill, Warden Lawes of Sing Sing Prison suggests the present state of the law. By recent changes in the statutes the penalty for theft, especially when it is a second offense, is more severe than that for homicide if the killer can manage to get a plea of guilty in the second degree accepted.

The criminals dread the forty years' sentence they are almost sure to get for robbery more than they do the twenty years which is the punishment for second degree homicide—with commutation for what is called good behavior.

That will may be why the modern bandit does not take the pains his predecessor of other days usually did to avoid the charge of murder. If so, the need for an immediate change in the law is obvious, for if the change is not made such ruthless slaughters as the one at Police Headquarters on Tuesday, committed by a man accused of nothing worse than the stealing of an automobile, will go on. In that instance, it might be said that the detective was careless in not guarding better his own pistol, but that is wisdom after the event, for no danger of attack was reasonably to be expected.

A Powerful Weapon Not Utilized.

While killings by thugs continue the police are doing their best to conquer these enemies of society, sometimes successfully, but too often unsuccessfully. Against surprise attack, at a time and place not to be foreseen, there is indeed not much to do by the regular police force, because its members cannot be everywhere all the time.

That fact indicates the necessity of some new device, and among those recently suggested consideration is deserved by the proposal that use be made of the great number of reserve officers and militiamen living in this city. They are men thoroughly to be trusted with deadly weapons and all of them are more or less skilled in their use. There are some 20,000 of them in and around the city, and they are moving about actively every day. Many of them are of proved courage and none of them would be likely to be afraid to shoot if he chanced upon a hold-up. So, if they were loosely organized in a protective body, specially privileged to bear arms, they could supplement the police to a large extent.

This would be far better than the abandonment of the Sullivan law and a general arming of citizens in self-defense. The responsibility thus to be imposed on the reserve officers and trained men they would not regard as heavy, for they simply would be prepared to act in an emergency exactly as such men are glad to act. Their motto is not "safety first," but "duty first," and many of them have faced dangers vastly greater than this sort would bring at rare intervals. They could be trusted to shoot when shooting was desirable, and not to do it at other times, while knowledge of their existence and readiness would have a discouraging effect on our bandits.

They Don't All Dislike All Americans.

Amid all the talk about the hatred felt for Americans in Europe, and especially in France, comes the story of the promptness with which an organization of French veterans of the World War undertook to repair the statue in Paris of a polin shaking hands with a doughboy. That memorial of the hard fighting done side by side by the men of the two countries was broken with a hammer by a man not of either of those nationalities, and he did it in what he considered a protest against American harshness in the collection of war debts. In charity that man is described as "half-crazed," but half-fool probably would fit him better.

The ex-soldiers who have repaired the memorial group no doubt themselves have their opinion as to the collection of the debts, but they have the sense to see that the situation is made worse, not better, by breaking a statue that recalls the days when Frenchmen and Americans fought and died together for a common cause. They certainly have no quarrel with our soldiers, however it may be with our politicians.

For One Evil the Law Has No Cure.

No principle of the common law of every country has been better settled than that with ownership of land goes control of all the air above it up to the sky, and of all under it down to the centre of the earth. But now comes along radio, threatening to upset all of the old ideas on this subject. The broadcaster coolly uses the ether, or whatever the scientists decide to put in the place of it, and they send through all four of the ancient elements—earth, fire, air and water—waves that are efficient for several important purposes.

It is no wonder, therefore, that the International Law Association now assembled in Vienna has taken up this difficult problem. The delegates agreed that each country should be able to control, and at will to prevent, the use of its ether by any other country, but they also agreed that at present there is no way either to control or prevent such use by anybody who pleases. So the congress had to be content with declaring that the old legal axiom stood for radio just as it does for airplanes. It could do no more except to express a pious hope that the scientific folk would hurry up and supply the anxious Governments of the world with devices for exercising their rights.

This is a strange situation. What should, and especially what must, be done, usually can be done, sooner or later, however, and anyhow, when the millennium comes, and everybody is good and kind, then radio will be put to no bad uses.

THE WAR DEBTS.

A Plan for Making Them a Security for Peace.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The United States of America went into the World War because it believed in so doing it was serving the cause of eventual world peace. The efforts it made, the treasure it spent, were dedicated to this cause. The sums of money advanced to its associates were to help them toward the accomplishment of that purpose.

Faithful to the ideal of the preservation of peace and, furthermore, desirous of aiding in the re-establishment of more normal financial relations among the nations, the Government of the United States might suggest an all around arrangement based on the following considerations:

A—1. The war debt of Great Britain to the United States is fixed at $4,000,000,000.

2. The war debt of France to the United States is fixed at $3,000,000,000.

3. The war debt of Italy to the United States is fixed at $1,000,000,000.

4. The reparation debt of Germany to the Allies is fixed at $7,500,000,000.

B—All other international indebtedness growing out of the war is wiped out.

C—The United States Government could undertake to encourage and to aid the sale to the world-investing public by the cooperation of American, English, French, German, Italian, Swiss and other bankers, of the 12,000,000,000 gold German railroad bonds and 6,000,000,000 gold marks German industrial bonds created by the Dawes plan; the proceeds of such sales going to the Allies to repair war damage. This total of bonds, which forms the best imaginable European security, is the equivalent of $4,500,000,000. There would then remain another $3,000,000,000 to make up the total of the German reparation obligations.

D—The United States Government might agree that the $11,000,000,000 of European indebtedness to it would be composed as follows:

England	$4,000,000,000
France	3,000,000,000
Italy	1,000,000,000
Germany	3,000,000,000
Total	$11,000,000,000

E—The United States Government could stipulate that the four great European nations named remain her debtors to the amount mentioned, which would stand at those figures without any question of interest.

F—The United States Government would further provide that it would ask for payment from any or all of the four debtor countries only in the event of a national need on the part of the American people comparable to the national need which led to these European nations incurring this indebtedness. In the event of such a national need the United States would retain its full right to demand payment of any of the debtor nations in whole or in part, in cash or in kind, according to its own discretion.

G—This agreement would be effective as for fifty years, after which the debts in whole, or what remained of them, would be considered as canceled.

THE WOOD-LILIES' SANCTUARY.

I strolled, I sauntered (you might say)
Through fields now emptied of their hay;
The rippling rye was safely mown
That under silvery nights had shone.
I strolled, and watched about my feet
The leaping crickets, sudden, fleet.
Stiff tufts of stubble crackled, as
I snapped their little stems like glass.
So, heeding this and that, I stood
At last within my fairy wood.

I came upon them unaware,
Their faces drooped in meekest prayer;
Nuns of an order rarely seen,
With cowls of scarlet, robes of green.
I scarcely breathed, for fear that they Might shrink and fly in wild dismay.
Serenely hedged by sapling trees
And visited by birds and bees,
The lovely, swaying lilies stand.
Safe from a brutal, thieving hand.

And in this cell, so sweetly dim,
Ranged round like altar-candles slim,
The tall spires's pinkish flame
Joins in the praise to Beauty's name.
Such grace can only Nature give;
Here the exquisite lilies live;
And, delicately fine and clear,
Renew their beauty every year.

ASKS SANE PARKING RULE.

Fifth Avenue Association Seeks to Avoid Extremes in Regulation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We read with interest the letter from W. W. Arnheim published in THE TIMES of Aug. 10 under the heading "Would Urge Parking Ban."

It is not our desire to enter into any prolonged discussion of this subject, but it seems too bad that a reputable business man of New York should spread the impression that the Fifth Avenue Association is seeking to obtain for its members unlimited parking privileges when, as a matter of fact, we have made it clear that the business men of our section are just as desirous of restrictive regulations as any one else. Our opposition is directed against the type of regulations which, in their application, would be confiscatory and detrimental to business.

There are two possible extremes in parking regulation—one is unlimited parking, the other is no parking. Neither is good and either is bound to work injury if permitted under modern conditions in this city. There is a happy medium which will preserve the rights and privileges of business and the convenience of the public while at the same time granting every reasonable facility for the passage of through traffic.

It is toward the development of such a formula of regulation that the efforts of this association are directed, and any other construction of our attitude is due to either misunderstanding or misrepresentation. There are too many who, like Mr. Arnheim, choose to place their own construction on our views, knowing that extreme viewpoints breed differences and provide opportunity for the exploitation of their personal theories, many of which are unsound, unworkable and detrimental to business.

We recognize that every one of the major avenues in the city has its own identity and problems, and contributes in its own way to the composite life of New York. The statements we have made in regard to the relation between parking and business apply only to Fifth and Madison Avenues, and to the unique conditions which exist on those avenues. Our statements and conclusions are based upon information and data compiled for us by those actually engaged in business in this section. The facts we have presented are sound and incontestable as far as the importance of the carriage trade to the business of our section is concerned.

The editorial comment in this morning's TIMES leads us to add the further thought that if the City of New York ever comes to the conclusion indicated—that its busy commercial thoroughfares should be turned over entirely "to facilitate and hasten the general movement of all vehicles"—then the retail and industrial development of the city will receive a serious setback, and, in the case of Fifth and Madison Avenues, a mortal blow.

Unlimited parking during the day is checked by the present limit of one hour, and exhaustive surveys made by us indicate that violations of this regulation do not exceed 2 per cent. of the total cars parked. Decentralization of business development will not come from conditions of this sort, but will certainly follow as a result of any restriction prohibiting the privilege of stopping cars at the curb for a reasonable period of time for the transaction of business.

It is unfortunate that all discussion of parking seems to be bred in misunderstanding and directed toward extremes. We would suggest to several who have recently and bitterly opposed our views that they read more carefully the statements we have made and consider more thoroughly the commercial and economic future of the city, rather than the merely mechanical problem of forcing the maximum number of automobiles past a given point at a given time and choosing the busiest commercial thoroughfares of the city to accomplish that purpose.

There can be no denial of the fact that the transportation interests are in favor of a ban on general parking. Our reference to the transportation interests was not based on "inventions by certain misguided merchants," but upon a publicity campaign inaugurated some time ago through publications and statements in the press by organizations of surface line operators, which campaign was designed to direct public opinion in what we consider to be false and dangerous channels.

The Fifth Avenue Association has not opposed the theory of parking restriction in the early morning and in the evening to permit a maximum street use for the convenience of the public during the peak hours.

Italian Regard for Mussolini.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Those who have traveled in Italy, and especially those who have lived or sojourned there, know that Mussolini's power, despotic as it may seem to outsiders, comes, as all true political power must come, from the consent of the governed. The Italians, as a whole, are glad and happy to obey Il Duce. Individuals may rebel when some one of his edicts interfers with their own private gain, convenience or pleasure, but the country seems to recognize that all he forbids or demands is for the true good of Italy and not for the enthronement of his power. And every dweller in or visitor to Italy shares consciously in the benefits of his regime. Without the ardent enthusiasm of his people due to their recognition of his unselfish patriotism, it is very certain that Italy would not be so far today along the path to stability and prosperity.

What seems to Americans to be intolerable suppression of freedom of speech, for instance, is merely the protective mechanism, to use a Freudian phrase, which he employs to guard his people from the insidious propaganda of the Bolshevist. If they could destroy the unity of Italian feeling by Mussolini, the enemies of Fascism might come again to power—and Italy might be a second Russia instead of the sober, orderly, prosperous country she is today.

Naturally he has enemies, especially among those for whom he has made Italy unhealthy—the Bolsheviki, Black Handers, brigands and beggars. It is they who find the Mussolini regime oppressive, they who emigrate to other countries in order to ply their petty trades and abuse Mussolini.

"Every one in Italy today is free," an Italian said to me while I was in Italy. "Free to do right, to serve his country and to earn an honest living." Which to me seemed a rather comprehensive freedom.

STATE DEDICATES BUILDINGS AT FAIR

PATRIOTIC EXERCISES HELD

Battle and Others Speak—All New York Visitors Invited to Make Them Their "Local Home."

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11.—With a patriotic ceremony in keeping with the Colonial atmosphere, the two New York State buildings at the Sesquicentennial Exhibition were formally opened at noon today by George Gordon Battle, Chairman, and other members of the New York State Sesquicentennial Commission. Mr. Battle invited all State visitors to the exposition to make the buildings their "local home."

More than 200 guests attended the dedication, which was held at the larger building, a striking replica of old Federal Hall, once at Wall and Broad Streets, where Washington delivered his first inaugural address.

The smaller is a Dutch cottage, just across the Drive, which reproduces the Washington Headquarters at Newburgh, where the General in 1782 refused a Crown and rebuffed Colonel Lewis Nicola for suggesting that he become King.

The two structures cost $65,000. They were rushed to completion in six weeks of actual building time, but they do New York State credit in comparison with the score of other State and municipal buildings scattered picturesquely through the grounds.

They are located west of the Grand Court, southeast of the India Building, and just northeast of "old High Street," a lane dear to Philadelphians, and which reproduces the Girard counting house, Ben Franklin's print shop and other sites as they were supposed to be in 1776.

Many Prominent Speakers.

The 108th Field Artillery Band and a battalion of infantry from Camp Anthony Wayne turned out for the dedication, which was held from the balcony outside. After an invocation by the Rev. John Flynn, representing Cardinal Hayes, Chairman Battle addressed the guests gathered on the lawn below. With a stalwart first sergeant at the balcony ropes, the Stars and Stripes rippled to the peak above the hall while the band played the national anthem. The New York State flag was hoisted on a flagpole in front, to "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Addresses followed inside the hall, with Mr. Battle introducing the following speakers: State Senator Warren T. Thayer, a lineal descendant of Lyman Hall, one of the original "signers," and First Vice Chairman of the New York Commission; Mrs. Rosalie S. Phillips, Second Vice Chairman and Honorary President of the Washington Headquarters Association; Rabbi Maurice Eisenberg of New York and Saranac Lake; Louis Robert Barras, head of the Jefferson Construction Company, New York, which erected the buildings, and himself a lineal descendant of the Comte de Barras, the French Admiral; A. L. Sutton, director of domestic participation for the exposition. The benediction was delivered by the Rev. Cranston Brenton of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, representing Bishop Manning. Clarence J. Owens, special commissioner, was in charge of arrangements.

Among those present were: George W. Ochs Oakes, a member of the New York State Commission; Mrs. Warren T. Thayer, Iwao Nishi, the Japanese Commissioner General to the exposition; Oscar Moser, Director of the Czechoslovakian section; Carl M. Knesas of Philadelphia, President of the Descendants of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence; Mrs. Emily F. W. Steickle of Roscoe, N. Y., of the National Committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution, who represented Mrs. Ellis W. Kramer, New York State Regent; Lieut. Commander Franklin Roche Huntington, U. S. N. R., Third Naval District (New York), descendant of a grandson of Benjamin Franklin and of a nephew of Samuel Huntington, a "signer" and President of the Continental Congress, 1779-1781; Mrs. Louis Robert Barras, a lineal descendant of Thomas Jefferson's sister, Martha; Brig. Gen. R. Allyn Lewis, U. S. A., retired; Dr. George F. Kunz of Tiffany & Co. and others.

Represent Republican Government.

Mr. Battle, in his address, reviewed the history of the originals of the two buildings and said in part:

"It may be said that these two buildings represent, on the one hand, the actual fabric of republican government, which was the result and heritage of the Declaration of Independence and of the American Revolution, and, on the other hand, the true spirit of democracy, which is based upon the political equality of men, upon government by the consent of the governed, which abhors all power except that which is bestowed by the will of the people. It represents a county, in a word, which holds to no race, no creed, no bigotry, and which recognizes no authority except the will of the governed."

Mr. Battle expressed the thanks of the New York State Commission to Mayor Kendrick and the management of the exposition for their cooperation, and in conclusion he said:

"We offer a warm welcome to all those who may desire to cross these thresholds. It is the desire and purpose of our commission that these buildings shall be the local home of all the people of New York who may visit this glorious and historic exposition."

Thayer Gives Old Hall's History.

State Senator Warren T. Thayer sketched the history of the original Federal Hall, from its completion as a city hall in 1700 to its Federal occupancy in time for the first Presidential inauguration. He said it had been built of the stones left over by the Dutch in failing to complete a wall to withstand an expected English invasion; a wall which was to have run along the present Wall Street.

It housed the Peter Zenger trial of 1735, which established freedom of the press, and a year later the first protest meeting against the tea tax of King George was held there.

Used as a headquarters by both American and British troops, the building was taken over by the Federal Government in 1788 and adapted by Major L'Enfant, who later planned the national capital at Washington.

Mrs. Phillips dealt similarly with the traditions of the little Dutch house across the way. She said the taking over of the Newburgh Landmark in 1849 by the State of New York appeared to have inaugurated the State's policy of historic preservation.

Rabbi Eisenberg interpreted the spirit of the symbolic Liberty Bell which hangs over the entrance to the exposition grounds. He said that when the founders of the country were casting about for a proper legend for the bell, the ancient writings they adapted were those words from Leviticus:

"Proclaim liberty throughout the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof."

BRITISH SCIENTISTS END OXFORD SESSION

Sir Oliver Lodge Praises the Prince of Wales as President of British Association.

SAVANTS ATTEND A DANCE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OXFORD, Aug. 11.—High praise for the Prince of Wales as President of the British Association for the Advancement of Science was sounded by Sir Oliver Lodge at the last session of the association today.

The Prince by the way had hoped to be present at the concluding ceremonies, but was prevented. He sent a letter which Sir Oliver read.

Sir Oliver said all agreed that the Prince had done his work as President well. Referring to the Prince's address at the opening session last week, Sir Oliver remarked:

"I have reason to think he gave to that address a good deal of trouble and thought, and it is not altogether a secret that his distinguished family chaffed him on the subject. They suggested he might make a mess of it, but I think we all agree he did not make a mess of it."

Loud cheers from the audience proved that they felt as Sir Oliver did.

Savants Attend Dance.

After days of delivering or hearing addresses, many exceedingly long and tremendously profound, the scientists gathered in Oxford and introduced the spice of variety into the proceedings last night by disporting themselves at a gay dance.

Until the small hours of this morning they whirled about with beauteous partners as lightly as any youth without a scientific idea in his head.

Among those who temporarily abandoned science for jazz was Sir Oliver Lodge, who showed his metaphysical dabblings had not prevented him from learning the rudiments of the one-step.

One lovely, youthful partner of a bearded professor did her best to teach him the Charleston. The comensus of opinion early this morning was that he not would be in a position to deliver a lecture about it for several years.

Lauds McDougall's Address.

"A turning point in biology," was how a British savant described the address delivered yesterday before the association by Professor W. McDougall of Harvard University on the deductions drawn by him from his experiments with rats.

The savant who generously lauded his colleague from America was Professor Myers, who was prominent in organizing this year's meeting of the British Association, which closed today.

"Referring to Professor McDougall," he said, "his experiments with rats revive the belief current since Darwin's time, and now established for the first time, that the mental attitude in a particular direction can be intensified by breeding and that dependent physical characteristics can be produced in the same way—and as with rats, so with men."

Professor Myers said that this was a fundamental thing in education and will have great future results, although much remained to be done.

THREE HURT AS CARS CRASH

Twelve Others Shaken Up in Trolley Smash on Staten Island.

A girl and two men were taken to the Staten Island Hospital last night after two trolley cars of the Castleton Avenue line of the Staten Island Edison Company crashed head-on at Castleton Avenue and Portland Place, New Brighton, S. I. Twelve other passengers were less seriously injured.

Motorman Robert Thompson had scarcely switched his car westbound from St. George to Port Richmond from the double tracks at Cebra Avenue, New Brighton, to the two-mile stretch of single track when it was met head-on by another car in charge of Motorman William Tinker, bound from Port Richmond to St. George. The shock threw most of the passengers from their seats.

Physicians from the Staten Island Hospital found that Nettie Silvo, 16 years old, of 72 Beach Street, Stapleton; Henry Stover, 44, of 441 Kissel Avenue, West New Brighton, and Carl Sumpton, 29, of 648 Henderson Avenue, West New Brighton, were the most seriously hurt.

The accident was said to be due to a misunderstanding of signals at the Cebra Avenue switch.

JAILED FOR BEATING BOY.

Fruit Dealer Says Lad Splashed Water on Wares; Gets Five Days.

Abe Goldman, 50 years old, a fruit dealer of 286 East Fourth Street, was sentenced to five days in the workhouse by Magistrate Vitale in Night Court last night after the Magistrate had seen the wetted back of an 8-year-old boy who had been beaten by Goldman. The boy's mother, Mrs. Julia Miltonberg of 516 East Houston Street, told the court that her son Fred had been playing with other boys in the stream from an open hydrant in front of Goldman's fruit stand early in the evening and had been accused by Goldman of splashing water on his fruit. Goldman dragged the boy into a hallway, she said, and beat him with a belt, the buckle of which covered the boy's back with welts.

Goldman insisted that he had merely "slapped" the lad, but after Magistrate Vitale had seen the boy's back he said "It was more than a mere slap, and I must find you guilty of disorderly conduct and sentence you to five days in the workhouse. You are fortunate that the boy's father was not home or you would be in the hospital."

MRS. WILSON IN SCOTLAND.

PETTERESSO CASTLE, Scotland, Aug. 11 (AP).—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and her brother, Dr. Richard Bolling, are spending the grouse shooting season here as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Baruch and Miss Belle Baruch.

Mrs. Wilson will go to Geneva about Sept. 1 to attend the meeting of the League of Nations. She is keenly interested in the League, which was sponsored by her husband, and she believes in time it will become a power for world peace with all nations represented.

STATUE OF MESTROVIC IN BROOKLYN MUSEUM

Work by Malvina Hoffman Is Gift of Felix M. Warburg and E. C. Blum.

The Brooklyn Museum announces that an important addition has been made to its permanent sculpture exhibition through the gift by Felix M. Warburg of New York and Edward C. Blum of Brooklyn of Malvina Hoffman's bronze figure of Ivan Mestrovic, the great Yugoslav sculptor. This statue was first shown in its plaster form at the Brooklyn Museum last April, when it was a part of the exhibition of the National Society of Women Painters and Sculptors.

It was at the Brooklyn Museum that the American public had its first opportunity to become acquainted with Mestrovic's work in 1924. The exhibition shown at that time is now on view at the Sesquicentennial Exposition in Philadelphia, after having been shown throughout the country.

Miss Hoffman's bronze figure has been placed near a fine example of Mestrovic's own work—the marble Angel Gabriel—which the Museum purchased at the time of the first exhibition. The Hoffman figure of Mestrovic is over life-size and shows him at his work absorbed in a sculptural project.

TO SUE RUMANIAN GENERAL.

Opposition Charges Him With the Suppression of Liberty to Vote.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 11.—Forty prominent Rumanians, including ex-Premier Jan Bratiano, have been asked to appear as witnesses in a suit which leaders of the United Opposition have filed in the Criminal Court against General Stefanescu, commander of the gendarmerie, charging him with interfering in the recent election with the freedom of voting.

The case, which is considered unique in Rumanian history, is based on a new law, which provides severe punishment for such interference.

It is specifically charged that the General gave orders forbidding the display of posters and the distribution of campaign literature, and that through his gendarmes obeying he caused the arrest, maltreatment and sequestration of many citizens.

The fact that many deputies, including ex-Premiers and ex-Ministers, were not allowed to tour their constituencies and were even arrested, although special permits to circulate freely were given to them by Premier Averscu himself, is blamed on General Stefanescu.

Believed to Be Victim of Heat at Camp at Peekskill.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Daniel Madden, 20 years old, of Company H, Seventy-first Regiment, New York National Guard, was found dead at the edge of Wallace Pond by a civilian tonight. He was clothed in his uniform, and although his shoes were wet, as though he had been in the water, his body was above the water's edge.

Madden left the camp last night and when he had failed to return at taps search was made for him. It is believed he was affected by the heat and went to the water to cool off and was stricken with a heart attack induced by the heat.

Dr. Amos O. Squire performed an autopsy tonight and said there was no evidence of foul play. A bruise on Madden's cheek is believed to have been caused by his fall.

Madden lived at 202 East Forty-fourth Street, New York City, and was the sole support of a widowed mother. He had been a reporter for The New York American.

HOLDS CHEMISTRY IS FARMERS' HOPE

ANNUAL LOSS OF BILLIONS

Dr. C. A. Browne Tells Columbia Summer School of Work Done by Chemists.

That the utilization of unmarketable and surplus agricultural products for new industrial uses is one of the most important problems which American agriculture is depending upon chemistry to solve, was the statement made yesterday by Dr. C. A. Browne, Chief of the United States Bureau of Chemistry, in a lecture at the Columbia Summer School.

"Some years ago the disposal of the inferior culls of the California lemon crop was a problem which the Bureau of Chemistry was called upon to solve," said Dr. Browne. "Such unmarketable lemons are now all profitably utilized in the manufacture of citric acid, lemon oil, marmalade, pectin and cattle feed. Similar researches are now being carried on upon the orange and other crops.

"A perfect system of utilizing surplus fruits and vegetables by dehydration still remains to be worked out by the agricultural chemists. The old process of sulphuring and sundrying must soon give way to a process which is more sanitary and less objectionable.

"There are great difficulties, such as the discoloration of the cut plant tissues by oxidizing enzymes, which have to be overcome. We can be confident, however, that they will be overcome, and the consumer will then no longer be suffocated by the odor of sulphurous acid when he opens an occasional package of evsporated fruit."

Several billion dollars are lost to American farmers each year through the spoilage of fruit, vegetables, cattle feeds, timber and other products, said Dr. Browne, who added that the chemist has become the farmer's chief reliance for aid in overcoming these losses.

"New insecticides, new fungicides and new preserving agents must be discovered," he said. "We must have better knowledge of the conditions which promote decay and of the means for controlling these conditions."

Dr. Browne then spoke of the depredations of the cotton boll weevil, which have been estimated at more than $300,000,000 a year. He said the present system of spraying the plants with calcium arsenate from airplanes was wasteful and that agricultural chemists were trying to find both a more effective poison and a more thorough way of applying it.

"It is assumed that the attracting power of a special family of plants for a certain insect is due to some definite volatile substance," he said. "If this substance can be prepared synthetically, its incorporation with the poison as a bait offers a means of luring the insect to its own destruction. If this principle is sound, an immense field of service will be opened up for the present generation of agricultural chemists."

To prevent the illegal use of valuable discoveries and to protect the consumer, the agricultural chemist must consider law enforcement an important phase of his work, Dr. Browne asserted.

Arrested as Bathing Suit Thief.

The first arrest in the Coney Island Board of Trade's campaign to stop the stealing of bathing suits from bathhouses was made yesterday when Patrolman Koehler, acting at the request of a detective hired by the Board of Trade, arrested Harry Libson, 18, who gave his address as 3,120 Coney Island Avenue. Libson is alleged to have had on a bathing suit marked with a "P. B." from the Parkway Baths.

MRS. LOUISA COPELAND DIES AFTER OPERATION

Wife of Vice President of du Pont Powder Co. Was Member of Wilmington Park Board.

Mrs. Charles Copeland of Wilmington, Del., died on Tuesday night at the Fifth Avenue Hospital. She became ill on a recent visit to her son, Lammot du Pont Copeland in Salem, Mass., and was operated on a week ago yesterday.

Mrs. Copeland, whose husband is a Vice President of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company, was Miss Louisa D'Andelot du Pont, a daughter of the late Lammot du Pont, who was killed in a powder explosion, and a sister of Pierre S. du Pont, Irenee E. du Pont, Lammot du Pont and of Mrs. W. W. Laird, Mrs. H. Robby Sharp and Mrs. R. R. M. Carpenter.

Widely known for her interest in public affairs, Mrs. Copeland was identified with many progressive movements. She was a member of the Park Commission of Wilmington and a member of local and national societies interested in flower cultivation. She was also a member of Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, Christiana Hundred.

Among Mrs. Copeland's most important public interests was the Wilmington Society of Fine Arts, of which she was a founder and President. It was largely through her efforts that the society for some years put on exhibitions at the gallery in the Wilmington Public Library Building.

She was active in bringing to Wilmington various exhibits of arts and in stimulating interest in the work of local artists.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon, with private services at her late home at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in the du Pont Cemetery.

Beckett, Purser of Voltaire, Dies.

The death of H. S. C. G. Beckett, purser of the Lamport & Holt liner Voltaire, at Santos, Brazil, on July 22, was told by his fellow-officers when the liner docked at Hoboken yesterday. Mr. Beckett, who was 49 years old, had been in the company's employ for more than twenty years. During the war he was on the Verdi of the same line when it was torpedoed off the coast of Ireland. His death resulted from a cerebral hemorrhage. He is survived by his mother, brother and two sisters.

Simple Rites for F. W. Hackett.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 11 (AP).—Simple funeral services for Frank W. Hackett, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy who died on Tuesday at the Portsmouth Naval Hospital, were held here today at St. John's Episcopal Church. Commandant William P. MacDougall headed the delegation of naval officers which attended and a detachment of marines were bearers. Burial will be in the Arlington National Cemetery at Washington.

HEARST BOYS RETURN.

William and John Back on Homeric After European Tour.

A passenger on the Homeric of the White Star Line from Europe yesterday was William Randolph Hearst Jr., who was accompanied by his brother John and a friend, Charles Mayer. They had been touring for two months in Spain, Italy and France. George Hearst, President of The New York American, went down to Quarantine to meet the Homeric in a seaplane and was disappointed because he was not allowed to board the liner there and had to follow the ship to her pier at the foot of West Eighteenth Street.

The body of Rose W. Wakeman, 49 years old, who died in Kent, England, on May 3, arrived on the Homeric accompanied by Captain Walter Shaw, M. P., who was a brother-in-law. Captain Shaw's daughter, Miss Gwendolin Shaw, arrived on the liner to attend the funeral, which will be held at Southport, Conn., tomorrow.

The Homeric was in charge of Captain John Bullman, formerly staff captain of the Majestic, for this voyage.

CLAUDE WASHBURN, AUTHOR, DIES AT 42

LIVED MOSTLY IN EUROPE

His Books Include "Pages From Book of Paris" and "The Lonely Warrior"—A Harvard Graduate.

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 11 (AP).—Claude Carlos Washburn, 42 years old, author, is dead at his home here after a week's illness.

He was chief translator to the Military Attaché of the American Embassy at Rome during the war.

Among his books are "Pages From the Book of Paris," "Gerald Northrup," "Order" and "The Lonely Warrior." He was a Harvard University graduate.

Mr. Washburn was born in Mankato, Minn., on Oct. 3, 1883, a son of Jed L. and Alma (Pattee) Washburn, and was graduated from Harvard in 1905. Since then he had lived principally in Europe. For sixteen months during the World War he was attached to the American Embassy at Rome and resigned on March 1, 1919.

In 1911 he married Ivo Sinclair Gowen of Florence, Italy. He was a member of the Harvard Club of New York.

JOHN A. VALADON.

Democratic Politician Dies After Leaving Surf at Long Beach.

John A. Valadon, 54, a bookkeeper in the City Department of Finance for the last twenty-six years, died on Tuesday afternoon a short time after coming out of the surf at Long Beach, where he was spending his vacation with his family. He had not been in good health for several years. His home was at 509 West 176th Street.

Born in Washington, Mr. Valadon lived here practically all his life. From young manhood he was active in Democratic politics in Harlem and for many years was Secretary of the Democratic organization club in that section. He was a close friend of the late Charles F. Murphy. He was a member of the Twelfth Regiment of the New York National Guard and a Lieutenant in the Home Defense League, afterward known as the Police Reserves. During the World War he was active in Liberty Loan and War Stamp drives. His wife, a daughter and a sister survive.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in the Roman Catholic Church of the Incarnation.

BOULD'S BODY CREMATED.

Found Five Miles From Place Where Broker Was Drowned.

The body of Robert A. Bould, a young broker who was drowned on July 31 when trying to save Miss Dorothy Smart, was recovered on Monday afternoon near Port Jefferson, L. I., by employes of the Port Jefferson Shipyard Corporation, it became known yesterday. In accordance with a provision in his will, it was cremated yesterday at Fresh Pond, L. I.

Mr. Bould's body was seen several hundred yards off shore. He was drowned not far from Smithtown, L. I., and the body had drifted about five miles.

"Smiling Bob," as he was known, was one of the best known young men in Wall Street. For several years he edited the Bawl Street Journal, a burlesque of the Wall Street Journal. He was associated with Frederic H. Hatch & Co., brokers, of 74 Broadway.

CANCEL REPARATION, BORAH TELLS ALLIES

$00,000. Furthermore, the Dawes plan provides for a 12,000,000,000 gold mark mortgage on the Germain railroads and a 6,000,000,000 gold mark mortgage on the real property of German industries, which taken together form a sum not far distant from $5,000,000,000. No German experts question Germany's ability to pay this part of the reparations, or at least pay into the reparations fund a sum in marks representing interest and sinking fund charges on this debt. It is the budget part of the Dawes annuities which is condemned by the Germans.

It would probably be found that if a proposal were made to cancel all war indebtedness except this section of the Dawes provisions there would be a good all-round reception of the idea. What could be realized from these German bonds, which probably are one of the best investments in Europe, could go to the Allies, and once the bonds were marketed the whole war indebtedness business would be over.

This causes one to revert to the plan recently put forward for study under which the German railroad and industrial bonds would be used as a means of liquidating the war debts. Under that plan America would have received part of the receipts in settlement of her claims and part would have gone to the Allies in the general settlement.

Under such an arrangement the other nations involved in the war would retain their domestic war debts with their foreign debts wiped out, while Germany would have a sole war burden of some $4,500,000,000, represented by the railroad and industrial securities.

London Press Comment.

"What is Senator Borah's illuminating suggestion?" asks The Morning Post, commenting editorially on the Idahoan's reply to M. Clemenceau. "It is that if 'they' by which the Senator apparently means the Allies, 'wanted to cancel debts let them include all debts and reparations.'

"In other words, the Allies are to forego even the meagre instalments of Germany's obligations accruing under the Dawes scheme. That is Senator Borah's contribution to the international problem.

"If Senator Borah expresses the national policy, it becomes a subject of regret rather than of surprise that America should find herself in a position in which she is regarded solely in the character of money lender. Relentless insistence upon bonds, however justifiable, is apt to blind a debtor to the more amiable qualities of his creditor."

The Daily Chronicle says Senator Borah's statement "if they want to cancel debts let them include all debts and all reparations" suggests that Borah himself favors such a settlement.

"It is precisely," says The Chronicle, "the policy of the Balfour note which the United States Government rejected four years ago. In a dispatch to the representatives of our European allies on Aug. 1, 1922, Earl Balfour thus stated the position of the coalition Government:

"'They were prepared if such a policy formed part of a satisfactory international settlement to remit all debts due to Britain by our allies in respect of loans or by Germany in respect of reparations.'

"It was the Washington Government's insistence on repayment of the British debt to America that made the policy of the Balfour note impossible. After the Anglo-American debt agreement, too hastily made by Mr. Baldwin, it was a waste of breath to talk about all-round cancellation of debts and reparations which the coalition Government proposed and which Senator Borah also now seems to desire."

BORAH CHIDES CLEMENCEAU.

Calls French Statesman's Letter to Coolidge "Cruelly Misleading."

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 11 (AP).—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, has prepared a statement in response to inquiries regarding his opinion of the open letter from Georges Clemenceau, war-time Premier of France, to President Coolidge.

The letter, issued Sunday in Paris, contained an appeal not to treat the settlement of the French debt as a commercial matter. Clemenceau declared the proposed Berenger-Mellon debt agreement to be impossible of fulfillment and that it threatened the independence of France.

In his statement Senator Borah said:

"Clemenceau's letter is so cruelly misleading, as in his intimation that we are undermining the independence of France, and so deliberately unjust where he refers to waiting for America to enter the war, and where he criticizes the United States for making a separate treaty of peace with Germany, and yet so pathetic in manifest love of his country, that I prefer not to comment at length. He is one whose unfounded wrath we can afford to ignore and whose malicious insinuations we can afford to pass by.

"It would seem that if they have anything to say of a people whom they once hailed as their unselfish deliverers they at least should speak the language of truth and graciousness. The statement that we are trying to undermine the independence of France, or that somebody wants to buy France, approaches the absurd.

"If they want to cancel their debts let them include all debts and all reparations and show that benefit of the cancellation will go to humanity and to betterment of the masses of Europe and not to the benefit of the imperialistic schemes which are now crushing the life out of people who were in no sense responsible for this war.

"This constant charge of injustice and usury on the part of the United States is simply not only unfounded in fact but dishonest in purpose."

Senator Raps World Court.

NAMPA, Idaho, Aug. 11 (AP).—In the light of the attitude of debtor nations toward the United States, and by virtue of developments on the function of the World Court, the Senate, if a vote was taken today, would reverse its decision and decline to ratify the World Court, Senator William E. Borah declared in an address here today.

"I am glad to say many of the American people are modifying their position on the World Court," he said. "The Court has the extraordinary function of advising and counseling the League of Nations. Thus the United States as a member may be called upon for counsel in any political quarrels in Europe.

"It is my judgment, and I venture it as a prophesy, that if we became a member of the World Court and by advice and counsel came into participation with the political controversies of Europe, we thus come face to face with the same old problem of the League of Nations. If a vote was taken in the Senate today, the Senate would reverse its decision and decline to ratify the World Court."

Speaking before the Nampa Rotary Club, the Senator, referring to international relations growing out of foreign debts, said, "The next fifty years will mark the most severe economic war history has ever recorded" and that "there is no reason for the United States to give up that which is rightfully hers in view of this coming economic conflict."

The Senator, discussing the attitude of England and France toward the United States, the reception of American tourists during the last few months, the adverse editorial and news comments of European newspapers and publications, declared the recently published letter of Georges Clemenceau to President Coolidge "must have struck harshly on all American ears."

"It is the wish and hope of the American people and the American Government to continue in peace and harmony with the nations of the world," he continued. "But it is not the part of a dignified nation to remain silent when charges are made which we think are unfounded."

Reviewing the debt settlements, Senator Borah said:

"Logic discloses that the desire of the French amounts to cancellation in full. We have been charged with being rapacious and usurious, but when the history of the World War is written the generosity of the United States will have no parallel in the history of the world."

He cited the motives which actuated America's entrance in the World War, and added:

"While no one desires to diminish the heroic efforts of the allies prior to our entrance, the fact remains that without the American boy the nations now criticising us so severely would be the defeated rather than the victor nations."

FRENCH PARLIAMENT ENDS ITS SESSION

CONDITION OF FRANC VITAL

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The French Parliament adjourned today until Fall, leaving matters of utmost national importance not more than half settled.

Yesterday's National Assembly ended in turmoil but it did what Premier Poincaire asked, making sinking funds an integral part of the Constitution.

During the last three weeks enough new taxation has been voted to make balancing of next year's budget an easy matter provided the franc's exchange value does not fall to depths which it reached a month ago.

The situation of France with regard to her external debt has not been cleared up. Two subcommissions have been elected to consider the situation, but today, when the Communist Deputy Cachin asked permission to interpellate the Government on its attitude toward the debt situation, the Chamber almost unanimously refused to have any discussion. This does not mean that even within these last few days opinion has not altered on the possibility of ratification.

Conversion of Premier Poincard to this view will thus be only the beginning of conversion of Parliament, for the subcommissions, like the Premier, will now be in possession of all the facts in the case and will be able to study not only the disadvantages but the advantages of settlement.

Though Parliament has gone on vacation, the Government has not. During the coming weeks its business will be to obtain definite curtailment of the cost of living, for it was on that note that Parliament adjourned. Especially in the Senate today insistence was placed on this governmental duty. Every kind of precaution against undue profiteering is certainly being taken, but in this matter France is still faced with the difficulty of adjusting her internal to external prices, and the task is not going to be an easy one.

On internal prices depends to a large extent the needs of new currency in the country, and it is there that lies the vital spot of the Government. Provision has been made by Premier Poincare's bill giving permission to the Bank of France to increase circulation of francs to the extent to which it buys gold and foreign currency as a counterpart for the ordinary needs of commerce, but even with this safeguard the margin is narrow. If between now and October prices increase with the circulation of francs the problem is likely to become such that even Premier Poincare will not be able to solve it.

What Makes the Wanamaker Sale the Great Furniture Sale?

From the Founder's Writings

She Never Allowed Her Boys to Fret

I can give you that woman's name. She would not have liked them to swear, but she really thought that fretting was almost as bad. Why? Because fretting makes people sour and cross and fidgety.

You can tell fretters by the telltale in their faces, and if they speak it is to grumble and find fault.

Fretting is a habit; it can be broken; often it comes because parents or employers do not keep their children and their people busy doing something.

There isn't a happier place in the town than this Store, where everybody has so much to do that all are kept busy and happy.

Turkish Delight

BY OUR LONDON CORRESPONDENT

"Rahat Lakoum!" demanded the old Turkish Caliphs, and, "Turkish Delight!" clamour thousands of modern English kiddies. Grown-ups, too, confess a liking for the toothsome candy. Turkish Delight! Its name conveys its nature. This luscious sweetmeat, relished by Eastern rulers when Arabian Nights were young, is still made in Cyprus from the genuine old recipe.

From this British Crown colony a consignment of Turkish Delight has just arrived at Wanamaker's, and is now on sale in the Candy Department. Test it yourself—you will come again for another box.

The price—50c the half pound.

RECORD PRODUCTION BY OUR INDUSTRIES

Federal Reserve Board Review Shows All Output Totals Broken in Last Fiscal Year.

AUTOS REACH NEW LEVEL

Continuation of Building Also Contributes Greatly to the Large Total.

MEMBER CREDIT INCREASED

Security Loans Again High, Recovering From Decline—Exports Are Decreased.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—All production records were broken by American industry in the fiscal year ended June 30, the Federal Reserve Board declared today in its review of business and financial conditions. This result was attained, it was stated, largely because of the high level at which the automobile industry operated and the continuation of an active building program.

Whether this record-breaking activity would continue throughout the calendar year the board did not venture to predict. In discussing the factors involved in the record production up to this time the board pointed out, however, that stocks of automobiles, including used and new cars, were larger in June than was usual at that time of the year, and that the volume of unoccupied building accommodations in many sections of the country was relatively large, a factor in the recent slowing down in the construction industry.

Member Bank Credit Increases.

The board called attention to the fact that member bank credit had increased by more than $7,500,000,000 since March, 1922, and also that security loans, or brokers' loans by member banks, were again very high, having regained a considerable part of the decline which occurred in April, but refrained from any mention of the possibility of a chance in the rediscount rate.

That the situation is being carefully scrutinized by the board is the opinion held in some quarters. Today's review called attention to the fact that, with the large volume of member bank credit outstanding, and their indebtedness of more than $500,000,000 to the Reserve Banks, these banks will be in close contact with the banking and credit situation during the approaching period of increased currency and credit demand for the marketing of crops and the financing of Autumn trade.

Discussing general industrial conditions the board stated that while industrial activity during the second quarter of 1926—April, May and June—was not maintained at the high level of the early months of the year, the recession which began in April and became more pronounced in May did not continue in June, and at midsummer the industrial output was about the same volume as during the preceding month.

"Taking the first half of the year as a whole," the board stated, "the volume of production, when all lines of industry are considered, was larger than in the corresponding period of any previous year. The high level of production during these six months was in continuation of a large volume of output in the last half of 1925, and thus the entire year ended last June shows a larger volume of industrial activity than any earlier twelve-month period."

"The lines of industrial activity which contributed chiefly to the exceptionally large volume of output during the six months," the board declared, "were the automobile industry, the production of iron and steel and of building materials and the output of petroleum products. It is the continued large volume of construction and the growth in manufacture of automobiles that largely account for the maintenance of industrial activity at its present high levels.

"Volume of building, however, as measured by contracts awarded, though larger in the first six months of this year than in the corresponding period of any previous year, was considerably smaller than in the last half of 1925. Every month from March to June showed a decline, and in June, for the first time in eighteen months, the volume was smaller than for the corresponding period of the preceding year."

Some Industries Less Active.

Industries producing articles for more immediate consumption, such as the woolens, clothing, leather, shoes and manufactured foods, have been relatively less active, the board said. In the textile group, silk production has increased, while the volume of cotton goods manufactured has remained relatively constant and the output of woolens has declined.

"With the volume of production at a high level, the distribution of commodities to consumers in the first half of 1926 has also been in large volume," the board said. "Railroad freight shipments have been larger than in previous years, and sales by all classes of distributers, including wholesale firms, department and chain stores, and mail-order houses, for the first six months of this year have been maintained at a high level.

"The large volume of activity in trade has reflected a sustained demand for goods both from the urban and the rural population."

Total exports for the six months ended June 30, though smaller than in the early part of last year, were larger than in the first half of any other year since 1921. The decrease in total exports in the last fiscal year, the board adds, was due to the decline from the exceptional level of last year in the dollar value of exports of grain and of cotton.

The active business of recent months, the board stated, has been accompanied by a relatively stable level of prices, wholesale prices for the last three months having remained almost stationary at a level about 5 per cent. below that of a year ago.

Gift for Policeman's Widow.

Berliners' Savings Accounts Near 100,000,000 Marks

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—The savings accounts of Berliners will reach 100,000,000 marks by the end of the month, according to predictions of officials of the city's savings institutions—this despite the fact that there is an unemployment roll numbering 270,000.

Every seventeenth Berliner is now carrying an account, which is all the more remarkable since these were all opened after money stabilization less than three years ago.

The average amount of accounts also has been from 16 marks at the beginning of this year to 45, though this is still far below the pre-war showing, when the average was 185 marks.

GAS KILLS THREE IN POOL IN QUEENS

TWO OTHERS OVERCOME

Fireman Braved Fumes Without Mask, Believing It Would Hinder His Work.

Gas fumes in a cesspool at 5,165 Bell Avenue, Bayside, Queens, killed three men yesterday and overcame two others.

John Ferderowich, a contractor of 27 Prince Street, Bayside, in company with Stephen Letisec, an employe, of 65 Prince Street, lowered themselves by rope into the cesspool to repair the masonry. Workmen who peered over the rim a little later saw them lying still, apparently the victims of a strong gas. English Company 306 and Hook and Ladder Company 152, both of Bayside, were summoned.

Fireman Charles Nagle of 5,001 101st Street, Corona, a member of Engine Company 306, insisted that he be lowered into the cesspool right away.

"Don't clutter me up with those things," he said as his companions offered him a gas mask and safety belt. He then swung into the cavity and lost his grip when ten feet from the bottom. He fell across the bodies of the men he had meant to save.

Two Overcome Despite Masks.

Firemen John Whalen and Daniel Flanegan were the next men down. Each wore a gas mask, and each was protected by a life belt. When they reached the bottom of the pool they keeled over as the others had done before, and their companions pulled them to the top by lines attached to the belts. Examination showed that the masks had failed to function.

Taking extraordinary precautions with his gas mask, Eugene Butler, an employe of the New York and Queens Gas Company of Flushing, descended on a safety belt. He grasped Nagle's body and signalled to be pulled up. Then Fireman James Cummings of Rescue Squad 2 donned his gas mask and went into the pool. He brought up Ferderowich. William Barry, also of Rescue Squad 2, carried Letisec to the surface.

Dr. Roseborough of Flushing Hospital went to work on Nagle with a pulmotor and the pulmotors of the Rescue Squad and the Gas Company were applied in vain to the other victims.

Whalen and Finnegan, who live at 398 Bowne Avenue, Flushing, and 4,238 Hillendale Street, Little Neck, were taken to Flushing Hospital. Flanegan recovered from the effects of the gas sufficiently to go home, but Whalen remained at the hospital last night.

Prosecutor Orders Inquiry.

The property on which the cesspool is located is owned by Morris Steinbauer. He gave the contract to construct the pool to Edward Sheppe of 4,636 Twentieth Street, Flushing, who in turn sublet it to Ferderowich. An investigation to determine if there had been criminal negligence in constructing the pool was ordered by District Attorney Newcombe of Queens.

The bodies of the three men who succumbed to the gas were taken to Gleason's Morgue in Whitestone, where blood tests will be made by Dr. Howard Neall, medical examiner of Queens, to discover what kind of gas caused the deaths.

MORSE SEES BIG CHANGES.

Nephew, 86, Says Inventor Thought Telegraph Was Not Appreciated.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Aug. 11.—A tribute to THE NEW YORK TIMES cable service was paid today by Richard C. Morse, nephew of S. F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph eighty-six years ago, who, after his fifty-first voyage across the Atlantic, arrived in Warsaw today from Helsingfors, where he was a leading delegate to the International Y. M. C. A. Conference.

"I laughed at uncle when he said I would live to see developments in electricity not short of miraculous," he said.

"The first International Y. M. C. A. Convention I attended," added Mr. Morse, "was in 1872 in Amsterdam, and since then it has been a procession of progress. The recent one in Finland was the greatest of all, because we have been enticed by extreme youth. Men in their teens from nearly fifty nations participated, showing that we really are reaching the youth in our work."

26 Meteors in Perseus'r Shower.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP).—Approximately twenty-five meteors in the annual shower from the constellation of Perseus were seen between 11:30 o'clock last night and 3:45 A. M. today at the Naval Observatory here by Commander Asaph Hall, U. S. N., astronomer at the observatory. The meteors are believed to be parts of a broken-up comet and the display sometimes is referred to as "the tears of St. Lawrence" in commemoration of the anniversary of that saint's martyrdom.

THIEVES GET $13,060 IN WOODMERE BANK

Four Gunmen Lock Cashier and Customer in Vault and Escape in Auto.

GIRL GIVES THE ALARM

Hears Victims' Shouts and Calls Police From Street—One Bandit Said to Resemble "Bum" Rogers.

Four unidentified robbers locked the cashier and a customer of the Woodmere-Hewlett National Bank, at Woodmere, L. I., in the vault shortly after the bank had opened for business yesterday and escaped in an automobile with $13,060 cash. They overlooked $3,000 more within easy reach. Three of the men entered the bank with drawn pistols, while a fourth sat at the wheel of a motor car outside.

According to the Nassau County police, one gunman resembled John J. (Bum) Rogers, who escaped from a guard at the 125th Street Station of the New York Central Railroad last December when he was being taken back to Auburn Prison after having been brought here as a witness at a criminal trial. He has been accused of several robberies since his escape.

It is believed by District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau County that nine men were concerned in yesterday's crime. Shortly after the hold-up a policeman in Lawrence, a mile from Woodmere, stopped five Italians in a Cadillac automobile. They had driven into a blind street and explained to him that they were on their way to New York City. At that time no word of the robbery had reached Lawrence and the five were not detained.

Car Cruised Near Bank.

Mr. Edwards said the car had been seen cruising about Woodmere near the bank for several days.

William S. Brower, cashier, arrived at the bank at 8 A. M. yesterday. He had opened the vault doors and a small steel safe inside, and was ready for the day's business when, ten minutes later, three men entered. The face of one was pitted from small pox, Brower said. It was for that reason that the police suspected he was "Bum" Rogers, especially as both are described as being 35 years old, weighing about 146 pounds and being 5 feet, 10½ inches tall.

The tallest of the three pressed an automatic pistol into the cashier's ribs and ordered him to throw up his hands and enter the vault. A companion, speaking in a low voice, told Brower he would not be hurt if he obeyed orders and did not attempt to give an alarm. The cash in the safe was transferred to a satchel one of the men carried. Most of the money was in bills but they also took a quantity of gold coins, $500 worth of twenty-five cent pieces and even rolls of pennies in paper wrappings.

While the robbery was in progress Frank Addison, proprietor of a gas station, entered with $217 in currency and checks which he intended to deposit.

"What's going on here?" he asked in surprise.

"Never mind what's going on; get into the vault," ordered one of the three, who took Addison's bank book, extracted $60 in currency and threw the book and the checks it contained on the floor of the vault. As the robbers started to leave, they locked the steel barred vault door and then swung the heavy solid steel door forward in an effort to close it. Its bottom struck the runway, so that it did not close by four or five inches. They tried it a second time and Brower put out his foot.

"For God's sake don't shut this vault tight," Brower pleaded. "I'm the only one who knows the combination of that outer door and, if it's closed, we'll both smother to death!"

The three hesitated an instant and then agreed.

The lock of the steel barred gateway to the vault snapped and the robber tossed the key on the floor almost directly in front of it. There was a hasty search of the drawers behind the teller's cage, which revealed four pistols—two loaded, which the robbers took with them, and two unloaded, which they left behind.

Rings Alarm Inside Vault.

Brower waited a minute or two after he heard them go and then sounded the burglar alarm which can be started inside the vault, a fact evidently unknown to the hold-up men. Motorcycle Policeman Ralph Norris sat on his motorcycle a block up Broadway talking to Policeman Raymond Howell, both of the Nassau County police, when the gong sounded. Miss Mildred White, employed by Hewlett Brothers, coal and wood merchants, chanced to enter the bank to make a deposit just as the alarm began to ring. She could not have missed the robbers by as much as two minutes, but she did not see them. Miss White, hearing the cries of the two imprisoned men, rushed to the street screaming:

"Help! Hold-up! Hold-up!"

Policemen Norris and Howell came running down Broadway and, believing the robbers were still inside the bank, drew their pistols and dashed in. Close behind them was Henry Schender, a butcher, who found the key to the vault grill on the floor and liberated Brower and Addison.

The bank building stands at Broadway and Lafayette Street, and the sedan with its four occupants was seen just outside on the latter thoroughfare by William Brower, an iceman, who is no relation to the cashier, shortly before the robbery. It circled the block twice and when Brower saw two of the occupants of the car remove their hats and don caps and smoked glasses he became suspicious and noted down the number on the license plate—3K-61-15, he told the police.

Investigation disclosed this license plate was recorded at the Motor Vehicle Bureau as having been issued to Vito Mule, 254 Cornelia Street, Brooklyn. The records showed it registered a Ford sedan. Mule told the police he never had owned an automobile.

AIRSHIP OFF AGAIN TODAY.

The Los Angeles Will Fly to Cape May and Down to Hampton Roads.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Aug. 11.—The dirigible Los Angeles will leave the Naval Air Station here before noon tomorrow, weather permitting, to fly over Cape May and Cape Henlopen for radio compass calibrations, and will probably be seen over Philadelphia, too.

Later in the day the dirigible will head south and will moor to the mast of the dirigible tender Patoka, which is anchored in Chesapeake Bay in the vicinity of Hampton Roads.

If the weather continues fair the Los Angeles will not return to the base here until Saturday, but will make short flights between the mast of the Patoka and points south.

Dry Goods Stores Give Advertising Space To Help Dr. Harris Take Stagger Census

Oppenheim, Collins & Co., Bloomingdale Brothers, Macy's & Co., Lord & Taylor, Gimbel Brothers, B. Altman & Co., Franklin Simon & Co., and R. H. Macy & Co., members of the Retail Dry Goods Association, it was announced yesterday, have promised Health Commissioner Harris space in their daily advertisements to facilitate an early closing of his stagger census. Other members are withholding announcements about definite time and space with the idea of informing the public about the desirability of returning census data as soon as possible.

Commenting on the response of department stores to his call for aid, Commissioner Harris said:

"This generous cooperation is evidence of the retail stores' support of significant projects.

"When the subway system was dedicated some one said it would carry 400,000 persons a day and no one would live to see it used to capacity. That was in 1904. On Dec. 16, 1925, a single day, the Interborough alone carried 2,662,085 passengers. Every year brings more and more traffic on the subways, and as there is no immediate chance of reducing traffic, the stagger system ought to have a fair show."

Tabulation of census returns has begun with a check-up on the geography of the firms which have returned census forms. Wherever there are definite sections which have not been reached by the stagger census, the Transit Census Committee will formulate a plan for getting forms to them.

The Eighth Avenue Association, State Chamber of Commerce, Electrical Board of Trade, Iron League, Lace and Embroidery Association, National Jewelers' Board of Trade, Furniture Exchange, Restaurant Keepers' Association and National Wholesale Men's Furnishings Association are combing their rosters in a canvass for returns from firms that have not replied to the census appeal. The quickest returns came from the National Jewelers' Board of Trade.

TO ASK QUICK TRIALS IN MILK GRAFT CASE

Pecora Will Request Bribery Action Against Clougher Be Set for Monday.

CONFERS WITH JUDGE KELBY

Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora and former Supreme Court Justice Charles H. Kelby, named as Special Assistant Corporation Counsel to coordinate the milk graft inquiry in all New York City counties, held their first conference yesterday.

"In the absence of District Attorney Banton," Mr. Pecora said, "I gave Judge Kelby assurance of our utmost cooperation. I told him, for instance, if he found it difficult to serve subpoenas on witnesses in New York County, our office would be glad to afford those facilities."

Mr. Kelby thanked Mr. Pecora for his offer and expressed appreciation for the effective work he said Mr. Pecora had done in exposing the milk graft ring.

Mr. Pecora said he would appear before Judge Max S. Levine in General Sessions today and ask that the trial of Thomas J. Clougher and Frederick W. Kautzman, indicted for bribery in connection with the scandal, be fixed for next Monday.

Clougher, who was secretary to Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, former Health Commissioner, is serving from five to ten years in Sing Sing following his conviction of bribery in the Bronx. It was explained that the purpose in bringing him to New York County to stand trial on another charge was not for the purpose of "firing a shot into a dead man," but because it is believed that he has important information concerning the milk situation which will greatly aid in a further cleaning up of the situation if he discloses it.

Witnesses who testified to paying Clougher graft swore at his trial that Clougher told them he had others "to take care of." Mr. Pecora is interested in finding out who these persons were and in instituting criminal prosecutions against them. He also believes Clougher is in a position to give evidence which would result in the conviction of other former Health Department employes.

William H. Kehoe, former Assistant Corporation Counsel, convicted by a jury in General Sessions last Friday of conspiracy in the milk graft scandal, will be brought before Judge Levine for sentence this morning. An effort will then be made to obtain a certificate of reasonable doubt and his release on bail pending a decision in his case by the Appellate Division.

TWO BROTHERS HELD AS ARSON SUSPECTS

Accused of Setting Fire to Several Bronx Buildings—Caught After Fight.

Arrested on charges of suspicion of felonious assault, two brothers, the elder a hunchback, were held yesterday in $5,000 bail each on charges of attempted arson for a hearing Friday when arraigned before Magistrate Francis X. McQuade in Morrisania Court.

The felonious assault charge was dropped on recommendation of detectives in the case. The brothers were George Bastady, 53 years old, and Emil Bastady, 43, both of 922 Melrose Avenue, the Bronx, where they occupy a basement room.

The arrest of the two brothers followed an alleged attack made by them on Charles McQuestion of 921 Brook Avenue, the Bronx, Jacob Slagler of 440 East 163d Street and Walter Wandrasch of 923 Brook Avenue after McQuestion had grappled with the younger brother following an alleged attempt by him to set fire to a building at 921 Brook Avenue, the Bronx.

The brothers succeeded in wresting themselves free, but were followed to the Melrose Avenue address and arrested by Patrolman William O'Connor of the Morrisania Station, who entered with drawn pistol.

According to Assistant Fire Marshal John J. Cashman, who investigated several fires of suspicious origin which in the last few months destroyed a number of Bronx cider stubes, George Bastady entered the hallway of 453 East 163d Street, the Bronx, last Sunday about the same time as his brother went into the Brook Avenue address and attempted to set the place on fire.

Cashman's charge against George was corroborated in a supporting affidavit made by Mrs. Margaret Hill of 921 Brook Avenue, the Bronx, who alleges she was seated at a window of her home on Sunday and saw the prisoner enter the hallway of 453 East 163d Street, the Bronx, light a bundle of paper, throw it on the floor and then leave. The same house was damaged by a fire on June 20 last which destroyed the building at 451 East 163d Street, the Bronx, and partly destroyed the building at 449, according to Cashman. He alleges George Bastady, prior to the fire, had been ordered from the premises by Alfred Nachbauer, the owner. Cashman alleges Bastady threatened to "get even."

Emil Bastady is charged by Cashman with attempting to fire the building at 921 Brook Avenue, the Bronx, where up to about eighteen months ago the brothers resided.

BARKSDALE KILLED IN PLANE'S CRASH

Survivor of Three Accidents Trapped on Crippled Craft by Fouled Parachute.

DAVISON WITNESSES DROP

Assistant Secretary of War on First Visit to McCook Field—Victim Flew in War.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 11.—Lieutenant E. A. Barksdale, formerly of Mitchel Field, plunged to death here today when the Douglas observation plane he had taken up for a test went into a tail spin at 4,000 feet.

Lieutenant Barksdale was seen to make a desperate effort to pull the speed course at Wilbur Wright Field, jumped. He cleared the plane, but his parachute was fouled on a wire strut. Entangled by the shrouding, the parachute clung to the plane until a sudden swerving parted the line and Barksedale and the parachute plunged downward.

The airplane landed about 150 feet from the point where the pilot was crushed by his fall. He was at an estimated altitude of 4,000 feet when the ship went into the spin and about 1,000 feet up when he leaped.

"This was Barksedale's third jump and it got him;" said one of the pilot's fellow officers. On two previous occasions he jumped from planes and landed safely. In one accident his observer was catapulated from the ship and was killed. In 1924, while flying low at tremendous speed over the speed cource at Wilbur Wright Field, Barksedale's plan struck two men riding on an army truck, decapitating them. Barksedale landed the plane without a crash. He flew in the New York air races last year.

He was a spectacular but not a stunt flyer. He set the early record of four hours and three minutes for a trip from Dayton to New York.

He is credited officially with shooting down four German planes. Unofficially he is said to have shot down seven. He was wounded and shot down, falling behind the German lines, but escaped capture. When the American troops came along he joined them and was taken to a hospital.

The tragedy today was witnessed by F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War; Brig. Gen. William E. Gilmore and Captain R. L. Walsh, who arrived this morning for an inspection of the field here, and by local Air Service officials. A dinner was to have been given tonight at the Engineers' Club for the distinguished visitors but was cancelled because of the tragedy.

Mrs. Barksedale is in a serious condition tonight, due to the shock of her husband's death. Lieutenant Barksedale's parents reside at Goshen Springs, Miss.

SHOOTING OF YOUTH IS LAID TO GANG WAR

Suspect Arrested for East Side Attack—McLaughlin Took Hand in Investigation.

The mysterious shooting of Samuel Harris, 18 years old, of 233 East Third Street, on Monday night, one of two that baffled detectives and Commissioner McLaughlin, who took a personal hand in the investigation, was solved last night with the arrest of Herman Schneiderman, 19 years old, of 65 Mangin Street, on charges of robbery and felonious assault. The shooting is believed to have been the outcome of gang disputes.

Schneiderman, who was arrested in his home, admitted the shooting and robbery, the police said.

Detectives Mitchell, Herring and Whalen had learned that Harris was shot in Schneiderman's home. Harris was taken to Gouverneur Hospital in a serious condition.

At the time Commissioner McLaughlin and detectives reached a drug store at Mangin and Delancey Streets, where Harris was being attended, they were told that Harris had been walking on the street and was shot by an unseen gunman.

The police said that Harris's story of Monday night shielded the real assailant.

Schneiderman admitted also, the police said, that on July 6 he had robbed Abraham Sloshower of 589 East 138th Street, an agent for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the Bronx, of $100 at 78 Mangin Street.

Swimmer Drowns at Howard Beach.

Raymond Pall, 25 years old, of 254 Etna Street, Brooklyn, was seized with cramps and drowned yesterday while swimming with friends at Howard Beach, near Richmond Hill, L. I. His body was recovered last evening by policemen of the Marine Division and taken to his home.

Education Meeting Put Off.

Owing to the absence of a quorum, the meeting of the Board of Education scheduled for yesterday afternoon was adjourned without any future date being set.

OBERST JUROR WARS ON 'THIRD DEGREE'

Man Who Caused Mistrial of Case Announces Action in Letter to Gang.

ASKS THEM TO ASSIST HIM

Louis Long of 1,351 Bathgate Avenue, who when serving as juror No. 3 in the Bronx County Court caused a mistrial on Tuesday in the case of the Oberst gang by demanding in open court that he be withdrawn, yesterday sent a letter to the five defendants, informing them that he had started a movement for abolition of the "third degree" as they said it was practiced by the police. The letter was sent to Judge James M. Barrett, presiding Judge at the trial.

Mr. Long called upon the prisoners to "take your medicine gracefully," and advised them by good behavior while in jail to forward his anti-third degree movement.

Letter to Defendants.

The letter follows:

August 11, 1926.

Honorable James M. Barrett,
County Judge,
Arthur and Tremont Avenues,
New York City.

To
Mr. Leo Hecker,
Mr. Edward Frankel,
Mr. Peter Mahoney,
Mr. Frank Kerrigan,
Mr. Philip Oberst,
At the bar of justice:

You are human beings. You have erred. I do not know whether or not you are guilty of any or many crimes besides those you have freely admitted in court. But the same mind that created me has created you, and even in your condition and predicament you can rise again.

You can restore the divine image in you first of all by accepting in the proper spirit whatever the constituted authorities dispense on you. Then patiently retrace your steps, or rather set yourself to reach a new and better ideal. Listen to the still small voice in your heart.

My thoughts shall go out to you to help you in the retracing of the straight and narrow way. I have seen much good in each of you that can be made the foundation of an entirely new life, a beautiful, useful and happy life even in poverty, probably in comfortable circumstances.

Without much suffering mankind would never develop some of the most desirable and most beautiful or precious qualities of the mind, heart and spirit. It takes time to grow bad. You can grow better every day, every moment of your life. It is simply a matter of choice. What we freely choose to do is easy to do. Tear your medicine gracefully for having frequented bad company. Then forget the past. Learn to do well; learn to forgive. As soon as you reach the point when you can forgive the mistakes of others, and you can return good for evil cheerfully, a new and beautiful life will be your possession, and in time you will be worthy to rise to a higher plane in the scale of human evolution.

Do not be ashamed to cry. I like that trait in you. Crying is a safety valve for the heart and for the nervous system. After a good cry do not forget to raise your heart and mind to your Creator, who despises not one of His creatures, and who is above all Kings and powers in the universe.

You will be pleased to know that without any premeditation whatsoever I have started a movement for the abolition of the third degree in our country. By your good behavior help me to fan the spark to a flame. If you wish me to write sometimes to you when you are in jail, let me know it in a legal and proper way.

Sincerely,
LOUIS LONG.

Will Not Discuss Action.

In a statement sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES with a copy of his letter Mr. Long asked that no credence be given to "the disjointed statements and lies published at the suggestion of incompetent and narrow-minded reporters." He said beating of prisoners by policemen to force confessions was a disgrace which "causes enlightened people in the whole world to curl their lips when we boast of our constitutional liberty."

Commenting on his demand that he be withdrawn as a juror, Mr. Long said:

"My withdrawal from the jury was not due to sickness or nervousness. It was not premeditated and it was not rash. It was for a just cause which I refuse to discuss fully with any representative of any newspaper; most certainly not with the representatives of degenerate, yellow papers. The subject cannot be discussed freely except with State or national representatives. I request to be let alone on the subject of the incident in court."

Mr. Long is in the real estate business after having been a chiropractor until recently.

District Attorney McGeehan of the Bronx said he had seen Mr. Long's letter, but as the case was coming to trial again he could not discuss it. The second trial will open at 10 A. M. today before Judge Barrett. Mr. McGeehan said he had several surprises for the defense and that he expected a jury would be found today from the new panel of 100 names.

District Attorney Newcombe of Queens yesterday discharged the special panel that had been called for the trial of the Oberst gang in that county. The mistrial was responsible for his act.

PEACE CONGRESS OPENS.

Youth of Both Sexes, Representing 30 Nations, Meet in France.

BOISSY LA RIVIERE, France, Aug. 11 (AP).—Some 1,200 youths of both sexes, representing thirty nations gathered here for the Sixth International Democratic Peace Congress, are spending a preliminary week in the truly peaceful atmosphere of the wooded grounds of Château Tierville, forty miles away from Paris. Of the delegates present, 600 are German.

The serious work of the congress will begin next Wednesday, when addresses are scheduled by French, Belgian, English, German and American speakers.

The idea behind the movement is that by bringing the youth of different nations together for mutual understanding the chances for war will be diminished.

It is estimated that between 4,000 and 5,000 will be present the coming week.

Will Rogers Has New Idea About the Tourist Problem

GREATEST BOMBER FOR NATION SHOWN

Craft to Carry 5 Men, Machine Guns and Twelve Tons of Bombs Is Named.

TO DISPLACE THE MARTIN

Radio-Equipped Machine Is to Be Tried Out by Government as First of a Fleet.

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, Pa., Aug. 11.—A new type of bombing plane, built for the War Department and to be tried out for the fleet which will displace the Martin bombers now in use, was exhibited publicly for the first time here today, at the plant of the Huff-Daland Airplanes, Inc.

The plane was named "cyclops" today by Miss Eleanor G. Godley of Trenton, N. J., in a formal ceremony.

The new plane will carry five men and five machine guns capable of warding off air attacks from all sides and also 4,000 pounds of bombs for attacking purposes, according to Elliott Daland, Vice President of the company. Added speed will be acquired with the completion of a new type of engine by Government experts.

The new plane is the result of several years of experiments and includes details which were kept secret until very recently by the Army Intelligence Department. Without munitions, crew, gasoline and other additions, it weighs about 9,000 pounds. Fully loaded with 4,000 pounds of bombs, munitions for two machine guns, 2,500 pounds of fuel, an approximate 1,000 pounds of personnel and incidentals necessary to flight and combat, it approaches 16,000 pounds.

Half of Weight is "Useful Load."

The fact that 50 per cent. of its final flying weight will be "useful load" in aviation terminology, is an achievement claimed for few combat planes, the builders said. The wings are of welded seamless chrome molybdenum steel tube and duralumin, supplanting the wooden construction of its predecessors.

The spread of wings in the new bomber is eighty-five feet and the fuselage measures sixty-five feet. It is equipped with an 825-horsepower V-1,500 engine developed by the Packard Company and the Engineering Division of the Army Air Service. The cockpit carries the pilot and a companion and in each wing is a machine gun whose fire can be directed from the cockpit. The guns are located in such a way that their fire is not necessarily synchronized with the revolutions of the propeller. Bombers heretofore, the manufacturers pointed out, fired through the propeller.

The plane is radio-equipped, with trailing antenna, the radio operator having accommodations with the rear machine gun operator. Parachute flares which will aid in making night landings are part of the equipment.

The plane will be capable of a speed of 110 miles an hour and will have a cruising range of 500 miles, fully loaded, according to Mr. Daland. Without bombs and other munitions 5,000 pounds of gasoline and oil can be added and the plane made capable of a flight to Europe.

The Cyclops, while carrying only one motor, is capable of utilizing three. Mr. Daland, however, thinks highly of the single-motor idea. He said that greater power and speed are available with the double or triple motor plane, but believes that they are more awkward and harder to handle. He announced that the Engineering Division of the Army Air Service is constructing at McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio, a new airplane engine of twenty-four cylinders, which can develop 1,200 horsepower. Planes of the Cyclops type will be equipped with this engine and also with twin motors, he said.

Martin Planes to Be Discarded.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—No more Martin bombing planes will be built for the use of the Army Air Service and the War Department is placing orders for the construction of experimental bombers with a view to determining upon a new type of plane.

That the Martin bombers, of which the War Department has approximately a hundred in Panama, Hawaii, the Philippines and at Langley Field, Va., are considered out of date and must be replaced was asserted tonight by Major Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Army Air Service, in connection with the launching by Huff-Daland Airplanes, Inc., at Bristol, Pa., of an airplane bomber which an officer of the corporation said was the forerunner of a fleet to be built for the Government.

General Patrick said that several other experimental types of bombers, intended as possible successors to the Martins, are to be built and tried out by the Army Air Service.

From these the Air Service, General Patrick explained, will pick the best or the best two for construction, and then after further tests the bomber regarded as the best type of all will be selected as the standard type for the army.

ASSAILS 'TYRANNY' OF LABOR LEADERS

ORDERS CHECK-UP OF FUNDS

Officials Dominate the Union for Personal or Political Advantage, He Says.

FINDS MEMBERS HELPLESS

Cites Two Convictions of Brotherhood Men for Expelling Those Who Would Not Submit.

Tyranny of labor leaders was scored by Referee Russell Benedict in his decision granting to Joseph Feldman, President of Local 2,717, of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, an injunction restraining five officials of the union from interfering in the affairs of the local and forcing them to account for the funds. The order was granted on Tuesday and filed yesterday.

Those enjoined are Jack Halkett, who succeeded Joseph F. Brindell as President of the Building Trades Council, and now is Vice President of the New York City District Council of the Carpenters and Joiners Brotherhood, and, by appointment of Governor Smith, a member of the State Housing Commission; Alexander Kelso, Secretary and Treasurer of the District Council; Samuel and Louis Goldberg and Morris Biren, members of Local 2,717.

The decision is another step in the almost continual warfare that has been going on since the local was formed, about six years ago. The trouble, it was said, originated when the two Goldbergs, who were designated by the District Council as officers of the new local, refused to give up power when the 1,100 members elected officers of their own. Donald Marks of 43 Cedar Street, counsel for Feldman, said that the real trouble with the higher officials was that the local elected Abraham Kivowitz as delegate to the council and elected Feldman President, both of whom, he said, were not acceptable to the district officers. Mr. Marks said that Samuel Goldberg was then set up as President by the council.

The referee ordered an accounting in view of the fact that probably $300,000 had passed through the treasury of the local. In his decision the referee said, in part:

"The leaders dominate the union for their own personal, material or political advantage. The laity in the union finds itself helpless against the tyrannical and self-serving leaders, who combine to control and dominate the funds and policies of the union.

"All of these actions on the part of the District Council point inescapably to the conclusion that the power of the council was being used by the defendants, Halkett and Kelso, for their own ends. The whole history of the relations of the district council and the local reeks of collusion and conspiracy on the part of the defendants to control the important offices of the local and hence dominate its business and affairs.

"An examination of the records reveals that the officials of the New York District Council of the United Brotherhood have on two other occasions been found guilty by the courts of this State of having violated constitutional limitations in expelling members of the union who did not submit to their orders. This sort of terrorism has no place within an organization such as the United Brotherhood of Carpenters."

TWO FLIERS MAROONED HUNTING RUM RUNNERS

Forced Down on a Florida Island Without Supplies—Night-Long Fight Against Snakes.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 11 (AP).—Boatswain Thomas L. Godley, commander of the United States patrol boat Coast Guard 253, was back on board of his ship today, following twenty-four hours' absence, during which he spent sixteen hours marooned with George Gay and a crippled Government seaplane on Talbert Island, several miles from the St. John's River bar.

The airplane, scouting for rum-running craft, developed engine trouble, and the men had to make a forced landing off Talbert Island.

There followed a night of hardships. There was no water, food or matches. Supperless and with parched throats, they were compelled to walk along the shore during the entire night in order to fight off mosquitoes and rattlesnakes.

Yesterday morning a small fishing smack sailed near the island and was hailed by the two men. They later were put aboard the Coast Guard boat 243.

Three known dead, two reported killed, two men critically wounded, and one man reported missing, was the toll from two encounters between rum-runners, hijackers, bootleggers, Coast Guardsmen and Federal agents in Florida in the past five days.

DEPUTY SHERIFF SLASHED.

Alleged Drunken Auto Driver Is Accused of Attack.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., Aug. 11.—A few moments after he had been arrested tonight, charged with operating an automobile while intoxicated, William Doetner of 187-44 108th Street, Ozone Park, Queens, is alleged to have severely slashed Deputy Sheriff Arthur Paynter of this place. Paynter was removed to the hospital in a serious condition from loss of blood. He has a severe gash in the left wrist, made by a sharp knife or razor.

Doetner was locked up here to await arraignment in the morning. Doetner and his wife operate a refreshment stand on the Jericho Turnpike at South Huntington.

LAY PLANS FOR CHAIN OF FILM THEATRES

J. J. Shubert, J. M. Schenck and I. C. Freud Consider Five Cities to Erect Houses.

CIRCUIT FOR UNITED ARTISTS

Company to Build in Chicago First —Would Get First Rights to Pictures of Many Stars.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Joseph M. Schenck, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United Artists Corporation, arrived in Chicago today with the announcement that the corporation plans to build a new moving picture theatre here based on a novel idea.

Immediately upon his arrival from Hollywood Mr. Schenck conferred at the Drake Hotel with William Phillips, New York banker, L. C. Freud, Detroit real estate dealer, and J. J. Shubert, New York producer.

Mr. Schenck, outlining plans for the new venture, said theatres of the same type as that contemplated for Chicago would be constructed in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Detroit for advance release of more pretentious pictures.

A company to finance the venture has the backing of Seligman & Co., Wall Street bankers. Associated with Schenck and Sid Grauman of Los Angeles in the deal are the Shuberts.

A company for the operation of a circuit such as that outlined above was incorporated in Maryland on May 22 of this year, under the name of the United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc. The authorized capital was given as $64,000,000. The Shuberts were named at the time as Mr. Schenck's partners in the enterprise, along with Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and Sidney Grauman of Los Angeles, I. C. Freud of Detroit, mentioned in the dispatch from Chicago, was not named in the earlier announcement.

Mr. Schenck announced at the time that about twenty theatres would be operated in as many cities, and that the first of these would probably be ready by next April, with the others to follow within two years. The theatres will be moderate in size, with average seating capacities of about 1,800, and prices for the best seats would run from $1.50 to $2.50. Contracts would be signed, it was announced, giving the new circuit preferential rights to the films of Mary Pickford, Norma Talmadge, Gloria Swanson, Douglas Fairbanks, Rudolph Valentino, John Barrymore, Buster Keaton and others.

PRINCIPAL WINS FIGHT FOR REINSTATEMENT

William Maxson Returns to Active Service After Two-Year Opposition by White Plains Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—A fight waged for two years by William Maxson, who presided as Principal of the Court Street schoolhouse although he had neither scholars nor teachers, against the Board of Education for complete reinstatement, ended in his favor today when a decision was received from the State Board of Education directing the local authorities to place Maxson in active charge of one of the city grade schools and to pay him back salary amounting to about $1,450 for the last three months.

The first attempt to oust Mr. Maxson took place two years ago. It was charged that his record of seven years with the local school system did not represent competent and faithful services. The board was said to have been unable to prove the charges adequately, but discharged Maxson nevertheless. Maxson was then at the Court Street school and refused to leave, on the ground that there was no justification for the act.

A year ago the school property was sold to the county and vacated by the Board of Education, but still Mr. Maxson remained because he was not assigned as Principal of any other school. Before the State Board of Education Mr. Maxson contended that he was entitled to be appointed Principal of the White Plains high school in point of years of service.

In its decision the State body fails to uphold this and holds that Mr. Maxson is entitled only to a grade school post similar to that which he has occupied for several years.

$1 'OUTING' TICKETS SIFTED.

Big Sale Reported for Mythical Affair for Queens Prosecutor's Aids.

The police in Queens began an investigation yesterday of the fraudulent sale of tickets for a mythical "outing for employes of the United States District Attorney's office." Tickets bearing that title and priced at $1 each came into the possession yesterday of Chief Clerk Joseph Green in the office of the United States Attorney in the Brooklyn Federal Court.

Mr. Green was informed that persons having actions pending in the court had been heavy buyers of the tickets. He turned over his information to the police, denying that any outing had been planned. According to the tickets the affair was to be held today at Karatsonyi's Hotel, Glenwood, L. I.

Calls Murder Easiest Crime.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 11.—Declaring that murder was the easiest crime to commit because in order to get a conviction in the first degree the prosecutor must have a perfect case, Mrs. Cecile Schetter, a New York lawyer, expressed her disapproval of capital punishment in an address before the Lions Club here today. "No rich man gets the limit for murder," she said. "He is able to surround himself with alienists. You will find most of those in jail are first offenders. States where they do not have capital punishment have the least number of murders."

Sues Her Hostess for $15,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Alleging that she was injured seriously when an automobile driven by her hostess ran over a curb in Pelham on May 17, Georgiana Loomis today filed suit against Florence L. Smith for $15,000 damages. She said she was thrown against the windshield.

KODAK COMPANY WORKS ON MOVIES IN COLOR

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 11 (AP).—Development of a new process for making motion pictures in color is under way in the Eastman Kodak Company laboratories here, it was learned today. Robert T. Flaherty, motion-picture producer, is now experimenting with the process, which is known as "kodachrome," with the idea of putting the process to practical test in a motion-picture to be made in New York City.

Miss Maude Adams, the actress, has been working with Mr. Flaherty and laboratory experts here in experiments. Mr. Flaherty said today a scenario had been written especially for the process, the story relating to the making of colored glass by monks centuries ago. The climax is the showing of a colored glass window, now in New York City, which will be photographed for reproduction in color.

At least two months will be needed to complete experiments, it was said.

PLAYERS TO REWED AT GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tyson in Variety Artists' Home to Have an Actress Bridesmaid, 95.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Two vaudeville players who amused audiences in England and the United States fifty years ago, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary tomorrow by another betrothal and another wedding. They are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tyson, aged respectively, 78 and 69, now residing in the home of the Variety Artists' Federation in Twickenham near London.

"I feel marriage is a sort of mansion of happiness and my lease has expired. I want to renew it," said Mrs. Tyson.

Three other actresses, aged 95, 82 and 75, will be bridesmaids at tomorrow's ceremony. The two best men are each aged 88.

$100 FOR FIRST NIGHT SEATS FOR "VANITIES"

Price Applies to 100 in Orchestra on Aug. 24 and Is the Record for a Broadway Opening.

Another record price for opening night seats will be established by the next edition of Earl Carroll's "Vanities," for which $100 a ticket will be asked at the premiere at the Earl Carroll Theatre on Aug. 24. The $100 price will apply to only one hundred orchestra seats, one of which Mr. Carroll himself will occupy.

The previous record was held by the current edition of George White's "Scandals," for which $50, plus war tax, was charged.

Tight Wire Performer to Marry Manager of Device.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 11.—Miss Lillian J. Cummings of South Boston, former tight wire artist with the California Shows now playing here, will close her professional career as a performer for the midway shows Friday night, when she will become the bride of Ralph W. Brown of Lynn, Mass., manager of the Ferris wheel with the same show. The ceremony will be performed on the Ferris wheel.

The newly-weds-to-be will be seated in one car and the witnesses to the ceremony in the car above them as the wheel goes up. The clergyman will take his position in the car beneath them. When the wedding party is lifted to the top of the wheel the ceremony will take place.

Mr. Brown and Miss Cummings met at Northampton, Mass., where the California Shows have Winter quarters.

BAND PLAYS WAGNER, LISZT.

Goldman Applauded at New York University—Olive Marshall Sings.

The Goldman Band, under Edwin Franko Goldman, gave a Wagner-Liszt program at New York University last evening. Selections from "Tannhauser" and the "Valkyrie" were the applauded numbers from Wagner, while Liszt was equally popular with his "Preludes" and "Hungarian Rhapsody." Olive Marshall, the soprano, delighted with "The Song of India" and "A Birthday." The band's other program numbers were by Herbert, Grieg, Roberts and Goldman.

Tonight the concert will be in Central Park. Many persons have not yet discovered that the Goldman Band plays Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings in Central Park, and the other evenings of the week at New York University.

Belasco Expected at Desk Today.

A published report that David Belasco, who has been slightly ill with a cold, had suffered a relapse was denied last night at the Belasco Theatre. It was said that the producer had practically recovered, and that he would be at his office as usual this morning. Mr. Belasco, who dined for many years at the Hotel Marie Antoinette, moved recently to Park Avenue.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Roberta Arnold has been engaged for "Sisters Three," by John Willard, now in rehearsal.

Grace Hayes, at present of "Passions of 1926," will eventually be featured by the Shuberts in a musical comedy. Clifford Grey will write the book and lyrics.

The regular burlesque season at the Columbia Theatre will begin on Saturday night, Aug. 28. Dave Marion's company will be the first attraction.

A. H. Van Buren and Raymond Hickle have succeeded William Carleton and Louis Kimball, respectively, in "The Little Spitfire," coming to the Cort next Monday.

"The Dancing Duchess," a Viennese operetta, will be produced here next month by Paul M. Treitsch.

"The Adorable Liar" will be the title of the comedy hitherto known as "The Imaginative Girl." It will open in New York on Aug. 30 at a playhouse as yet unannounced.

FINDS WAY TO ALTER COLOR OF DIAMONDS

New York Scientist Reports He Has Changed Yellow Gems to Blue White by Radium.

JEWELRY FIRMS AID HIM

Dr. C. E. Field Says Method Which Ancient Alchemists Sought Is Not Practical Commercially.

After four years of patient research in laboratories, a New York scientist reported yesterday that he had succeeded in changing yellow diamonds, comparatively cheap and plentiful, into valuable blue-white diamonds—all by means a radium treatment. Dr. C. Everett Field, director of the Radium Institute of New York, at 300 West End Avenue, said that two large jewelry firms in New York were cooperating with him in his researches and investigating his findings.

"I cannot say definitely that the change in color will be permanent," Dr. Field said. "Our experiments have lasted for four years, however, and in that time no stone which has been changed to blue-white has reverted to its original hue. We have made these experiments with diamonds, silicas and other glasses, and the results so far lead us to believe that the change is permanent."

The process, Dr. Field explained, is to place enough radium near the diamonds to draw off the impurities in the stone which cause the yellowish color. If more radium is used, the change will occur more rapidly, according to Dr. Field. The quantity is also governed by the relative hardness of the jewel.

One hundred milligrams of radium, worth about $8,000, was necessary to change one diamond in four days' time, Dr. Field asserted. "Now that we have succeeded with diamonds," he said, "we are going to try other precious stones, beginning with the emeralds, to discover how they are affected by the radium treatment."

He insisted that the process was not yet practicable commercially despite the alluring possibilities which it seemed to hold.

"Radium is too rare and costly, for one thing," he said. "Furthermore, it is highly dangerous to handle radium in open contact, without adequate tubing and insulation to protect the men working with it. In our work with cancer patients, for instance, the operator is screened from his radium by various efficient safeguards." Dr. Field said that in the diamond experiments the radium must be used openly, without any coverings, to have the desired effect.

VAN HOOGSTRATEN AGAIN AT STADIUM

Dutch Conductor Gives "Freischutz" Overture for His Re-Entry and Wins Many Recalls.

Willem van Hoogstraten returned to conduct the Philharmonic Orchestra at the Stadium last night, for the ensuing week. Mr. van Hoogstraten cut short his engagement at the Hollywood Bowl on purpose to keep his New York appointment. He spoke enthusiastically of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, numbering it among the best organizations in this country.

Mr. van Hoogstraten had never seen anything to equal the natural beauties of the Hollywood Bowl.

The Dutch conductor had selected for his New York re-entry the "Freischutz" overture, which he directed with contagious animation and energy, being recalled to the desk several times and bidding the orchestra rise to the continued applause.

Mr. van Hoogstraten proved that he had the secret of distilling Debussy's fantastic atmospheric moods. He conducted "Fetes," the nocturne for orchestra, with a light, yet brilliant touch, giving each fleeting impression with expressive care.

Tchaikovsky's "Italian Caprice," the next piece on the program, did not seem to meet the conditions so fortunately. The Russian composer's use of the Italian idea seemed labored and heavy, and alien to his usual romantic self, but it met with great favor. Mr. van Hoogstraten was recalled again and again, and at last gave an encore, the favorite "Bumble Bee."

Brahms's Second Symphony occupied the second part of the evening. The conductor and the orchestra finding their highest moments in the beautiful adagio.

Tonight Mr. van Hoogstraten will present Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony with Wagner as the companion composer.

POSED AS SISTER, NOW BRIDE

Margaret Tarjan of "Great Temptations" Weds Jeweler.

Margaret Ibolya Tarjan, a member of the cast of "The Great Temptations," at the Winter Garden, was married in the Municipal Building yesterday to John Mayer. Miss Tarjan, who came to this country from Hungary nine months ago, has been appearing at the Winter Garden as Margaret Mayer and until yesterday's ceremony led her friends to believe that Mr. Mayer was her brother.

The bride gave her age as 21 and Mr. Mayer as 34. The latter, who is also a Hungarian, is a jeweler of 140 West Fortieth Street.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Price Trends for Securities and Commodities Toward Lower Levels.

Prices in most markets declined yesterday. This was particularly true of securities and of farm commodities, notably wheat and cotton. On the Stock Exchange the market did very well until the final hour of trading, but when it became apparent that the rally in stocks, engineered in mid-morning, was not going to hold, a fresh outburst of liquidation, both for profit-taking purposes and new sales for the decline, developed in the last hour, and at the close prices for the majority of stocks were at about the low point for the day. There were a few exceptions to the general downward trend, an outstanding one being the strength in New York traction stocks. Once more interest was centred mainly upon General Motors and United States Steel common, and when these two leaders did not retain their recovery the selling pressure increased. The tone of the market at the close was nervous and excited.

The day's news was not especially depressing, although it contained further evidence that the market must adjust itself to a tighter money situation and that probably the time of 4 and 4½ per cent. call funds is over for the year. Withdrawals from the call market yesterday totted up to $25,000,000, bringing the total for the week to some $80,000,000. There is creditable testimony that these funds are going directly into business, their normal and natural channel. It is difficult to see how this shift of funds can be construed as an unfavorable development, because these withdrawals are prompted by the improvement in business. Nevertheless, Wall Street holds this to be the main factor in the unsettling reaction which has developed and which is probably nothing but a technical readjustment, following wide and stormy advances in many issues.

In most other directions the day's news was definitely favorable. The iron and steel reviews were particularly optimistic. The Iron Trade Review said that "August thus far is repeating the story of the unprecedented volume of steel buying written by July," and adds that "fresh requirements are on a scale calculated to maintain a broad market indefinitely, which will give the steel industry at large its greatest midsummer vitality in history." The Iron Age notes that "the opinion is growing among producers and consumers that 1926 will exceed 1925 as a steel year." It is noteworthy that, despite the exceptionally good demand, pig iron and steel prices do not advance. Pig iron for the fifth week, and steel for the eighth, have remained stationary in price.

British trade figures continue to reflect the costly coal strike through the decrease in exports, particularly heavy materials and manufactured goods, and through the increase in imports. The "excess of imports" for July was the largest of any month since April and showed a gain of more than £6,000,000 over the previous month. The fact that Great Britain is obliged to import vast quantities of coal evidently is a factor of considerable importance in her unsatisfactory trade position. Thus, the effects of the strike appear to be cumulative.

EXCHANGE SUSPECTS 'CORNER' IN STOCK

Calls On Members for Record of Trades in Consolidated Distributors, Inc.

HEAD OF COMPANY DENIES IT

Plenty of Shares for Open Market, Says Jesse Froelich—65,000 Still in Treasury.

Apparently suspecting that a "corner" exists in the stock of the Consolidated Distributors, Inc., the New York Stock Exchange has called upon its members to furnish by noon on next Monday a list of all full-lot transactions made in the shares from Aug. 5 to Aug. 11 inclusive. The members are required to give the volume of sales and their prices, the names of the members or firms with which the transactions were handled and the customers for whom they acted.

Consolidated Distributors, Inc., is the successor of the old Times Square Auto Supply Company. It is engaged in the retail distribution of automobile supplies, radio supplies and sporting goods.

The call, which was announced late yesterday, was made by the Secretary of the Stock Exchange, E. V. D. Cox, upon instructions from the Committee on Business Conduct. The Exchange made no explanation of the letter, which it announced had been sent to members.

It appeared on inquiry that the authorities of the Exchange have been suspicious with respect to the stock for some time. Two previous inquiries are understood to have been directed to members.

Jesse Froelich, President of the company, denied last night that a "corner" existed in the stock. He insisted that there was plenty of it available to make a free and open market, notwithstanding the large short interest which is reported to have been built up.

Mr. Froelich explained that when the company issued new stock some time ago 150,000 shares were offered to stockholders at $3.75. The market price was $3.25. Only 85,000 shares were taken up, 65,000 shares remaining in the treasury. Traders recently have been afraid, apparently, it was said, that this stock was to be dumped upon the market, and there has been heavy short selling. Mr. Froelich said the 65,000 shares were still held in the treasury.

The stock has for some time been fluctuating widely for a stock whose market value is so low. It closed yesterday at 3¼, showing a net gain on the day of ⅛ point. It closed Tuesday at 2⅛, showing a net loss on the day of 2⅛.

The letter from the Stock Exchange sent to members follows:

"I am instructed by the Committee on Business Conduct to request you to furnish it, by noon, Monday, Aug. 16, 1926, with a list of all full-lot transactions made by you from Aug. 2 to 11, inclusive, in Consolidated Distributors, Inc., stock, giving the volume and prices, the names of the members or firms with whom the transactions were made, and the customers for whom you acted. Kindly use trade dates and not blotter dates."

FINANCE AUSTRIAN PROJECT.

New York Corporations to Back Danube Power Scheme.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Aug. 11.—Great satisfaction has been expressed here over the announcement today that the American-European Utilities Corporation of New York and the Nieder Oesterreichische Eskompte are ready to help in financing the project to harness the Danube for hydroelectric power at Korneuburg Schoenau with Austrian labor. Especial emphasis is laid on the latter point, in view of its alleviation of the unemployment situation here.

The project has been drawn up by an official Austrian engineer and will need the labor of 3,300 workmen for five years. It must first be approved by the Austrian Federal Government and the Provinces of Vienna and Lower Austria, but in view of the promised financial aid, such approvals, it is thought, will be forthcoming.

The Case Securities Corporation and the Blair Company are said to be also interested in issuing bonds to finance the undertaking, which will furnish power to all Vienna and Lower Austria, including the railways.

POLES REPORT RECOVERY.

Surprised by Improvement in Economic Conditions.

W. Eric Lord, Secretary of the American Polish Chamber of Commerce and Industry in the United States, Inc., made public yesterday the following cable from Warsaw:

"Minister of Commerce Kwiatkowski emphasized during a press conference the improvement of economic conditions in Poland, which even surpassed expectations. The monthly average of coal exports in 1925 was 600,000 tons, whereas in July of this year it rose to 1,800,000 tons. Like improvement is noticed in other industries, especially in the metallurgic and textile. The rate of discount in Poland is decreasing perceptibly. The favorable trade balance continues to assert itself, creating resources which permit realization of the program of sanitation of the economic situation.

"The Government wishes to hasten the construction of the Port of Gdynia to facilitate exportation, to keep a low level of prices in Poland, to constitute a commission to investigate prices and income in Polish industry and to complete commercial legislation."

PREDICT STEEL ACTIVITY.

Trade Reviews Expect August to Equal July as Banner Month.

Both The Iron Age and The Iron Trade Review state that August promises to equal July as a banner month for the steel business. The first of these publications also says that the opinion is growing among producers and consumers that 1926 will exceed 1925 as a steel year.

The Iron Trade Review says August sales so far is repeating the story of the unprecedented volume of steel buying written in July. August business comparable with July will give the steel industry at large its greatest Midsummer vitality in history. Indications of substantial gains over July are not infrequent in reports of current conditions.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and in the Financial Markets.

An acute unsettlement took place in the stock market shortly before the close of trading yesterday. Therefore the movement of stocks on the New York Stock Exchange laid been extremely irregular, so the closing reaction was not unexpected.

General Motors featured the downturn, ending the day with a net loss of 3½ points. United States Steel, which for the most part has moved with General Motors in recent advances, participated in the final break, which was so severe as to carry a good part of the list to the lowest levels of the day. The close found the following stock issues showing severe losses: Baldwin Locomotive, du Pont, New York Central, Cudahy Packing, Air Reduction, American Brake Shoe, Manhattan Electrical Supply, National Lead and Texas Gulf Sulphur. The market had its strong spots, as many of the representative stocks stood the shock of the selling in the last half-hour and closed the day with substantial net gains. These included General Refractories, American Safety Razor, Norfolk & Western, Interborough Rapid Transit, United States Industrial Alcohol, Sloss-Sheffield, Ward Baking B and Murray Body.

General Motors Meeting.

The dividend meeting of the General Motors Corporation, predictions regarding which have furnished the chief incentive for the recent spectacular advances in this stock, will be held at 3:30 P. M. today, soon after the close of trading on the Stock Exchange. While Wall Street is still confident that some sort of special disbursement will be ordered, less has been heard lately about the "big melon" which was the topic of conversation some time ago. The movement of General Motors stock within the last few days has suggested to many that the distribution expected today has been overdiscounted on the Stock Exchange. However, the speculative community will be disappointed greatly if the General Motors board fails to take some action today that will benefit stockholders rather substantially.

Congress and the Railroads.

Railroad men are inclined to throw cold water on optimistic predictions of dividend disbursements by the more prosperous carriers at this time. They feel that, in the first place, it would be premature to estimate the year's earnings before the year is out and that, in the second place, it would be unwise to do anything which might arouse criticism in the next Congress, which many of them believe will be Democratic. There may be isolated instances, they say, when a railroad bent upon financing by the sale of stock will increase the distribution to shareholders, but for the most part the carriers will wait until the year is out and the political horizon is clear.

The closing reaction in the stock market yesterday was the third successive decline to take place within thirty minutes of the suspension of trading. The nervous movement of the market in the earlier trading had foreshadowed yesterday's downturn for many astute observers, but few were prepared for a break as wide as that which occurred. Near the close of trading leading brokerage houses put out predictions that another irregular market should be looked for today. Many forecasters were bold enough to predict a vigorous rally tomorrow.

"After Labor Day."

The phrase "after Labor Day" has become general in Wall Street, as it usually does in mid-August. With the ranks both of investors and of security distributers thinned by vacations, little in the way of new financing may be expected until next month. This is reflected in the small volume of sales of bonds, both on the New York Stock Exchange and in the over-the-counter trade. Next month, however, a general increase in activity is anticipated, and a number of large transactions already are in sight. These include bidding on a large volume of new municipal and State bonds, led by a $28,000,000 New York State issue, as well as negotiations for liberal South American financing. Syndicates are being formed to compete for a $45,000,000 loan to Colombia, and a number of similar loans are planned. Bond price movements yesterday were without significance, except for a slight advance in some of the railroad issues.

Time Money in Demand.

Despite the withdrawal of about $25,000,000 of loans the call-money market yesterday bore an appearance of ease. New funds became available, replacing the money called out of the market, and the rate never got above 4½ per cent., which compared with 5 per cent. on the previous day, with outside accommodation available at 4½ per cent. The real feature was the increasing firmness in time money, with loans of from 90 days all the way to six months made at 4½ per cent. Expanding commercial requirements, with the consequent stiffening in the rates for loans of fixed maturities, has inevitably caused talk of an advance in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate, but this talk did not attract much attention yesterday. The general expectation is that reasonably easy money rates will prevail, at least until after the Government financing of next month, which is expected to exceed $400,000,000.

More Gold Going to Canada.

Gold continues to move from New York to Canada, and bankers declare further transfers are to be reported as long as exchange conditions remain as at present. Canadian dollars yesterday were quoted at a premium of five thirty-seconds of 1 per cent., which is the level at which most of the transfers of the last two weeks have been made. The shipments have been of moderate amounts, mostly of $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, but they have been fairly continuous, and the total transferred so far amounts to $8,500,000. Last Autumn more than $45,000,000 of gold was shipped to Canada, and early this year close to $70,000,000 was taken from the Dominion to the United States. The only other marked movement of gold noted recently was a shipment to Germany, representing part of the Reichbank's gold reserve, which had been held with the Federal Reserve Bank.

Foreclosure of the St. Paul.

The Federal Court is expected soon to set a date for the sale of the St. Paul Railroad. Present indications point to this sale taking place on Oct. 1, unless the Bondholders' Defense Committee, headed by Edwin C. Jamieson, is able to delay it. The road is making an aggressive effort to develop business and has greatly strengthened the personnel of its traffic department. The June report showed an increase of approximately $650,000 in gross revenue and a much larger one in net operating income. Its managers are optimistic over prospects, feeling that while it may be a long pull to prosperity the goal is, nevertheless, certain.

Tenth Million-Car Week.

The recording of the tenth million-car week by the American Railway Association gives promise of the consummation of the prediction that with the exception of holiday week a million cars would be loaded every seven days in 1926 from the middle of May until the middle of December. This time last year only three weeks had reached the million mark, but before the year was out there were twenty. Indications are that there will be at least twenty-five this year. It was also not until the last week of August in 1925 that the loadings totaled more than 1,100,000, which they exceed this year in the current report for the week ended July 31.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 11, 1926.

Stock Exchange call money was firm at 4¼ per cent. all day, a concession of one-half of 1 per cent. from Tuesday's maximum and final. Street trades were arranged at 4 per cent. in the closing hour. Plen of money appeared at the lending table, and withdrawals amounted to $26,000,000. Time money was very much firmer, maturities running from 90 days to six months lending at 4½ per cent. There was a good demand for over-the-year funds at that figure. Commercial paper and acceptances were steady.

NEW ISSUE

Electric Public Service Company

Three-Year 6% Gold Notes

Dated August 1, 1926 Due August 1, 1929

Interest payable February 1 and August 1. Coupon Notes in denominations of $1,000 and $500. Notes registerable as to principal only. Redeemable at the option of the Company in whole or in part on thirty (30) days' notice at 101 and interest up to February 1, 1929. On February 1, 1929 and thereafter, redeemable at 100 and interest. Principal and interest payable in New York at the principal office of the Trustee. The Company agrees to pay the normal Federal Income tax up to 2%. Personal Property Tax of any state under any present law, not in excess of five mills in any case, and the Massachusetts Income Tax on the interest not exceeding 6% of such interest per annum, refundable to resident holders upon timely and appropriate application.

GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE

Mr. R. A. Pratt, President of the Company, summarizes in a letter addressed to us as follows:

Territory and Business: The Electric Public Service Company, a Delaware corporation, will serve without competition, directly through its subsidiaries eighteen communities in Ohio and Oklahoma with electric light and power and two additional communities in Oklahoma with natural gas. Findlay, Ohio, will also be supplied with steam heat as well as electric light and power. The Company serves a population of approximately 65,000 with electric light, power and gas, and has 8,016 electric customers, 3,307 gas customers and 192 steam heating customers. A subsidiary of the company also furnishes electric railway service in Findlay and operates a profitable freight and passenger service between Findlay and Toledo, Ohio.

The sources of net revenue of the properties are as follows: Electric Light and Power 77.5%; Gas 11.8%; Railways and Steam Heating 10.7%.

Generating and distributing equipment is in good physical condition and, of modern design, thereby enabling the company to maintain a high level of operating efficiency.

Security: These Three-Year 6% Gold Notes will be, in the opinion of counsel, the direct obligation of Electric Public Service Company, as are the $450,000 Three-Year 6% Notes already issued.

The properties of the Company have been examined by independent public utility engineers and the appraisals show a value considerably in excess of the total amount of bonds, notes and preferred stock to be presently outstanding.

Capitalization: The capitalization of the Company upon completion of present financing will be as follows:

Three-Year 6% Gold Notes (including this issue)		$1,350,000
Fifteen-Year 6% Secured Gold Bonds—
Series A	$ 700,000
Series B	2,000,000	$2,700,000
7% Preferred Stock $100 par value		500,000
Common Stock, no par value		20,000 shs

NOTE: In addition to above there will be outstanding $192,000 par value 5% Bonds and $466,000 par value 6% Bonds and less than 10% of the Capital Stocks of a subsidiary company.

Earnings: The earnings of the Electric Public Service Company and subsidiaries for the year ended April 30, 1926, were:

Gross Earnings	$1,184,296.67
Operating Expenses, maintenance, taxes and prior charges	787,025.73
Net Earnings	$ 397,270.94
Annual Bond Interest requirements	162,000.00
Balance	$ 235,270.94
Annual interest on outstanding Three-Year 6% Gold Notes, including this issue	81,000.00

Net earnings, as shown above, are over 2.9 times the total annual interest charges on all outstanding Three-Year 6% Gold Notes of the Company.

Purpose of Issue: The proceeds from the sale of these notes will in part provide funds for the acquisition of property, and for other corporate purposes.

Management: The operations will be in charge of men successful in public utility activities and in addition will be under the experienced supervision and direction of Mr. R. A. Pratt, President of Electric Public Service Company.

All legal details incident to this financing will be passed upon and approved by Messrs. Chapman, Cutler & Parker of Chicago. Valuations by Messrs. Day & Zimmermann, Inc. Messrs. Haskins & Sells have audited the books and accounts of the Company and its subsidiaries.

We offer these notes when, as and if issued and accepted by us, and subject to approval of counsel.

REDISCOUNT RULING BY RESERVE BOARD

DECISION WAS REQUESTED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Notes of a parent corporation to finance the purchase of automobiles to be used by its subsidiary are not eligible for rediscount at Federal Reserve banks, according to a ruling issued today by the Federal Reserve Board.

The board had been asked to rule upon the eligibility for rediscount of such notes when issued under a plan by which the notes were to be made by a certain parent corporation, which is a parent company, owning approximately 75 per cent. of the initial stock of a number of corporations throughout the United States engaged in motor transportation under the "Drive it yourself plan."

The proceeds of the notes in question were to be used by the parent company to purchase automobiles which were to be distributed to the various subsidiary companies. These subsidiaries were to pay for the cars out of earnings from month to month. The notes would be guaranteed by a surety company. The parent company does all of the borrowing for the subsidiaries.

"The plan," the Federal Reserve Board ruled, "appears to be one whereby the parent corporation borrows money to finance the purchase of automobiles to be used as permanent or fixed investments in the business of its subsidiaries.

"The board has heretofore held that notes of a corporation engaged in the business of furnishing motor transportation, made for the purpose of providing funds with which to purchase motor vehicles, are ineligible for rediscount, on the grounds that such motor vehicles necessarily constitute a large part of the corporation's entire equipment and are hence to be considered permanent or fixed investments.

"It is true that under the plan here presented the notes are to be made by the parent corporation and the cars purchased and distributed by it to its subsidiaries, but this does not change the nature or purpose of the transaction.

"It does not appear whether there is an actual sale of these automobiles by the parent company to the subsidiaries, but in any event the board does not feel that these notes should be considered eligible on the theory that the proceeds are to be used to purchase goods which are to be resold, because of the close affiliation of the parent company with the subsidiaries, the obvious purpose of the plan is to finance the subsidiary corporations in acquiring the automobiles.

"In the board's opinion the transaction is, on the substance even if not in form, a borrowing for capital purposes. The notes of the parent company, therefore, the proceeds of which are to be used to purchase automobiles to be delivered to its subsidiaries and used by them for capital purposes, must be considered ineligible for rediscount at a Federal Reserve bank."

ONTARIO & WESTERN FIGHTS

Appeals to United States Supreme Court on Valuation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP).—The New York, Ontario & Western Railroad filed in the United States Supreme Court today an appeal attacking the tentative valuation placed upon its property by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Its principal objection was against the valuation placed on its working capital, materials and supplies.

Silk Mill Files in Bankruptcy.

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 11 (AP).—The Foster & Gifford Silk Mills, Inc., manufacturers of silk cloth at Gloversville, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the Federal Court here today. Liabilities were listed at $116,392 and assets at $62,832.

UTILITY IN CUBA TO BE SPLIT UP

New Concern Will Own Car Lines of Havana Electric Railway, Light and Power Co.

The organization of a new company to be known as the Havana Electric Railway Company, which is about to be incorporated under the laws of Maine, is the preliminary step in the plan to segregate the street railways of the Havana Electric Railway, Light & Power Company from its light and power properties, it became known yesterday. The new Havana Electric Railway Company will acquire all of the street railways now owned by the Havana Electric Railway, Light & Power Company, the Camaguey Electric Company and the Santiago Electric Light & Traction Company.

The Havana Electric & Utilities Company, which is controlled by the Electric Bond & Share Company, will have a substantial interest in the common stock of the new company, and will be represented on its board of directors. Frank Steinhart, who for about twenty years has operated the properties of the Havana Electric Railway, Light & Power Company, will become President of the new company.

In connection with the segregation of the properties, provision will be made for the release of property under and for the satisfaction of some of the underlying mortgages. The securities of the new company, consisting of $5,500,000 of 5½ per cent. debentures bearing subscription warrants for common stock and $5,000,000 of 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock carrying a bonus of common stock, have been purchased by Speyer & Co. and J. & W. Seligman & Co., and will shortly be offered for public subscription. The plan for the readjustment of the enterprises sponsored last year by Speyer & Co. envisaged the segregation now proposed.

ASKS BANKING BILL SUPPORT

Representative McFadden Says It Is Lost if Bankers Fail to Help.

Louis T. McFadden, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, has addressed a letter to all national banks in which he urges that their executives make known to Congress their attitude on his banking bill, which failed in the last session of the Senate. He declares the bill is in danger of being lost unless action is taken before the adjournment of Congress on March 4 of next year and that if the legislation fails the Federal Reserve system will be seriously weakened by the withdrawal of member banks.

Mr. McFadden says the Hull amendment was the chief reason for the Senate's refusal to accept it, and that the dispute which has arisen over this amendment is "largely academic."

His letter says that in rejecting the Hull amendment the Senate acted on a policy which would give national banks the right to have city branches automatically if the laws of the States in which they are located authorize State banks to have branches, regardless of the time when such branch banking laws were passed.

BEACON OIL IN NEW FIELD.

Company to Distribute Ethyl Gasoline in New England.

The Beacon Oil Company announced in its statement covering operations for the six months ended June 30, made public yesterday, that it has entered into a contract with the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, which is owned jointly by the General Motors Corporation and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, to distribute ethyl gasoline in New England.

The Beacon Oil Company reports net earnings of $266,000 applicable to common stock in the first six months of this year. This showing is considered especially gratifying in view of the fact that the company showed a net loss of $228,000 in the first quarter.

McGraw to Publish Catalogues.

The McGraw Catalog and Directory Company, Inc., has been formed, it was announced yesterday, to publish condensed catalogues and directories. Mason Britton is president of the company and James H. McGraw Jr. is treasurer. Each is a vice president of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company. Robert Wolfers is vice president and general manager of the new organization and Ralph Becker is vice president and sales manager. C. H. Thompson is secretary.

FINDS OIL BUSINESS IN A HEALTHY STATE

Sir Henri Deterding Says Millions Are Needed to Develop the Industry.

SEES NO CAUSE FOR WORRY

Hundreds of millions of dollars are required to develop the oil industry properly, Sir Henri W. A. Deterding, Managing Director of the Royal Dutch Petroleum Company, said yesterday before departing on the Berengaria for Europe after a visit of several days here.

"I consider the oil industry to be in a very healthy state," he continued. "Some persons are worried about the production of synthetic benzine, but they need have no occasion for worry. This production would only be possible if protected by an enormous tariff. I have heard of serious minded people in Europe proposing a protective tariff of 80 shillings a ton for benzine, and a whole cargo of oil can be moved for that.

"The most optimistic statement of the situation is that by 1928 the production of synthetic benzine throughout the world will amount to only about 50,000 tons a month, and facilities for preparing this benzine will amount to exceedingly large amounts. Fortunately, so far, the money invested for this benzine development has been put up by people who are thoroughly familiar with the situation and there has been no stock selling or stock promotion connected with it. The largest contributor to the cause of synthetic benzine is the Badische Anilin of Germany, one of the foremost dye makers of Europe, and they do not expect a large output of this product for a long time to come.

"The daily consumption of oil is increasing abroad, due to rapid development of the Diesel engine. The only drawback is the slowness with which Diesel engines are being constructed. Whereas it takes eight to nine months to construct an ordinary steamer, it takes twenty months to produce a Diesel-driven ship. But concerns that have Diesel vessels will never go back to steamers.

"Our production in South America, principally in Venezuela, is running at about 70,000 barrels a day. We are also doing some work in Argentina, but it is not on a paying basis yet.

"We are interested in the Turkish Petroleum Company, but in my opinion it will cost several million pounds sterling to develop this area. During the war the Germans drove some shallow wells in a primitive way, and at one time, I understand, production in Mesopotamia reached about 600 barrels a day. We are satisfied oil is there, but in what quantities we don't know yet. I only want to impress the fact that it is going to cost a great deal of money to develop this work. The pipe line will be 500 miles and will cost $40,000 a mile to construct."

EXTENDS RAILROAD'S BONDS

Commerce Commission Favors Gettysburg & Harrisburg Petition.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11 (AP).—The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized today the Gettysburg & Harrisburg Railway to extend from Oct. 1, 1926, to the same date in 1956 the maturity of $565,000 of its mortgage bonds. The commission also authorized the Reading Company to assume obligation for the bond.

The commission also authorized the West Pittston-Exeter Railroad to construct a four-mile line in Luzerne County along the Susquehanna River connecting with the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad at West Pittston. The applicant was authorized also to retain the excess earnings on its line.

Bosch Magneto's Half-Year's Net.

For six months of this year the American Bosch Magneto Corporation shows a net income of $243,752, after charges and depreciation, but before Federal taxes. This equals $1.17 a share on 207,399 shares of no par stock. In the first half of last year the income was $241,895 or $1.75 a share, earned on 138,266 shares of no par stock.

New Issue

North American Light & Power Company

30 Year Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, Series A 5½%

To be dated July 1, 1926—To be due July 1, 1956

The Company will agree to reimburse the holders of these Debentures, upon timely application, for the Pennsylvania, Connecticut and California Personal Property tax not exceeding 4 mills, and for the Massachusetts income tax not exceeding 6% per annum.

The following is taken from official sources:

Business and Property: North American Light & Power Company, incorporated under the laws of Delaware, controls the entire common stocks of Illinois Power and Light Corporation and Missouri Power & Light Company, which directly or through subsidiaries serve a population of more than 1,350,000 in over 520 municipalities in the states of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. About three-fourths of the net earnings of the system are derived from power and light. The electric properties include generating stations with an aggregate capacity of 375,960 h.p., serving 271,762 customers. The gas properties furnish artificial gas to 90,410 customers. The railway properties consist of 550 miles of trunk line electric railroad connecting central Illinois with St. Louis and a steam road of 45 miles and city railways with an aggregate of 235 miles of track.

Capitalization: After giving effect to present financing:

30 Year Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, Series A 5½%	$15,000,000
Cumulative Preferred Stock—$6 Dividend—entitled on dissolution to $100 per share and accrued dividends—without par value	85,000 shares
Common Stock (without par value)	600,000 shares

Sinking Fund: The Debenture Agreement will provide for a cumulative sinking fund beginning July 1, 1931, of $150,000 annually, payable semi-annually, which may be used, at the option of the Company, to purchase and retire debentures of this issue and/or to purchase stocks, bonds or other securities of the constituent or other companies which shall be pledged with the Trustee. The income on all Debentures retired or securities purchased by the sinking fund will be added to the sinking fund. It is estimated that the operation of this sinking fund will retire 40% of this issue before maturity and/or correspondingly increase the security therefor.

Earnings: Consolidated statement for 12 months ended April 30, 1926:

Gross Earnings		$33,736,742*
Operating Expenses, Maintenance and Taxes		20,805,009
Net Earnings before Depreciation		$12,933,733
Deductions:
Interest and Amortization of Subsidiary Companies	$8,230,870
Preferred Stock Dividends of Subsidiary Companies and Allowance for Minority Common Stock Interest	2,243,128
Depreciation and Sinking Fund Reserves in accordance with Subsidiary Companies' Mortgages	1,482,405	9,956,403
Balance		$ 2,977,330
Annual Interest on $15,000,000 30 Year Sinking Fund Gold Debentures, Series A 5½% (this issue)		825,000
Balance		$ 2,152,330

Balance of $2,977,330 is over 3.6 times annual interest requirements of this issue.

* Includes $336,797 profit realized on sale of certain properties.

Equity: These Debentures will be followed by 85,000 shares (no par value) of $6 Dividend Cumulative Preferred Stock (entitled on dissolution to $100 per share and accrued dividends) and 600,000 shares of common stock of no par value. On the basis of the price ($25 per share) at which common stock is changing hands between the former owners and the new interests, the common and preferred stock of the Company indicate in the aggregate an equity of over one and one-half times the principal amount of the Debentures to be outstanding.

A portion of the Debentures may be issued to former shareholders of the North American Light & Power Company (Maine) in connection with the reorganization, in which case the Company will receive cash on account of common stock equal to the cash it would have received had such Debentures been sold by the Company.

Purpose of Issue: The proceeds of the Debentures sold by the Company (and cash received for any common stock so issued) will be used to retire the entire issue of the notes of this Company known as North American Light and Power Corporation 7% Secured Notes and the preferred stock of the North American Light & Power Company (Maine), to furnish additional working capital, and for other purposes in connection with the reorganization of the Company.

Management: Arrangements have been made whereby, on completion of the reorganization of the Company (of which the issue and sale of the foregoing Debentures constitute a part) the Middle West Utilities Company and The North American Company will each acquire a substantial interest in its common stock. It is believed that this affiliation with two of the foremost public utility interests of the country will permit of new economies and promote increased efficiencies in operation. Mr. Clement Studebaker, Jr., and his associates will also become holders of a substantial interest in the new common stock and Mr. Studebaker will continue as President in active charge of the operations of the Company.

Price 94½ and accrued interest, to yield about 5.90%

These Debentures are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us. All legalities in connection with this issue will be passed upon by Messrs. Pam and Hurd of Chicago, for the Bankers, and Messrs. Defrees, Buckingham & Eaton of Chicago, for the Company. It is expected that Interim Certificates of the Trustee or Temporary Debentures will be ready for delivery on or about August 20, 1926.

MINNEAPOLIS CITY OFFERING

Birmingham Also to Sell $1,050,000 Securities—$800,000 Electric Public Service Company Financing.

A syndicate headed by E. H. Rollins & Sons and comprising Marshall Field, Glore, Ward & Co., Blyth, Witter & Co., Spencer Trask & Co., the Illinois Merchants Trust Company and J. G. White & Co. placed $15,000,000 of North American Light and Power Company debentures on sale yesterday and announced that the issue had been heavily oversubscribed. The debentures, bearing a 5½ per cent. interest coupon and maturing in thirty years, were priced at 94½ and accrued interest, to yield about 5.90 per cent.

The North American Light and Power Company controls the entire common stocks of the Illinois Power and Light Corporation and the Missouri Power and Light Company, which serve a population of more than 1,350,000 in five States. The debentures constitute the company's only funded debt. On completion of the reorganization of the company, of which the issue of the debentures is a part, the Middle West Utilities Company and the North American Company will each acquire a substantial interest in its common stock.

E. H. Rollins & Sons, Phelps, Fenn & Co., Howe, Snow & Bertles, Inc., of New York and Kalman & Co. of St. Paul, Minn., are offering a new issue of $2,000,000 City of Minneapolis 4 and 5 per cent. gold bonds. The 5s are priced to yield from 4 to 4.15 per cent., the maturities ranging from 1927 to 1935, while the 4s are priced at 99¾ and interest for the bonds maturing from 1935 to 1940 and 99 and interest for the 1941 to 1951 maturities.

A syndicate headed by the First National Bank and including Redmond & Co., Marx & Co. and the Anglo-London-Paris Company is offering a new issue of $1,000,000 City of Birmingham (Ala.) 4½ per cent. gold bonds. The issue matures serially from 1927 to 1946 and is priced to yield from 3.90 to 4.30 per cent.

R. E. Wilsey & Co., Inc., Stanley & Bissell, Inc., and Henry D. Lindsley & Co., Inc., announced a new issue of $900,000 Electric Public Service Company three-year 6 per cent. gold notes, priced at 99 and interest, to yield over 6.35 per cent. This issue follows the offering of $2,000,000 of fifteen-year 6 per cent. gold bonds a few days ago. Proceeds of the note issue will provide funds for the acquisition of additional properties.

The Hanover National Bank has purchased $3,000,000 of ten-year 7 per cent. gold notes of the Scranton Coal Company and $1,600,000 of ten-year 7 per cent. gold notes of the Elk Hill Company, both of which are subsidiaries of the New York, Ontario & Western Railway Company, engaged in anthracite coal mining. It is not intended to offer the notes for public subscription at this time.

Both companies own extensive coal deposits in fee, and large improvements of the properties are planned. The possessions of the companies include all the coal in the Pine Brook, Caponse and Mount Pleasant collieries in Scranton, all but a small fraction of the coal in the Johnson colliery at Blakely; 72 per cent. of the Riverside deposit at Archbald and 50 per cent. of the Ontario deposit at Archbald. Proceeds of the note sale will be applied to the payment of debts incurred in the purchase of the coal in fee, for surface lands and for capital improvements to the colliery properties in the last two years.

Dillon, Read & Co. have concluded arrangements for a loan to the Berlin Electrical Works. The amount involved is $2,500,000, and it is in the nature of a private banking credit. There will be no public offering of securities in connection with the loan.

RAIL EQUIPMENT MARKET.

Orders for Signals, &c., Placed—Inquiries Put Out for Cars.

New contracts for interlocking devices, signals, motor mechanisms and other devices have been received by the General Railway Signal Company from the New York Central, the Missouri Pacific, the Chicago & Western and the Morgan, Louisiana and Texas Railroads.

The Consolidation Coal Company has put an inquiry out for 200 mine cars. Revised specifications have been announced by the Chicago & Northwestern on 300 box cars and 200 automobile cars. This inquiry was out some time ago but was practically withdrawn, and the revised specifications indicate that orders are likely to be placed shortly.

Butte and Superior Mining Net.

The Butte and Superior Mining Company reports for the June quarter of this year a net income of $89,670, after expenses, depreciation, and taxes, but before depletion, which is equal to 31 cents per share, on $2,901,977 of capital stock. In the same period of last year the net income was $124,554, or 42 cents per share. For the first six months of this year the profit was $214,024, before depletion, or 73 cents a share, as against $343,349, or $1.17 a share in the first half of 1925.

Higher Smelting Earnings.

The American Smelting and Refining Company estimates that its earnings for the first six months of this year are equal to $11.50 per share on the common stock after preferred dividends, in a report released yesterday. In the first half of last year the earnings were equal to $7.89 per share. Executives of the company said that the last half of this year would be more favorable for the concern, as high as $25 per share on the common being expected.

For the ten months ended June 30, last, Julius Kayser & Co. report a net income of $1,139,095, after depreciation, interest and taxes, which is equal, after $8 preferred dividends, to $6.03 per share on 115,700 shares of no par common stock.

RUBBER SHIPMENTS EXCEED CONSUMPTION

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The view expressed in rubber circles at the beginning of the year, that, with the virtual release of the British estates to full production, the world's rubber output in 1926 would once more exceed consumption after a four-year period of excess demand, seems likely to be justified, according to present reports. American consumption, it is also stated, has fallen off.

The chief reserve of free rubber constituted by the London stock has risen since the beginning of the year from 6,000 to nearly 28,000 tons. In an expert review of the first half of this year published today, shipments of plantation rubber in that period are estimated at 271,000 tons and the total shipments of British rubber at 291,000 tons. It is stated that British production has been considerably below the standard and that so far the expected increase of production in the Dutch East Indies has not shown itself.

America, it is stated, consumed about 15,000 tons less in the first six months of this year than in the same period of 1925, but a better American demand is expected in the Fall.

The price of rubber, following the recent announcement by the Colonial Office that there is no likelihood of abolition of the restriction scheme, has now fallen to 1 shilling 7¾ pence per pound, and if the average price for the quarter is below 1 shilling and 9 pence there will be an cut of twenty per cent. in the British quota for the following quarter. This, however, would not materially affect this year's shipments.

CRUDE RUBBER FUTURES SAG

Only 40 Lots Dealt In In Listless Market—September Most Active.

Prices of crude rubber futures sagged in a listless session yesterday, absence of interest from either the manufacturers or traders resulting in a turnover of only forty lots. September was the most active position of the four months dealt in.

Declines of 10 points were registered in September, December and January, while March gave up 20 points. Trading in the London market also showed a swing lower, all positions reacting from ⅛d to ¼d.

	High.	Low.	Close.	Tuesday's Close.
September	37.90	37.80	37.80	37.90
December	39.20	39.00	39.10	39.20
January	39.50	39.50	39.50	39.60
March	40.00	40.00	40.00	40.30

Other months closed—Feb. 39.70; April, 40.30; May, 40.60; June, 40.80; July, 41.10; August, 37.20; October, 36.90; November, 38.80. Spots were quoted at 37.50.

WATERWAYS DEAL APPROVED BY BOARD

Inland Corporations Purchase of Terminal Company Seen as Benefit to Public.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Acquisition by the Inland Waterways Corporation of the Warrior Terminal Company by purchase of capital stock was approved today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. No objection to the transaction was presented to the commission, which ruled that applicant's acquisition of control of the terminal company will be in the public interest.

The Inland Waterways Corporation, which was created by Federal legislation in 1924, is under the control of the War Department and operates the Mississippi-Warrior Service, composed of two divisions, one between St. Louis and New Orleans, the other from the latter point to head of navigation on the Warrior River at Birmingport, Ala.

The terminal company was incorporated as a common carrier last January, and in June the Interstate Commerce Commission authorized it to acquire and operate eighteen miles of railway from Birmingport to the vicinity of Birmingham, which was part of the Ensley Southern Railway and forms the only connecting link between Birmingport and Birmingham. Its sole function is that of a connecting railroad for movement of freight between the Warrior River basin and the railroads and industries of Birmingham. The commission emphasized the fact that the extension would give the terminal company station and warehouse facilities at Ensley Junction and direct connection with rail lines at Birmingham.

General Motors Movement Erratic.

So erratic were the movements in the shares of the General Motors Corporation on the New York Stock Exchange for a time yesterday that specialists in the stock refused to accept stop-loss orders. It is only very rarely that such a step is taken, and it was due yesterday to the fact that the quotations in General Motors were the widest that have been seen in some time.

More Time on Murray Body Plan.

The time allowed security holders and creditors of the Murray Body Corporation to assent to the reorganization plan presented some time ago has been extended to Aug. 21. It is understood that more than half of the merchandise creditors and holders of a substantial amount of the common and preferred stock have approved the plan.

Shaffer Oil Earnings Gain 57%.

Net earnings of the Shaffer Oil and Refining Company for the twelve months ended June 30 showed a gain of $2,069,612, or 57.20 per cent. over the previous year. Gross income increased by $6,480,662. For June net earnings increased $177,066, or 40.03 per cent., while the gross income was up by $470,400, or 37 per cent.

RAYON PRODUCTS CO. PASSES A DIVIDEND

Announces Decision to Omit Quarterly Payment of 50 Cents on Capital Stock.

TWO EXTRAS ARE DECLARED

Eastman Kodak and U. S. Gypsum Co. Declare Additional and Quarterly Disbursements.

I. Rogosin, President of the American Rayon Products Corporation, announced last night that the directors of the company had decided to omit payment of the current quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the capital stock.

"The recent cut on July 1 of 35 cents a pound in the price of Rayon yarn, with the attendant inventory adjustment, combined with the unsettled prices during the last quarter for finished products because of this impending cut," Mr. Rogosin said, "has resulted in a loss for the corporation for that period, even though the sales have been considerably greater than in the corresponding period of last year.

"In view of the stabilization of prices following the new price level and the general increase in demand for Rayon products, the management is confident of the future earning capacity of the corporation and expects encouraging results for the last six months of the year."

The American Sumatra Tobacco Corporation, successor to the American Sumatra Company, has declared an initial dividend of $3.50 a share on the preferred stock.

An extra dividend of 75 cents a share, in addition to the regular quarterly of $1.25 per share, was ordered by the directors of the Eastman Kodak Company on the common stock, maintaining the $8 annual rate. The customary quarterly disbursement of $1.50 per share on the preferred also was declared.

The United States Gypsum Company declared an extra dividend of $1 and the regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents on the common; also the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred. Both regulars are payable Sept. 30 to stock of record Sept. 15, and the extra dividend on Sept. 1 to stock of record Aug. 21. An extra dividend for the same amount of common was declared in the preceding quarter.

The Standard Oil Company of Nebraska announced that in the future it would make dividend payments quarterly instead of semiannually. A quarterly dividend of 63 cents was declared and an extra payment of 25 cents, both payable Sept. 20 to stock of record Aug. 23. The stock is thus placed on a regular annual dividend basis of $2.50.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Interest Veers to Scandinavians on Excellent Trade Condition —Francs and Lire Weak

A revived interest in the Scandinavian exchanges, which have been more or less dormant for some time now, or since the gyrations in the francs and lire drew the centre of the stage, accounted for the sharp gains in the Copenhagen, Oslo and Stockholm rates yesterday. Business was on an active scale and seemed to receive its impetus from the favorable state of trade of the countries. Danish bills rose 7 points to 26.56 cents, which is within a point of the year's high; Norwegian rose 7 points to 21.97 cents, while the Swedish unit was up 2 points at 26.77 cents.

Orders from abroad depressed the French, Belgian and Italian descriptions, all three moving over a wide range, with final rates near the low for the day. No explanation accompanied the reaction, unless it be something in the way of news abroad which has not yet reached here. Paris francs dropped 3½ points to 2.70½ cents, the Italian 5¼ points to 3.29 cents, and the Belgian 5 points to 2.67½ cents. Sterling was slightly lower at $4.85 13-16. Holland and Swiss were firm, but the Spanish pesetas yielded 10 points to 15.26 cents.

Chinese and Japanese were in good demand, the yen establishing a new high for the year at 47 13-16 cents for cables. South Americans remained firm.

RAIL PAY MEDIATORS TO CALL BOTH SIDES

Conference Today Will Seek to Reconcile Differences Over Wage Demands.

EVIDENCE BEING ANALYZED

Winslow Refuses to Comment on Report Board Has Been Asked to Settle Other Disputes.

Members of the United States Board of Mediation were in secret session all day yesterday at the Waldorf analyzing the situation which has arisen on the Eastern railroads as the result of the demand of 91,000 trainmen and conductors for wage increases of $1 to $1.64 a day.

The board has been in session since Monday, grappling with the first serious wage dispute since it was appointed by President Coolidge on June 14. On Monday the brotherhoods, through their leaders, presented their case for a wage increase, and on Tuesday the railroad executives told why they considered an increase unjustified.

Yesterday the board studied the evidence presented by the opposing sides and today it is expected that both groups will again be summoned in an effort to reconcile their differences.

Former Representative Samuel M. Winslow of Massachusetts, Chairman of the board, refused to affirm or deny a report that requests for mediation in other parts of the country were being discussed by the board. The report asserted that two, or possibly three, members would remain in New York until the Eastern railroads' dispute was adjusted, while the others would make their headquarters in another city to examine other wage controversies.

Mid-Continent's Net Declines.

The Mid-Continent Petroleum Corporation and subsidiaries report for six months this year net profit of $6,816,824, after interest, abandoned wells, etc., but before depreciation, depletion, and Federal taxes. This compares with $7,346,734 in the first half of 1925. The June quarter income was $3,962,624, against $3,651,944.

TRADING INACTIVE IN COUNTER MARKET

Chain Stores Group Irregular—Brisk Inquiry for Several Industrial Specialties.

BAKING SHARES ADVANCE

Bank Stocks in Good Demand—Brooklyn Trust Closes With Net Gain of 20 Points.

The over-the-counter market remained quiet yesterday, indicating a watchful waiting attitude on the part of speculators who apparently are closely following the actions of the listed stocks. A number of the industrial specialties came in for a brisk inquiry, which gave the market some slight impetus for the better. The chain stores group, which has been exceptionally active and strong the last two weeks, became irregular and several reactions were noted.

American Cyanamid preferred and White Sewing Machine started the session's activity with advances of several points each. The baking shares, notably Grennan, Southern and Royal, were up from 2 to 3 points, while Johns-Manville gave up its early gain of several points and closed lower on the day.

Of the reactionary stocks in the chain stores group Metropolitan 5-50c Stores, Leonard, Fitzpatrick & Mueller and Isaac Silver were the noteworthy losers, while Neisner Brothers and Metropolitan Chain Stores were up 1 and 2 points, respectively.

Continued demand for shares of First National marked the bank stocks section and Liberty National advanced 5 points on fair volume in the early trading. Brooklyn Trust featured the afternoon's trading, closing with a new gain of about 20 points. Butchers and Drovers was off about 5 points net on the day.

Of the utility stocks Central Power and Light 7 per cent. preferred and Adirondack Power and Light 8 per cent. preferred were moderately higher, while Erie Railways preferred went down a point.

Sugar and tobacco shares were quiet and the insurance stocks displayed firmness, with slight advances in Franklin and Hanover Fire and Homestead.

WILL OF MRS. WOODS BENEFITS COLLEGES

The will of Mrs. Gertrude B. Woods, who was the wife of James H. Woods, Professor of Philosophy at Harvard University, was filed for probate yesterday, disposing of bequests to Harvard, Williams and Oberlin Colleges. The only mention made of Professor Woods in the will was contained in a section providing a fellowship for the Department of Philosophy at Harvard, to be called "The James H. Woods Fellowship."

Mrs. Woods was reported missing from a steamer she boarded on June 23 last at Portland, Me., for New York. Her body was recovered near Gloucester, Mass., last week.

A legacy of $25,000 in memory of the testatrix's parents was left to Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, with instructions that the money is to be used to found "The Baldwin Lectureship," pertaining to art. Harvard University gets $20,000 to found "The James H. Woods Fellowship" in the Department of Philosophy, and Williams College inherits a number of drawings and sketches in memory of the testatrix's brother, Irving Baldwin.

Among the drawings, which are described as all originals, are one by Meissonier, two by Rosa Bonheur, one by Diaz, one by Mauer, one by Pennell, one by Leandre and one by Whistler. The will also directs that a small plaque bearing the name of her brother and the years he spent at Williams, be given to the college.

Mrs. Woods's interest in property at Lands End, Rockport, Mass., together with a $20,000 legacy, was left to a brother, Albert F. Baldwin. His two daughters inherit $10,000 legacies and his three sons each get $5,000. Another niece, Marian B. Steiner of Birmingham, Ala., receives a legacy of $10,000. The residuary estate, together with all jewelry, personal and household effects, was left to the brother, Albert F. Baldwin, who lives in Geneva, Switzerland.

The Associated Press dispatch from Hastings says that word of Mrs. Woods's disappearance caused much surprise among Professor Woods's associates, as few were aware that he was married.

BARS FATHER IN HER WILL.

Miss Williams Leaves Trust Fund for Mother in Asylum.

The will of Miss Harriet Frances Williams of Brooklyn, who died on April 16 last, was filed for probate yesterday and recalled the disappearance of her brother, Charles Henry Williams, who went skating on the Charles River near Boston in 1876 and never was heard of afterward.

No part of the estate, which is estimated at $50,000, is to go to Miss Williams's father, Henry Clay Williams, of 1,492 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, or to his wife, Mrs. Helen Garcia Williams, by direction of the will. That instrument orders the formation of a trust fund for the benefit of the decedent's mother, Mrs. Ella J. Williams, an inmate of the Kings Park Sanitarium at Kings Park, L. I. After the mother's death the income is to go to an aunt, Mrs. Frances M. Jenness. When she dies, the principal of the fund is to be paid to an uncle, Frederick E. Williams.

If Charles Williams is alive he is about 19 years old. His parents were divorced in Massachusetts, and he was with his mother at their Summer home. The theory that he was drowned was opposed by the fact that there were no holes in the ice on the river. The search for him did not end until his mother was sent to the sanitarium.

TRACE COUNTY'S GROWTH.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—A comprehensive table showing that in 1970 the population of Westchester County will be 1,250,000 was made public by the Westchester County Sanitary Sewer Commission. The study of future population has been made in conjunction with the commission's proposed construction of three large trunk sewer lines through Westchester County to care for about 75 per cent. of the population of the entire district.

One of these lines will follow the Hutchinson River Valley and serve the larger part of the county including the cities of New Rochelle, Mount Vernon and Yonkers.

The growth of the county has been traced since 1696 when only 1,063 lived in the forty-four square miles of the county, or about two persons to the square mile. In the succeeding two and a quarter centuries the population has sprung to 425,508, or an average of 950 persons to the square mile.

Deutsche Bank Offers Stock.

The Deutsche Bank of Germany is offering 40,000,000 marks of additional stock at 150 per cent., plus tax, and holders of 2,000 marks of stock are entitled to 1,000 marks of the new issue, according to cable advices from Berlin yesterday. The present price of the stock is 170 per cent. American shareholders may deposit their shares with Speyer & Co.

HEAVY LIQUIDATION IN COTTON MARKET

BREAK OF OVER HALF-CENT

A continuation of favorable growing conditions over most of the South and one of the best weekly weather reports issued at this season in many years caused heavy liquidation in yesterday's cotton market. Prices broke over half a cent to within $1 a bale of low records of the season and closed at a net loss of 39 to 47 points.

Lines of long contracts carried over the last Government report came out, one block of 30,000 December being distributed around 16¼ cents. Professional operators covered cotton sold at higher quotations which furnished resistance at law figures of the day, but trade interests continued the policy of nearly moderate scale buying.

The market had displayed a halting tendency around 16½ cents immediately following Monday's break, owing in great measure to fears of unsettled weather west of the river. When yesterday's map showed limited precipitation and that confined to eastern sections while predictions were for generally fair weather in the southwest today, the selling movement broadened.

Liquidation started with the opening and both the local and New Orleans markets came under steadily increasing pressure as the session advanced. A moderate quantity of trade buying orders around 16.50 for December and January were readily filled and when the list went into new low ground for the movement, commission house and Southern interests sold heavily.

The most extensive liquidation of the session followed the weekly report which reflected limited insect damage and a decided improvement in fruiting in many States. After December sold within 20 points of the season's low level touched the early part of July, covering operations developed a 10 to 15 point rally during the afternoon with a close 10 points above the bottom.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.
Oct.	16.70	16.70	16.30	16.39–41	16.75–80

Southern spot markets were: Galveston 16.90c, 40 points decline, sales 700; New Orleans 17.35c, 34 points decline; Savannah 16.89c, 39 points decline; Augusta 17.38c, 43 points decline, sales 228; Memphis 17.25c, 25 points decline, sales 1,000, Houston 16.90c, 40 points decline, sales 291; Little Rock 16.90c, 35 points decline; Dallas 16.80c, 50 points decline, sales 2,674.

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton, a fair business, 9 points advance, 9.57d for middling. Sales 7,000 bales, of which American 4,000; imports 4,000 bales. Futures opened quiet, 8 to 11 points advance; closed barely steady, 2 to 3 points advance. Prices: October 8.87d, December 8.74d, January 8.76d, March 8.83d, May 8.87d.

Manchester: Yarns firmer; cloths, more demand.

BRITISH IMPORT TOTAL £100,290,000 IN JULY

LONDON, Aug. 11 (AP).—Following are the Board of Trade figures for the month of July:

Total imports	£100,290,000
Re-exports	9,440,000
Total exports	66,700,000

Exports, British goods, increased	£7,160,000

	1926.	1925.	1924.

May	81,199,000	104,266,629	122,037,155

March	38,380,000	35,921,217	39,872,282
February	20,970,706	36,950,393	15,477,964
January	45,569,928	45,572,872	23,546,000

SLUMP IN GLASS EXPLAINED.

Kane (Pa.) Makers Blame Underselling Here by European Industry.

Special to The New York Times.

KANE, Pa., Aug. 11.—Large importations of glass from European countries is given by local manufacturers as the reason for the slump in the glass industry. The gradual recession in the demand for glass, especially plate, has been noticeable for some time, but none of the large manufacturers was willing to admit that the foreign glass maker was underselling the American product here.

There are three large glass making plants in this city. Two are shut down and the others, the American Window Glass Company, is operating only one factory. A controversy between the cutters' and flatteners' union threatens a walkout in this factory.

That the glass trade in the United States is experiencing the keenest competition it has known for years is freely admitted by local manufacturers. Despite the high protective tariff, Belgian, German and French manufacturers are laying glass down in the United States at prices that undersell the local product.

The Belgians, particularly, are manufacturing a high grade product which sells in this country at prices difficult for the American manufacturer to meet.

HELD IN STOCK SWINDLE.

Salesman Is Brought From Baltimore Charged With Forgery.

Arrested in Baltimore, Md., a few days ago as a fugitive from justice, a man described as Harry Palmer, 35 years old, a securities salesman of 1,808 St. Paul Street, Baltimore, was locked up in Police Headquarters last night charged with forgery. He was brought to this city yesterday by Detective Kane of the Gangster Squad, who had been sent to Baltimore with extradition papers.

Palmer, according to the police, obtained the customers' list of the defunct brokerage firm of John Hogan, whose business dealings were mostly with out-of-town customers. Palmer called on these customers, the police say, and posing as a representative of the Hogan firm sold them stocks and bonds. He told the buyers to send the checks to a New York address, which they did, but he failed to send them the securities they had purchased, according to the police.

J. Ruie of Toledo, Ohio, complained to the New York police when a $300 check which he is said to have given Palmer was returned to him through his bank with the endorsement of John Hogan.

CURB MARKET SAGS AFTER EARLY GAINS

Call of Banks for $25,000,000 Followed by Increase in Stock Offerings.

BAKING ISSUES MOST ACTIVE

Standard Oil Securities Advance—High Priced Specialties Lose Ground.

The Curb Market exhibited remarkable recuperative powers during the forenoon yesterday, but in the afternoon the pace slackened and some of the ground which had been gained early was lost. The turn came when announcement was made soon after midday that the local banks had called another sum of $25,000,000. However, many stocks offered resistance to the increased offerings.

Strength and activity in baking stocks such as the Continental Baking, General Baking and Purity Baking issues, all of which scored the best gains noted in a long while, was the outstanding feature of the market. Some of the high priced specialties such as Johns-Mansville, Celotex, Stanley Company, Libby Owens and Bordens sold lower, and there were mixed prices among the public utilities.

Standard Oil securities sought higher levels soon after the opening and held to the gains until the last hour when they inclined to modify values. Independent oils were not specially active and few price changes of importance occurred.

Dealings in domestic bonds were again on a small scale and aside from continued strength in Cities Service obligations, which touched new high, changes were insignificant. In the foreign section United Steel Works issues were more active at higher prices.

Loses $60,000 in Race Swindle.

Special to The New York Times.

BATTLE CREEK, N. J., Aug. 11.—Phillippe Beltrano of West Walnut, Pa., was fleeced of $60,000 in a horse race swindle, the police reported today. He was relieved of $35,000 on July 12 and the three confidence men who had him in tow, not being content with that, caused him to return home, sell securities to raise $25,000 more and go to a hotel in New York City, where it was taken from him.

CROPS ARE FAVORED BY WEEK'S WEATHER

Fine for Cotton in Most of the Belt—Corn Recovering—Spring Wheat Harvest On.

The weekly weather report of the Department of Agriculture, released yesterday at Washington, reads in part as follows:

"The weather in general was favorable for the cotton crop. There was too much moisture in parts of the East and there were complaints of weedy growth and some shedding in the West, but temperatures were favorable throughout the belt. The nearly complete absence of rainfall west of the Mississippi Valley, except parts of the South, was not in general detrimental.

"In North Carolina growth was very good to excellent, with considerable improvement noted in the Piedmont, while in South Carolina it was fair; as a rule, although there were some complaints of rank growth, but in general squares and bolls are holding well. In Georgia frequent showers were not favorable, but the temperature was higher, with more sunshine, and plants showed considerable improvement in the previously dry North. In Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee progress was mostly fair to very good, although there were considerable local complaints of shedding.

"The crop showed improvement in Louisiana, with bolls opening and picking beginning in the South, and growth was very good in Arkansas, with plants blooming and bolling rapidly, although with some shedding. In Oklahoma and Texas the warmth and dryness were generally favorable, in spite of reports of shedding in some dry areas of the former. Plants are fruiting and blooming nicely in Oklahoma, with no serious insect damage in either State. Picking of early cotton advanced to Central Texas, and harvest progressed rapidly in the South, with ideal weather conditions.

Corn Makes Good Advance.

"Under the influence of favorable warmth and good rains, corn made good to excellent advance during the week in nearly all sections of the corn belt east of the Mississippi River. The crop is recovering nicely in the extreme lower Ohio Valley, where recent rainfall has relieved the droughty condition in most sections. West of the Mississippi River conditions were less favorable, particularly in Missouri, Oklahoma, Kansas and much of Nebraska, and, although showers here the close of the week were helpful in part of Nebraska, the weather has been especially trying on this crop in Southern Missouri, Kansas and Southern Nebraska, where much harm has been done by lack or moisture, high temperatures and hot winds. The unfavorable weather came in most places at an inopportune time, as the crop was in the critical stage of growth, when ample moisture is required for good results. In Iowa rains were quite general but mostly insufficient, and the progress of corn was only fair, with the general condition varying from very poor to fair and the early crop permanently damaged. In the South corn made fair progress generally and improved in the interior of the Southeast, while good growing weather prevailed in most of the Atlantic Coast area.

"The harvest of Spring wheat was in progress in the northern portion of the belt, and was completed in the southern portion, with threshing begun under favorable weather. There was some delay by rains in threshing Winter wheat in the Ohio Valley States, with light damage to grain and shock, but west of the Mississippi River little or no interruption occurred, with threshing practically completed in many sections. Oats harvest has been nearly finished, except in some late Northern districts, and threshing progressed favorably in most sections.

"The weather in Argentina during the week ended Aug. 8 was warm and showery. The temperature in the northern wheat zone averaged 67 degrees above normal and in the southern zone 60 degrees, or 2 degrees above normal. The total rainfall of 0.8 in the north was nearly three times the normal, and that of 0.4 in the south was just twice normal."

NEW BELGIAN FINANCE PLAN.

National Company to Run Telephone and Telegraph Services.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Aug. 11 (AP).—The telephone and telegraph services of Belgium will be placed under the management of an organization similar to that controlling the railways, under the terms of a bill the Government has decided to introduce in Parliament.

Preferred shares to the amount of 1,800,000,000 francs will be offered for public subscription, while others, valued at 1,500,000,000, will remain the property of the State.

LAW GATHERING ENDS AT VIENNA

MANY LEAVE FOR BUDAPEST

VIENNA, Aug. 11.—The conference of the International Law Association ended this afternoon in a plenary session, in which the reports and resolutions drawn up during the past six days by various committees were adopted without discussion.

The next congress will be held in 1928, the place being left to the choice of the Executive Council. Washington is mentioned as a possibility, but the fact that the Institute of International Law, which deals with the academic side of the question, is scheduled to meet there next year makes it likely that the association will meet in another city. It is thought best not to hold two congresses on the same subject in the same place at so close an interval.

Lord Phillimore, who has been one of the leading spirits in the present conference, asked for his views on the most significant action taken this year by the association, stated that the important work accomplished was on the following subjects, giving them in this order:

Protection of minorities, security of private property against confiscation without compensation, whether in peace or war time; the proposal for an international criminal court, limiting of territorial waters for various purposes; and in private international law, the regulation of the conflict of laws between buyer and seller as well as the Vienna rules formulated for the rate of exchange.

Resolutions embodying the association's views on these subjects have been previously reported, except the conflict of law, which was finally adopted today.

The Committee on Codification of Laws, sitting this morning under the Chilian, Donale Jandro Alvarez, adopted, after brief discussion, a report reciting the subjects being considered by the association and the League of Nations for codification.

Señor Alvarez, who was the principal speaker, dwelt on the codification work the new world was accomplishing, pointing out that it aimed at producing a Pan-American code in the near future, while the League's work for a world code was proceeding more slowly.

He also underlined the differences in the principles accepted by the world and the Pan-American bodies considering codification, notably regarding freedom of the seas and maritime neutrality. The Pan-Americans had adopted the view that neutrals have rights which belligerents must respect, while the International Law Association accepted the opposite principle.

Dr. Gustave Walker, the Austrian President of the Congress, in his closing address took occasion, after stating that the German people had suffered much during and after the war from misrepresentation beyond its frontiers, specially to thank Sir Graham Bowers for the high compliments which he had paid to the German army and navy and the German administration of justice in his speech on Friday.

Other British members, however, displeased by Sir Graham's speech, gave out a statement privately this morning that he was not authorized to speak for their delegation and represented only himself.

The projected statute for an international criminal court will be submitted to the League and it is hoped it will be considered in Geneva next September.

The delegates were received last night by the Austrian Minister of Justice Herr Waber, in the former Imperial Palace at Schönbrunn, the first time a reception has been held there since the fall of the Empire. Formerly the Hapsburgs entertained only sovereigns in this historic palace, where Napoleon once stayed and where his son, the Duke of Reichstadt spent most of his life. It was the most brilliant affair the Austrian Republic has known.

Many delegates are going on an excursion to Budapest on the invitation of the municipality.

COTTON CONFERENCE SPLIT.

Majority Unwilling to Adopt World Standards for Staples.

LONDON, Aug. 11 (AP).—The cotton conference today at the American Embassy between members of the various cotton associations of Europe and America failed to adopt world standards for cotton staples, but the American officials who attended the conference are far from dissatisfied with the outcome.

The meeting was called at the initiative of the United States Department of Agriculture because of the feeling that with the present grade and color agreements working so smoothly it would be wise to go a step further and adopt standards for the length of cotton fibre. To that end the Department of Agriculture recently invited representatives of the various European and American cotton associations to consider the question.

The meeting here today was attended by thirty-five cotton men, including a delegation of nine from the United States representing the American Cotton Shippers' Association and five representatives of the Department of Agriculture.

Lloyd Tenny, who headed the Agricultural Department forces, in a long address reviewed the whole situation and urged the need for fixing standards of staple lengths.

The meeting was very friendly, and a statement issued later explained that a majority of the European cotton men were unwilling to take any action adopting such standards. They will submit at a later date a statement detailing their reasons. The minority delegates favoring the adoption of such standards hope for an early agreement.

POTTERS WANT MORE PAY.

National Union Confers With Employers Over New Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 11.—The National Brotherhood of Operative Potters in conference here today with the United States Potters Association asked for a wage increase of from 4 to 15 per cent. in the general ware trade. Sessions will be held all week.

The present agreement expires on Oct. 4 and the joint conference in session here at present will formulate new terms. John T. Wood of East Liverpool, Ohio, President of the union, is heading the workers' committee, while Edwin Wells, also of East Liverpool, is leading the employers.

WINS PLYMOUTH OIL SUIT.

J. G. Farquhar Establishes Title to 50,000 Shares of Stock.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 11.—A decree directing William M. Henderson of Pittsburgh to re-deliver to Jerome G. Farquhar of Pittsburgh nineteen certificates representing 50,000 shares of common stock of the Plymouth Oil Company was handed down today by Judge Thomson in the United States District Court. The decree ordered that the stock be held by Mr. Farquhar free from all claims of Mr. Henderson and that the oil company pay the former $187,500 in dividends.

Ownership of the stock, together with interest incurred, has been a matter of much litigation. Last April Mr. Farquhar intervened in an action brought in the Federal District Court by Mr. Henderson to compel the oil company to transfer the 50,000 shares to him from Mr. Farquhar on its books.

In the hearing before Judge Thomson, the plaintiff was represented by Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia, who represented the Government in the Teapot Dome cases. Mr. Farquhar was represented by John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for President in 1924.

ORDERS BROKERS TO APPEAR

Court Rules Two in Elliott Firm Must Submit to Inquiry.

Supreme Court Justice James A. Dunne in Brooklyn signed an order yesterday directing Edward R. Warner and Thomas J. Elliott of the brokerage firm of Elliott & Co., 26 Broad Street, to appear on Aug. 13 and submit to an examination into the business of the firm. The action was taken on application of State Attorney General Albert Ottinger and the examination will be directed by Deputy Attorney General George E. Carmody.

Mr. Carmody, State troopers and investigators for the Bureau for the Prevention of Fraud visited the company's offices on July 15, and began an investigation. Subpoenas were served on Warner and Elliott to attend a hearing at the Attorney General's office, 66 Broadway. They failed to appear. When process servers returned to the office they found it closed. According to Mr. Carmody the firm had been circularizing English stockholders of the Ford Motor Company of Canada. They offered investors the privilege of exchanging one share of Ford Motors for seven shares of the Dryden Gold Corporation, the Attorney General said. He quoted the Dryden Gold, an unlisted stock, at one cent a share and the Ford stock at $5 a share.

PROTEST GRAIN RATE CUT.

Western Centres Hold Proposal Would Aid Minneapolis Unduly.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (AP).—Individual protests by a dozen grain market centres of the Central West against institution on Aug. 25 of reduced all-rail grain and flour rates from Minneapolis to the Atlantic Coast, announced voluntarily by the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad, were capped today with a blanket protest of western grain markets competing with Minneapolis.

Representatives of grain markets in Duluth, Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Louisville, Peoria and other points unified their efforts against the reduction, at a conference preside over by J. S. Brown, manager of the Transportation Department of the Chicago Board of Trade.

The protest urged the Interstate Commerce Commission to suspend the proposed new schedule, arguing that its effectiveness would give Minneapolis a position of undue advantage as a grain centre and would destroy the grain and flour rate structure now obtaining from the Missouri River to the Ohio.

SEEKS OFFICIAL'S ASSETS.

Belleville (N. J.) Flies Writ in Alleged $61,000 Shortage.

A writ of attachment was filed in the office of the County Clerk of Essex County, N. J. yesterday, on behalf of the town of Belleville, against the assets of Leroy F. Vermule, former Town Commissioner, who resigned sometime ago. Shortly after his resignation he was arrested charged with nonfeasance of office in connection with an alleged shortage of about $125,000 in the towns accounts. He is now at liberty in $10,000 bail while awaiting trial.

Town Commissioner Edward Nelson, Vermule's successor as Director of Revenue and Finance, filed an affidavit with the writ in which he asserted that the shortage would reach at least $61,000. Mr. Vermule was not at home yesterday and his whereabouts could not be learned. He owns a home and other property in Belleville, it is said.

DISMISSES RIO GRANDE SUIT

A judgment by Supreme Court Justice Mullan dismissing the suit brought by George Tracy Rogers and other minority stockholders of the Denver & Rio Grande Railway against the estate of George J. Gould, Edward T. Jeffrey and other officers of the defunct railway for an accounting of $200,000,000 on the ground that the railroad became insolvent through their acts was filed yesterday. Each defendant is awarded costs ranging from $119 to $125.

The judgment, signed by Justice Mullan, finds that the defendants did not act collusively or in conspiracy, or enter into any unlawful combination to wreck the Denver & Rio Grande or to cause the property to be wiped out or destroyed or to be absorbed by other interests.

LUNCH WAGON GETS WATER.

New Jersey Orders Utility Company to Provide Service.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 11 (AP).—Under an order issued by the State Public Utility Commission today the New Jersey Water Service Company was ordered to supply service to a lunch wagon operated by the United Dining Car Company in Camden. The water company said it did not object to serving the wagon, but that the City of Camden did not wish the service to be given.

Municipal authorities held that the car operators had no permit to locate the structure where it is situated. The Utility Commission, however, decided that this was no valid reason why water service should not be supplied, at least until the matter of the permit is threshed out in the courts.

Ford Tour Planes in Des Moines.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Aug. 11 (AP).—Twenty-two of the twenty-four airplanes of the Edsel Ford commercial airplane reliability tour completed the fifth leg of their journey, 220 miles from St. Paul to Des Moines, today without serious mishap. The planes depart for Lincoln, Neb., tomorrow.

WHEAT DECLINES AND THEN ADVANCES

General Selling Gets Under Way When Weak Technical Position Is Uncovered.

SEPTEMBER LEADS THE DROP

Rains in Nebraska, Illinois and Iowa Depress Corn—Oats and Rye Also Lower.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—A weak technical position was disclosed in the wheat market when general selling got under way and at the low point prices were off 3¼@4 cents from the finish of Tuesday. The close was on a moderate rally, with net losses of 2⅝@3⅜ cents, September leading. The latter is feeling the effect of hedging pressure and also changing over of trades into the December delivery. Spreaders were active in selling December and buying May; this class of business has been on for several days.

Cash wheat basis here was steady to 3 cents lower, with the damp grain weak, and No. 4 hard sold as much as 12 cents under the September. Minneapolis was weak and 2½@3½ cents lower, while Winnipeg, claiming that the Canadian report was 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 bushels too low on the three Provinces, was off only 1½@2¼ cents. Liverpool closed ½d lower to ¼d higher.

Broomhall, in an estimate on the world's supply and demand requirements, estimates the world's exportable surplus at 768,000,000 bushels, against 752,000,000 last year, while imports are placed at 704,000,000 bushels, against 602,000,000 last year.

Weakness and decline in wheat today was regarded as due largely to the technical position, local shorts having covered the previous day and many of the "Pit" element who remain bearish reinstated their lines during the day.

A considerable quantity of wheat arriving here will have to be run through the driers before it can be placed in store, which necessitates having surplus elevator room, and there is very little of this in some houses at the present time.

Charters were made today for 660,000 bushels to Montreal, largely for grain taken in on July contracts, and for 320,000 bushels to Buffalo. The movement of wheat to Chicago is expected to hold up around 350 cars for some weeks to come, as threshing is not yet completed in parts of the belt.

Export sales in all positions were finally estimated at 400,000 to 500,000 bushels, largely Winters worked on the late break.

Primary arrivals today were 2,158,000 bushels; week ago, 3,842,000; last year, 1,646,000. Shipments were 1,036,000 bushels; week ago, 1,180,000; last year, 1,348,000.

There was fairly general buying of corn futures early with December and May selling at a new high on the crop, but the market acted somewhat overbought and when locals who were on the buying side early tried to sell out they found support lacking and prices dropped 2½ cents from the top and closed at the bottom with net losses of ¼ to ⅞ cent.

Highly beneficial rains in Nebraska and part of Illinois and Iowa were factors in inducing profit taking and the technical position is regarded as materially weaker than it was when values were 10 to 15 cents lower.

Primary arrivals today were 621,000 bushels; week ago, 375,000; last year, 324,000, and shipments 368,000 bushels; last week, 223,000; last year, 221,000.

A bearish crop report by the United States Government, and a bullish report by the Canadian Government which was entirely discredited by the trade, broke wheat prices at the New York Grain Futures Market yesterday more than 3 cents a bushel. While the opening was higher than Tuesday's closing levels, the selling movement, encouraged by heavy liquidation of millers and traders around midday, assumed large proportions, and after Chicago dropped a maximum of 4 cents a bushel the market in Winnipeg had a sympathetic acline.

On the downward movement some export demand was in evidence, but at no time was this large enough to influence the trend. There was considerable selling in the New York market against what is seen.

COMMODITY PRICES

A drop of 40 points in spot cotton, to 12.85 cents, matching the year's low previously reached on July 12, featured yesterday's cash market. Heavy selling by speculators and the trade of the contract options, which depressed these sharply, carried over into the spot. Grains were also reactionary, wheat, rye and oats all dipping. Lard remained firm, as did the metals, groceries and dairy products.

Yesterday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities in the New York market, unless otherwise noted, were:

LIVE STOCK AT CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—The hog market was unsettled, with light-heavy 10@15 cents lower and light weights as much as 25 cents off, while packing sows were 10@15 cents higher. The top for the day was $13.45, while the day's average was $11.45, a decline of 10 cents from Tuesday. The bulk of the 170 and 210 pound averages sold at $13.10@$13.40, with 240 and 325 pound butchers at $11.60@$12.60 and packing sows at $10.15@$10.50.

Packers bought 5,200 and shippers 4,000, with 6,000 left over. Receipts were 18,000, with 23,000 estimated for tomorrow.

Fat lambs were steady to 25 cents lower, with the bulk of the sales at $14@$16.15, while natives sold largely at $13.25@$13.50, with a top of $13.75 to the packers. Sheep were steady, with the bulk of the sales at $6.50@$7.50. Receipts were 17,000.

Cattle were in fair demand and prices little changed. Yearlings sold up to $10, with heavies at $10.30. The bulk of beef steers sold at $9.10@$10.25. Receipts were 13,000.

HOST TO LONDON STORE MEN

Wanamaker's Entertains Fifty Delegates From Selfridge's.

The visiting delegation of fifty buyers and store representatives from Selfridge's London, were guests yesterday of the Wanamaker New York store. After a morning tour of the store, the group, under the leadership of Henry Seal, display manager of Selfridge's, were guests at a luncheon in the store restaurant.

Grover Whalen was toastmaster and introduced Joseph H. Appel, who welcomed the visitors in behalf of Rodman Wanamaker. He said that the interchange of ideas was a great force in business today and welcomed the opportunity to learn from the guests as well as to show them American business methods.

FANCY WORSTED PRICES REDUCED FOR SPRING

Reductions ranging from 7½ to 13 per cent., or from 15 to 50 cents a yard, were made yesterday by the American Woolen Company on fancy and semi-staple worsted and woolen suitings for next Spring. The average price reduction on these types of fabrics, according to company officials, is just a little less than that made on tropicals when the latter cloths were opened a few weeks ago. In cases where the reduction is small, it was said, the company has added to the weight of the fabric or otherwise improved it.

In the woolen trade it was said that the company's cuts in prices on piece dyes are proportionately greater than on mixtures, which are expected to be in great favor for Spring.

The cheapest all-worsted fancy fabric in the new lines is priced at $1.75. Last year a similar cloth was quoted at $1.95. The cheapest all-wool fancy is priced at 87½ cents, which represents a small decline from the quotation for a corresponding cloth last year. A feature of the company's vigorous fabrics is No. 6165, which is offered at $2.20, compared with $2.35 last year. The new cloth is about half an ounce heavier than that offered for the past Spring season. The all-wool 11-ounce flannel No. 1011 is priced at $1.75, compared with $1.95 for Spring, 1926.

Buyers were disposed to regard the new prices as low, which was also the opinion of competing manufacturers and jobbers in the trade. One representative selling agent said that he did not see how such substantial reductions could be made, considering that there has been no proportionate reduction in prices of raw material.

Company officials in dwelling on the price aspect of the opening said that they were out to get business and were supplying every incentive to buyers to place orders.

The attendance of buyers at yesterday's opening was fairly large. Some of the most important operators in the country were there, but for the most part those present represented the local clothing trade.

Buyers showed a fair degree of optimism when questioned about prospects for next Fall in the clothing industry. They made much of the fact that stocks of fabrics and garments are low, which should eventually stimulate the movement of finished merchandise. That retailers are still operating very cautiously is indicated by the statement of one well-known manufacturer that the stores have much business yet to place for Fall. A good many retailers, according to this manufacturer, are underbought by as much as 40 per cent. for the coming season.

The general view of competing concerns in the woolen trade in regard to the new prices was that the levels set on the fancies would be sharply competitive. Some, however, interpreted the average reduction as basis of very low prices for fabrics not in active demand and on comparatively smaller cuts on cloths which are likely to have a good call.

Burlap Shipments Were Heavy.

Burlap shipments from Calcutta to North American ports during July were the third heaviest of the year, according to a cable received from that market yesterday by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc. They reached 94,000,000 yards, of which 54,000,000 yards came to ports on the East Coast. Tis total compares with 90,000,000 yards for June and 83,920,000 yards for July, 1925. It brought total shipments for the first seven months of this year to 613,524,000 yards, against 623,666,000 yards in the same period of 1925. Monthly shipments so far this year have averaged over 87,600,000 yards, while last year the monthly figure, through July, was in excess of 90,000,000 yards.

Gray Goods Still Dragging.

Selling of gray goods continued to drag here yesterday, being further retarded by the break in cotton. Small sales of 39½-inch 64-60 printcloths were put through at 7¼ cents for August-September delivery, the goods coming from first hands. First-hand lots of near-by 39-inch 68-72s were reported available at 8¾ cents. Sheetings were very quiet but nominally firm on the basis of 9 cents for 37-inch 48-square four-yard goods. In the specialities there was some trading in 37½-inch 84-104 and 64-68 sateens at 11½ and 10½ cents, respectively. The rest of the market was without interest.

Spring Openings Will Be Late.

From present indications it will be about a month before complete lines of women's wear fabrics for Spring are offered to the cutting-up trade. In some cases, according to opinions expressed yesterday, the mills will delay their openings until October. The late openings are due to the present labor situation in the coat and suit trade, which has prevented the placing of the usual volume of business for Fall at this time. The mills are desirous of waiting for this business to develop before offering Spring weaves, particularly those of a novelty character. At present the coat manufacturers are taking only restricted deliveries of Fall piece goods that they have on order.

To Show More Spring Fabrics.

Additional openings of men's wear fancy worsteds for Spring are scheduled for the next week or ten days. Buyers are beginning to arrive here in numbers and it is believed that the entire market will be ready with the new offerings within this period. Samuel Hird & Sons announced yesterday that their lines would be opened on Tuesday next, while those of the United States Worsted Company will also be shown about that time. The Worumbo Company is preparing a line of topcoatings that will be ready in about ten days.

Raw Silk Trading Is Uneven.

Trading in raw silk at Yokohama is spasmodic, and price changes are within very narrow limits. Yen exchange is very strong, which helps to keep down prices of raw silk as quoted in yens, according to E. Gerli & Co., Inc. At Shanghai steam filatures, tussahs and tsatlees have been slightly affected by the drop in silver exchange, but no special activity has taken place. The Canton market continues firm, and stocks there are small. Local buying is still confined to spot or early deliveries. The quotation here yesterday on double extra cracks was $6.20, while double extras were offered at $6.05. Canton 14-16s were held at $5, and 20-22s at $4.60. The "Three Dancers" variety of China steam filatures was priced at $6.10, with the "Billiken" grade quoted at $6.

Broad Silk Market Is "Spotty."

A somewhat improved demand for Fall broad silks is reported in the trade here. Retailers are placing orders for September and October delivery, while the dress manufacturers are providing a fair amount of duplicate business on certain fabrics, particularly satin Cantons. The general situation for Fall, however, continues spotty. Some houses are credited with doing quite well, while others are not. Complaint is heard everywhere in the trade about the emphasis placed on price in the operations of buyers.

Medium Mixtures for Spring.

Buyers here yesterday for the opening of fancy worsteds by the American Woolen Company expressed the belief that the favored men's wear cloths for next Spring would be medium colored mixtures. They said that there is a distinct trend away from the piece dyes which have been in demand in recent seasons. In colors some importance was attached to the light shades, but not to the marked degree of two seasons ago. It was said that the medium tones, expressing the regained conservatism of male consumers, will receive most attention.

Blouses Having a Good Season.

While the strike in the coat and suit industry is holding back sales of women's blouses in this market somewhat by making retailers uncertain as to the extent suits will be worn this Fall as a result of delayed deliveries, enough business is coming through to keep manufacturers of these garments busy. In fact, leading members of the blouse trade assert that the season is proving a good one. Tailored blouses are having a free sale, and a steadily growing business is reported in velvet blouses. Broadcloth garments are also taking well. In the higher-priced goods novelty satins and metallic effects are being offered successfully.

Dress Buyers Placing Orders.

Although the normal trend of Fall ready-to-wear buying is more toward coats and suits than toward dresses, retail buyers of the latter merchandise were said here yesterday to be placing some excellent orders. A very large part of this business is being placed by buyers of the more popular-priced lines, but makers of the finer merchandise are enjoying at least a normal business. In the cheaper dresses, crêpe-back satins, flat crêpes, jerseys, &c., are being played up strongly by manufacturers and are proving acceptable to buyers. Georgette crêpe dresses also are favored, and a nice business in cheap all-wool flannel garments is being done, from all accounts. Beaded dresses for party and evening wear are also moving well in the popular-price ranges.

Fur Sales Keeping Up Well.

Although the crest of the season has passed so far as the raw skin end of the fur trade is concerned, there is still a nice business being done here in the wanted pelts. The demand for muskrats, especially the Northern variety, keeps up particularly well, and prices are very strong. Southern "rats" are also selling, but the call for them is nothing like as good as that for the Northern pelts. Raccoon and wolf continue active, and the demand for the latter, which is used largely as a trimming by cloth coat manufacturers, was said here yesterday to be surprisingly good, in view of the strike in the cutting-up trade. The better grades of Australian opossum continue to sell, and a satisfactory demand is reported for squirrel and beaver.

$304,266 INDEMNITY AWARDED BROKERS

CASUALTY COMPANY LIABLE

Justice Gibbs Finds Transaction Was Larcenous and Covered by Theft Policy.

A judgment for $30,266 was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday in favor of the banking firm of Kean, Taylor & Co. and against the Maryland Casualty Company, as a result of a ruling by Justice Gibbs that the circumstances in which the brokerage firm of Borden & Knoblauch of Philadelphia got $450,000 in United States Treasury certificates from the New York bankers amounted to larceny and that the transaction was covered by a $250,000 indemnity policy. The firm in Philadelphia failed soon after the transaction was effected and Ernest A. Knoblauch, a member, was sent to prison for engineering the scheme.

The case was defended on the theory that the loss did not amount to larceny and that the record showed that Borden & Knoblauch bought more than $15,000,000 in Treasury certificates in 1,100 different transactions in a few months prior to Nov. 18, 1922, when the certificates forming the basis of the suit were purchased. The indemnity company accordingly insisted that the loss was incurred in the course of business and because of over-extension of credit to Borden & Knoblauch, although Knoblauch pleaded guilty to drawing a check on a bank in which his firm did not have sufficient funds to meet it.

Details of Transaction.

The record showed that Borden & Knoblauch represented that they were buying $450,000 of Treasury certificates for the Pennsylvania Company for granting annuities and insurance on lives, and asked that the certificates be delivered to the Federal Reserve Bank in New York for the account of that company and sent a check in payment. After the certificates had been deposited as directed and the Federal Reserve Bank in Philadelphia had been notified to that effect, Knoblauch got a loan of $450,000 from the Philadelphia Company on the certificates, and after selling them to the Philadelphia National Bank for $453,768 he had the balance of $3,768 on the transaction deposited in his firm's account. His firm's check for $450,000 drawn to Kean, Taylor & Co. to pay for the certificates was received from New York two days later but there were insufficient funds to meet it.

Kean, Taylor & Co. notified the indemity company three days later, on Nov. 23, 1922, that Borden & Knoblauch had obtained the $450,000 on a check which had been returned because of insufficient funds, and demanded the $250,000 insurance. Six weeks later the firm of Borden & Knoblauch was adjudged bankrupt. The Maryland Casualty Company notified Kean, Taylor & Co. on Jan. 5, 1923, that it denied liability on the ground that the acts complained of were not within the purview of the theft policy. Suit then was brought, and when it came to trial the parties consented to have Justice Gibbs determine the issues.

Decision of the Court.

Justice Gibbs, in deciding against the contention of the defendant that Kean, Taylor & Co. "carried on their business in a very unbusiness-like way" and suffered the loss because of extending credit to the Philadelphians, said:

"This contention is not fortified by the record. The modern criminal is very resourceful. Often his ingenuity and cunning frustrates and baffles the best of honest business methods. No business system has yet been devised which is 'crook proof.' Nor does the record uphold defendant's contention that this was a 'trading transaction.' It would be strange, indeed, if false representations, believed and relied on, causing one to be deceived to the extent of parting with nearly half a million dollars, could be classified as a 'trade.'"

The Court said the record showed that the check returned unpaid later had been received by the New York bankers before they parted with the certificates and that there was a "straight brokerage" transaction between Kean, Taylor & Co. and Borden & Knoblauch.

The judgment filed yesterday consisted of the $250,000 with $54,125 interest and $135 costs.

MELLON LEAVES ROME FOR VISIT TO GENEVA

Italians Hope His Trip Will Be of Benefit in Dealing With European Problems.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Aug. 11.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and his daughter, Mrs. D. K. E. Bruce, left this evening for Geneva, whence they will go to Evan, France, in a few days. Finance Minister Volpi was at the station to bid Secretary Mellon farewell. He gave Mrs. Bruce a beautiful bouquet of orchids.

Secretary Mellon at the moment of departure told newspaper men he had had a wonderful holiday in Rome and had enjoyed the artistic treasures of the city very much. This morning Secretary Mellon had his last meeting with Finance Minister Volpi at the Finance Ministry. He explained it was purely a courtesy call to thank Count Volpi, of whom he has seen a great deal in a social way during his stay in Rome, for kindnesses shown him.

From the Italian viewpoint, the results of Secretary Mellon's visit here have been negative, as he did not abandon his stand that he was here for personal family reasons and was not transacting or even discussing any business of any nature. Official circles, however, are far from disappointed. It is remarked that Secretary Mellon's visit enabled him to become thoroughly acquainted with the European viewpoint on many important financial and economic problems which are still awaiting solution. He also has been provided with data which, coupled with his own observations, will put him in a position to form an accurate personal opinion of conditions in Italy. It is felt that if this process is repeated in France and England Secretary Mellon will return to America with data and personal observations which may assume great importance in dealings with European nations.

BUILDING PROJECTS FEATURE MARKET

Welding Company Plans Vestry Street Home—Theatre and Office Plans Filed.

FLATS LEADING TRADING

Multi-Family House Sales Lead in Manhattan—Operator Resells Dwelling.

A new building operation for a downtown plot is foreshadowed in a transaction closed yesterday by William A. White & Sons. These brokers sold for Emily Morris Gallatin the northwest corner of Washington and Vestry Streets, known as 426 Washington Street.

The property involved in the sale is a five-story building on a lot 21.10 by 85 feet. The buyer was the Siemund-Marine Electric Welding Company, Inc., which plans to raze the present improvement and erect a building for its own occupancy. The Cruikshank Company represented the seller as broker in the transaction.

Other building projects shortly to start involving Manhattan sites were indicated by plans filed with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings yesterday. The plans filed were for a two-story theatre and sixteen-story office building and a five-story tenement.

The 51 East Forty-second Street Corporation, as owner of record, filed plans for a two-story theatre and sixteen-story office building, to be built on a plot 112 by 200 by 50 by irregular, at 229 to 239 West Fifty-third Street, running through the block to 254 and 256 West Fifty-fourth Street. The buildings will be erected from plans by Eugene De Rosa, Inc., architects, at an estimated cost of $750,000.

The other plans filed were for a five-story tenement, to be built on a plot 75 by 87 feet, at 208 to 218 West 151st Street for the 151st Street Corporation, owner of record. Lang & Rosenberg, the architects, who drew the plans, estimate the cost of the project to be $270,000.

Tenement House Sales.

Multi-family house sales led the trading in Manhattan properties yesterday, with buyers evincing little interest in any other type of holding.

M. Theodore sold for William Lang the four-story tenement at 569 Second Avenue, and also sold for Maurice Abramson 221 West Sixty-sixth Street, a five-story tenement house on lot 25 by 100 feet.

Cleary & Glynn have sold for the Patrick Loughran Realty Company the five-story tenement at 195 St. Nicholas Avenue, 29.7 by 90 feet, to the Avsey Realty Company, James Hunter, President.

The A. Kane Company, who recently sold the property at 304 West 120th Street, have resold it to the Wunsieg Realty Company, who intend to remodel the building.

Jerome H. Frank, operator, has sold the three-story dwelling at 236 West 131st Street, on a lot 16.8 by 100 feet, to the Bailiwick Realty Company. L. George was the broker.

RHINELANDER FILES LONG APPEAL TODAY

Papers in Annulment Action Fill 1,455 Pages—Case to Come Up in the Fall.

Leonard Kip Rhinelander, through his attorney, Leon R. Jacobs, will file today in the Brooklyn part of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court an appeal from the decision denying annulment of his marriage to Alice Beatrice Jones Rhinelander, it was learned yesterday.

The appeal papers consist of two printed volumes, comprising 1,455 pages. Sixteen copies will be filed, or thirty-two volumes in all.

The papers contain the complete record of the trial of the suit for annulment which Mr. Rhinelander brought against his negro wife, the testimony and all of the exhibits, which include the love letters and the photographs. One of these letters contains more than 2,000 words.

The appeal will not be argued until Fall. It will have place on a court calendar printed about Sept. 19, and will be heard some time after Oct. 4.

Former Supreme Court Justice Isaac N. Mills, chief counsel for Mr. Rhinelander, will argue the appeal. It will not be necessary for the litigants to appear in court.

The appeal carries out the announcement made by Judge Mills last March, when Justice Joseph Morschauser denied the motion of Mr. Rhinelander for a retrial of the suit, that the jury's verdict would be promptly appealed. The jury last December found the marriage to be valid. Judge Mills said at that time that the appeal would be taken on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence and that Justice Morschauser made errors in the trial and in his charge to the jury.

The cost of printing the testimony and exhibits on Mr. Rhinelander's appeal is said to have been more than $5,000.

Mr. Rhinelander has remained in seclusion for several months. It was reported early in the Summer that he was in Paris, but this was subsequently denied. Mrs. Rhinelander sailed in July, accompanied by her mother, to visit relatives in England.

Maidstone Boat Club Asks Funds.

The Maidstone Boat Club, East Hampton, has issued a membership appeal to enable it to continue its activities. The appeal says in part: "A light is maintained and kept burning on the end of the breakwater at Three Mile Harbor, the necessity for which can not be questioned. The channel at the entrance to Three Mile Harbor is staked, making it possible for any one to find his way without difficulty; the club keeps alive and behind a movement for the permanent improvement of the channel and breakwater which most certainly should appeal to boat lovers who use these waters and should be of great benefit to the entire community." The appeal is signed by L. T. Halsey, E. T. Dayton, Felix Dominy, H. L. Jefferys, W. L. Edwards, J. C. Lawrence, W. A. Hastings.

Christian Scientists Lease New Reading Room Space

The Third Church of Christ, Scientist, which has maintained a reading room at 680 Madison Avenue, will abandon that address in the near future.

The church has leased, through Douglas L. Elliman & Co., Inc., as brokers, a new home for the reading room on the seventh floor of the Ley Building, on Madison Avenue and East Fifty-seventh Street.

The Third Church of Christ, Scientist, is located at 583 Park Avenue.

L. E. Owens Buys Country Home in White Plains.

The Gill Realty Company sold a Colonial house, with about one acre of land, on Soundview Circle, White Plains, to L. E. Owens, production manager of The New York World. The house is one of an unusual group of Colonial houses built in the form of a private park. The late R. B. Dula was interested in the project, in conjunction with his other White Plains operations.

The property adjoins the estates of Arthur S. Kleeman, Vice President of the Manufacturers' Trust Company; Julius H. Mahler and Mrs. M. A. Benson. Mr. Owens will occupy the property immediately as his country home. Prince & Ripley were the brokers.

George Howe, Inc., sold a large parcel of land belonging to Mrs. Margaret V. Carey at Mount Kisco, adjoining the Mount Kisco Golf Club, to the New Castle Land Corporation, which will add the land to its golf club property.

The Oak Lane Construction Company, Inc., has sold an American Colonial house on Oak Lane near Chesterfield Road in Fox Meadow, Scarsdale, to C. Van V. Smillie for occupancy. The broker was Edward M. West, Inc.

OLD HOLDING PASSES.

Bronx Plot Sold After an Ownership of 35 Years.

An old Bronx holding was involved in a change of ownership yesterday when William A. Mercer sold the plot 45 by 64 feet on the north side of Westchester Avenue, 100 feet east of Continental Avenue. This is the first sale of the property in eighty-five years. John Caulway was the broker.

The same broker also sold for Meyer A. Outtier to a builder for improvement a plot 25 by 92 feet on the north side of Edison Avenue.

FOX TERRIER SAVES KITTEN.

Fire Mascot Rushes Into Burning Building to Make Rescue.

Nellie, fox terrier mascot of the Eighth Street Engine Company, Long Island City, is wearing a red ribbon as a medal for rescuing a kitten from a fire yesterday. The fire occurred in the factory of the American Fibre Corporation at 540 Van Alst Avenue, Long Island City.

As the company pulled up to the hydrant, Nellie, as is her custom, jumped off the truck and ran toward the burning building. She disappeared, but soon emerged from the basement, carrying in her teeth a small kitten. One of the firemen took the kitten from Nellie and she started back toward the basement. She was coughing and a bit unsteady from the smoke, and members of the fire company caught her and prevented her from returning.

Taking a tip from Nellie, the janitor of the building went to the basement and came out with a box containing five kittens. Women rushed to take the kittens, guaranteeing the waifs a home. Meanwhile a woman in the crowd had taken from her little daughter a red hair ribbon and tied it to Nellie's collar.

New History of East Hampton.

To celebrate the 275th anniversary of the founding of East Hampton, L. I., a book will be published soon dealing with the history of the town, including romantic incidents of Indians and pirates and wartime episodes, compiled by Samuel Seabury. In the volume will be the book of the pageant of the anniversary written by Miss Abigail Halsey. Illustrations will be from old prints and portraits and photographs of present day features.

NEW ZONING RULING.

Corporation Counsel Hands Down Opinion on Garages.

There is no legal bar under the zoning ordinance to the construction of any number of garages on a city plot, providing no single garage has a capacity of more than five automobiles, Corporation Counsel George Nicholson ruled yesterday in reply to an appeal from the Building Bureau in the Borough of Richmond.

The interpretation of the ordinance became an issue following the construction of six garages, each with a five-car capacity, on a lot close to the Borough Hall in St. George, S. I. The builder of the garages is Morgan L. Ryan, former Justice of the Children's Court in New York City. The first request of Mr. Ryan for a building permit was refused.

Corporation Counsel Nicholson ruled that while no garage could be built in this restricted area which would house more than five automobiles, there was no way in which the construction of an indeterminate number of garages on any one plot could be stopped.

MORTGAGE LOANS PLACED.

Ralston Realty Company Obtains $125,000 on East Side Flats.

Charles B. Van Valen has obtained for the Ralston Realty Company a mortgage of $125,000 on the four-story tenements, 344 to 350 East Eighty-sixth Street.

Charles C. Edwards & Co. placed a mortgage loan of $32,000 on 217 West Twenty-ninth Street and a loan of $30,000 on 160 and 164 East Twenty-eighth Street.

Momand & Co. have placed for the Cardia Building Corporation a building loan of $117,000 on an apartment house on the south side of Clark Street, west of Crescent Road, Astoria, and for John Finger a loan of $85,000 on the three-story building at 471 and 473 East Tremont Avenue.

Childs & Humphries, Inc., have negotiated a 5 per cent. loan of $40,000 on 527 Lexington Avenue for Marie Munsch and $35,000 on 326 West Fifty-eighth Street for the Hum Realty Corporation.

PACKARD CO. BUYS WEST SIDE PLOT

A $2,000,000 IMPROVEMENT

Plans Seven-Story Building as a Unit in New York Expansion Program.

The Packard Motor Company of New York yesterday signed contracts for the purchase of the entire block front on the west side of Eleventh Avenue, between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth Streets, as a site for a seven-story service station to cost about $2,000,000.

The property was sold by The New York Evening Journal Company, a holding concern for the Hearst interests. It was bought for all cash at a price said to be close to $900,000. Cross & Brown and Huberth & Huberth were the brokers in the transaction.

Plans for the new improvement are being prepared by Albert Kahn, a Detroit architect. The plant, according to present plans, will be one of the largest of its kind in the East and will form one of the units in the company's expansion program.

The plot measures 200 by 225 feet. It is a part of the 800-foot block which Mr. Hearst leased a few years ago from the Society of the New York Hospital with an option to buy. This option was exercised a few months ago, and shortly after the Hearst interests acquired the 100-foot corner of Eighth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street from the Doelger Brewing Company.

At the time of its purchase it was said that Mr. Hearst planned a large publishing plant to house his various publications. This plan, it was announced yesterday, has been abandoned and the remainder of the block will be offered for resale in units.

WETMORE TRACT SOLD.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Aug. 12.—The 700-acre Wetmore property in the Borough of Peapac and Gladstone, Mendham Township, was sold at a foreclosure sale to the Wilkinson Brothers Company for $100,000. The former owners of the tract were William B. Wetmore and wife.

The property is improved with a large mansion and several outbuildings. It carried two mortgages, a first mortgage of $56,280 held by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and a second mortgage of $74,433, held by the buying company. The amount due was $132,000. The bid of the Wilkinson Brothers Company was the only one received.

The action for the foreclosure proceedings were brought in the Court of Chancery, Newark. Vice Chancellor Bentley issuing an order for sale returnable July 12.

THEATRE OPERATION FOR JEROME AVENUE

IMPROVED PARCELS SOLD

Many Vacant Parcels in Bronx Borough Acquired by Builders for Immediate Improvement.

A syndicate headed by Charles B. Singer purchased from the Jerome Avenue Exhibition Company, Inc., a subway station plot of about fourteen city lots at the northwest corner of 176th Street and Jerome Avenue for immediate improvement with a 2,000-seat moving picture theatre.

The Jerome Avenue frontage of 175 feet is already improved with a new one-story taxpayer containing twelve stores, and the moving picture theatre is to be erected in the rear of this taxpayer, with an entrance on Jerome Avenue. The plot has a frontage on Davidson Avenue of 175 feet and a frontage on 176th Street of 206 feet.

The new owners will erect six additional stores on the 176th Street frontage during the construction of the theatre improvement. The brokers in the transaction were John Kelly and the Billingsley Realty Company, Inc.

The Ullman firm sold for Benjamin Elsman the northwest corner, 75 by 100 feet, at Adee and Bronxwood Avenues, to E. Souposky, who will erect a five-story apartment, and a plot on the west side of Olinville Avenue, north of Burke Avenue, to S. Palumbo.

A plot 100 by 100 feet on the east side of Hull Avenue, 175 feet north of 209th Street, has been purchased by a builder from Samuel Herbst and J. Schaffer for improvement with an apartment house. Nat E. Fink was the broker and he also sold the northeast corner of 166th Street and Shakespeare Avenue for Leo Silver to the Katz Holding Corporation for improvement with a nine-story house.

The United Land Development Company sold to Joseph Buiso a plot 50 by 109 feet on the south side of 215th Street, 125 feet east of Bronxwood Avenue, and also to Nicholas Trsino a plot 50 by 100 feet on the north side of East 215th Street, 50 feet east from Paulding Avenue.

Hyman Lerman has purchased the taxpayer building with nine stores on the southeast corner of Minford Place and East 172d Street, from the Ferben Realty Corporation. Zvirin & Lippner represented the buyer as attorney.

Charles B. Van Valen sold for Maran & Stein, operators, to an investor, the five-story apartment at 1,210 Woodycrest Avenue, a plot size 100 by 100 feet. It was held at $215,000.

Joseph Sager, operator, has purchased from the Shearn, Hartman Construction Corporation, 2,304 Grand Avenue, known as the southeast corner of North Street, one block south of Fordham Road, a five-and-one-half-story apartment house on a plot 100 by 100 feet, accommodating fifty-three families and arranged into 2, 3, 4 and 5 rooms. The building was completed last year and rents for $36,500. B. Magidson and D. Bernstein were the brokers.

Nostrand Avenue Flat Deal.

The three-story flat on the west side of Nostrand Avenue 20 feet north of Park Place has been sold for J. Henry Witt by the McInerney-Klinck Realty Company. The plot is 20 by 100 feet.

Two things make the Drake outstanding!

First, it is an apartment hotel offering everything the most fastidious people seek. Superb location! Architectural beauty! Luxurious foyers and halls—spacious rooms—deep closets—large windows—ice-less refrigeration! And a restaurant of the first magnitude!

Second, rentals are lower than these luxuries would suggest . . . apartments, two to seven rooms, from $2500 . . . and maid service is included!

REAL ESTATE
SALESMEN,
READ THIS.

Recreation and Resort Real Estate is where the money is! Now we are opening an all-water-front subdivision in a most popular mountain resort near New York City where there are 500,000 Summer visitors every year. One of them a prospect for a bungalow, a cheap water front lot, or a piece of acreage.

An intensive and spectacular publicity campaign will tell all of these Summer visitors what we have to offer. Extensive improvements under way.

Artistic stucco bungalows, samples now being erected; will be sold for $75 down and $25 a month. Waterfront lots and waterfront acreage will be offered on easy terms.

All payments on lots and bungalows will be made to a national bank. Powerful financial interests are behind this undertaking.

Buses will make hourly trips of inspection through the beautiful waterfront sections to be sold. This property has bus connections with surrounding towns, mainline railroad stations and New York City.

We are prepared to give the 100 per cent. cooperation that will sweep aside all sales resistance.

We are looking for experienced subdivision and resort salesmen, property men and closers who can show their own in one of the fastest real estate deals that was ever put on the market. We prefer salesmen who have their own cars. Remuneration is on a commission basis.

An Open Memorandum

From MAJOR HARRY L. STRATTON
President and General Manager

H. L. STRATTON, INC.

Of Interest to Successful Automobile Salesmen

We need more men to handle the increasing volume of Greater Oakland Six and Pontiac Six sales.

We want only men who have proven themselves leaders as automobile salesmen.

Under the plan we have adopted you will be able to command the services of the best salesmen in the industry.

They must have honesty and the ability to present our products thoroughly and courteously to the public.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) H. L. STRATTON,
President and General Manager.

NOTE TO SALESMEN:

Following receipt of the above memorandum, on September 1st we will put into operation a salary and sliding scale commission plan that will enable salesmen to make more money than they ever made before.

If you are leading a sales force at present, or if you have an unquestionably successful record, you are invited to investigate it. Average or mediocre salesmen need not apply.
